AN ACCOUNT OF THE MANOR OF HALING, IN THE PARISH OF CROYDON, SURREY, AND OF SOME OF ITS POSSESSORS, BY G. STEINMAN STEINMAN, ESQ. F.S.A., F.L.S.

THE manor of Haling, comprising a park and mansion, situate at the southern extremity of the town of Croydon, was thought by Ducarel[a] to have found its designation with our Saxon ancestors. Holy, in their language is haliȝ, and meadow inȝ—and from these two words he deduces Haling—holy-meadow, a supposition that is in some degree strengthened by the contiguity of this estate to the manor of Wodden—which he deduced with an equal degree of probability from their idol Woden.

It is stated by Bray,[b] but on no cited authority, that towards the close of the fifteenth century the manor of Haling was in the possession of Thomas Warham. Thomas Warham, citizen and carpenter of London, was one of the twelve principal inhabitants of Croydon, presenting to the chauntry of St. Mary in the church of that parish in 1458, and again in 1476,[c] and who appears, from an imperfect roll de anno 34 Henry VI. (1456), to have been professionally employed on the archiepiscopal residence. In his will, dated 3rd September 1478, and proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, on the 8th November 1481, he directs his body to be buried in the parish church of St. John the Baptist, at Croydon, in the chapel of St. Nicholas, "before the ymage of Our Lady of Pitie." In his will he makes mention of Ellen his wife, of his brother Richard and his two daughters—

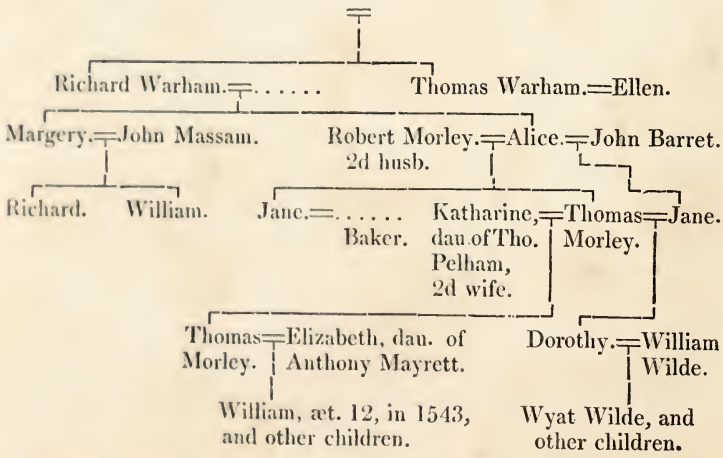
[a] History of Croydon.

[b] Hist. and Antiq. of Surrey.

[c] 1 Reg. Bouchier, ff. 74[a], 113[b].

Alice, the wife of John Barret, and Margery, the wife of John Massam, and of Annis the daughter of his nephew William Warham deceased. In 1543 (34 Henry VIII.) certain lands of Thomas Warham were held by William Wilde, gentleman, in right of his wife Dorothy, the offspring of an incestuous marriage between Jane, daughter and heir of the before-mentioned John Barret, and Thomas Morley, son of his widow by her second husband Robert Morley. In a complaint made to Archbishop Warham, then Archbishop of Canterbury, by certain tenants holding lands under the said Wilde, that they had been then lately threatened with an ejectment, and praying his interference, as lord of the manor of Croydon, this marriage—as contrary to the laws both of God and the King—is urged against the right of his wife to the lands of her maternal grandfather John Barret, and his wife's uncle Thomas Warham. It is also here noticed, that, as the latter made no surrender of any part of his copyhold lands to the use of his brother Richard or his children before mentioned, or to the use of any other person, according to the custom of the manor, the said copyholds had reverted to the lord, and were consequently unjustly held by the said Wilde and his predecessors from the time of Warham's death.

From this paper, indorsed, "The pedigree & other things concernyng Wild," and preserved in the Chapter House of Westminster, the following pedigree is compiled, with some assistance from the will mentioned above.



The following rental taken between 18th May 1531 and the 1st March 1536,[d] and showing a possessor of this estate, is copied from a paper also in the Chapter House:

The William Warham, whose estates are here enumerated, was either William Warham, Archdeacon of Canterbury,[e] who died in 1557, or his cousin Sir William Warham,[f] of [e] William Warham was appointed Archdeacon of Canterbury in 1504, and had a papal dispensation for not proceeding to higher orders (than a deacon) for seven years, which dispensation was renewed in 1510 for six more. In 1515 he was appointed to the prebend of Brownswood in St. Paul's Cathedral; he afterwards exchanged it for that of Newington, which he held till his death. In 1517 he was collated to the rectory of Wrotham, Kent, which he resigned in 1532 for that of Harrow on the Hill, and that again he exchanged in 1537 for Hayes in Middlesex, which he held at his death. In 1520 he was appointed Provost of Wingham College, Kent. In 1527 he accompanied Cardinal Wolsey on his embassy to France; and in 1532 his uncle the Archbishop died at his archidiaconal house at Heckington near Canterbury. After the accession of Cranmer to the archiepiscopal see, he was, in 1534, required to resign the Archdeaconry and the Provostship of Wingham, when he was assigned a pension of 60*l.* out of the former, and 20*l.* out of the latter. He died in 1557, on the 14th of October in which year a successor was appointed to the rectory of Hayes. Newcourt, and Hasted.

[f] "It must be known now there was a young Knight called William Warham, godson and nephew to the Archbishop (as being son to his brother Hugh Warham,) that waited upon him in his chamber: with him the Archb: being always

Malsanger, in the parish of Oakley, Southampton, whose father Hugh Warham, Esq. was certainly a possessor of the estate, and appears to have resided here, as his pedigree is to be found in one of the early Visitations of the county.[g] This gentleman, styling himself of Malsanger, sold the manor with other lands in Wodden and Mitcham, by deed bearing date 1st March 1536, to Henry VIII. for the sum of 710*l.*[h]

The following is a pedigree of Archbishop Warham's family engrafted with the Warhams mentioned in the early part of this essay.

- 1. Robert Warham, of Malsanger. = Elizabeth.
  - William, father of Annis.
  - 1. William Warham, Abp. of Canterbury, ob. 1532.
  - 2. Nicholas, of Malsanger. =
    - Sir George Warham, of Malsanger; ob. s. p.; mar. Anne, dau. of Ralph St. Leger, Esq. of Ulcomb, Kent; who mar. 2dly, Edw. Thwaytes, Esq. of Esture.
    - Will. Archdeacon of Canterbury 1504, resigned 1534; died in 1557.
  - Magdalene, mar. Nich. Ashton, of Lancashire.
  - Mary.
  - 3. Hugh Warham, of Haling, and of Malsanger. = Maryan, dau. of Geffery Colles.
    - Jane, mar. Sir Rob. Morton, of Whitehorse, Croydon, who died 1514.
    - Anne, m. Sir Wm. Reede, of Boarstall, Bucks.
    - Elizabeth, mar. John Moyle, of Kent.
    - Jane, m. Augustine Whitehead, of Titherley, Hants.
    - Sir William Warham, of Malsanger, mar. Anne, dau. of Thos. Hedney, of Denton, Sussex.[i]
    - Richard Warham, D.C.L. Rector of Clapham, Suss. 1516, of Cheam, 1523.
    - Agnes, mar. Sir Anth. St. Leger, K.G. Lord Deputy of Ireland, who died 1559.[k]
  - 4. Robert, father of Robert, who died s. p.
  - 5. John, lord of Winderton in Wingham, Kent. A quo Warham, of Osmington, Dorset.
- 2. Richard Warham. =
- 3. Thomas Warham, mar. Ellen . . . . . ; ob. s. p. 1481.
- Alice, Margery (see p. 2).

ready to discourse, did more than once seriously tell him, that, if ever after his death any should succeed him in the see of Canterbury called Thomas, in no wise to serve him, or seek his favour," &c.—— "being prophetically spoken concerning Thomas Cranmer."—Anthony à Wood, Athenæ Oxon. Strype, in his Life of Cranmer, erroneously states that Warham gave this admonition to his nephew the Archdeacon.

[g] Harl. MSS. No. 1561.

[h] Grants and Exchanges of Lands, Aug. Office, 27 Hen. VIII.

[i] They had issue Anne, married to Sir Richard Putenham of Sherfield, co. Southampton.

[k] Father of Sir Warham St. Leger, Governor of Munster; in a junior branch of whose family, seated at Heyward's hill, near Cork, the name of Warham descended for several generations.

That Robert Warham was brother to the "citizen and carpenter," and consequently to his brother Richard, I infer from the arms on the tomb presumed to be in memory of Thomas Warham in Croydon church, which are those borne by his son Hugh, as of the third house.[k] The arms borne by Archbishop Warham were, Gu. a fess Or betw. a goat's head couped in chief and three escallops in base Arg.[l] Nicholas Warham bore the same, charged with a crescent of the second house, all within a bordure engrailed Or;[m] and Hugh Warham the same arms within a bordure Arg. charged with a mullet of the third house.[n] The absence of the names of Robert Warham and his family from the will of Thomas, also adds to the strength of my hypothesis, that the former was the elder of the brothers, as he thus inherited an estate which placed him in a higher sphere than his brothers. It has always been stated by the biographers of Archbishop Warham that he was descended of an ancient family; but, as the pedigrees inserted by its members in the various Heralds' Visitations have in no one instance been carried higher than his father, we may with safety esteem that assertion to be unfounded.

In 1554 Queen Mary granted to Sir John Gage, K. G. the manor of Haling, valued with its appurtenances in all issues beyond reprises at 15*l.* per ann., to be held by the said Sir John and his heirs by the tenure of knight's service in capite, viz. for the fortieth part of a knight's fee.[o]

Sir John Gage, the grantee, died in 1558, at his residence at Firle, in the county of Sussex. By his wife, Philippa, daughter of Sir Richard Guildford, K. G., he left issue four sons and four daughters, of whom Robert his third son possessed the manor of Haling; and it is to this gentleman we are indebted for a memoir of his father, preserved, in the hand writing of his eldest son Sir Henry, among the MSS. of Sir Thomas Gage, Bart. and which will be found printed in Collins's Peerage.

[k] The inscriptions on his tomb, which is in the chauntry of St. Nicholas, are lost. The arms of Warham are quartered with a coat of two bars gemells gu. the colour of the field is obliterated. An engraving of it may be seen in Neale and Le Keux's Churches.

Of the said Robert Gage, of Haling, no further particulars have descended to us than the facts that he represented the borough of Lewes in Parliament in 1533; enjoyed the favour of his sovereign; married Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Nicholas Wilford, Esq. of London; and died 20th October 1587;[p] leaving John his son and heir aged 24 years. His death was probably accelerated by the unhappy end of his second son Robert, who deeply feeling the tyrannical oppression under which his religion suffered, he, after some solicitation, was persuaded by his young and accomplished friend, Anthony Babington, of Dethick, to join with him and other Catholic gentlemen of family and fortune in a plot, the object of which was the assassination of the Queen, and the liberation of Mary of Scotland from her confinement.

The fortune which awaited this plot was no better than that which had visited so many of its forerunners, and the conspirators, whose names are too well known to require enumeration,—"Youths," in the words of D'Israeli, "worthy of ranking with the heroes, rather than with the traitors of England,"—were soon driven to various disguises, and to various hiding places. To Charnock's residence in Westminster repaired Gage and Babington, where having arrayed themselves in other clothing, they directly withdrew into St. John's wood, where they were shortly after joined by others of their companions.

Having vainly endeavoured, whilst in this concealment, to obtain so small a sum as three crowns from the French Ambassador's secretary,[q] and horses from Titchbourne, they wandered about from place to place, till hunger directed them to a house at Uxendon, near Harrow-on-the-Hill, the residence of a family zealously devoted to the Catholic faith, of the name of Bellamy. Here they were fed and clothed, and here they were discovered, concealed in barns and in the habiliments of countrymen.

Returning more immediately to Gage,—he was taken in Charnock's apparel; but appears, from his own account, to have withdrawn himself from his companions previous to his capture. On the 15th of September 1586, together with six other of the conspirators, he was arraigned before the Court at Westminster, tried, found guilty, as an accessory after the fact, and on the 21st of the same month, suffered the extreme penalty of the law at St. Giles's in the fields.

John Gage, who succeeded to the estate, was scarcely less unfortunate than his unhappy brother. Having concealed, probably on his manor of Haling, a missionary priest of the name of Beesley,[r] he was arrested under the act 27th of Elizabeth, on a a warrant dated 10th January 1590, and committed to the Tower, there to await his trial.[s] In durance he appears to have occupied the "Broad-arrow Tower," in which room, between the first and second recesses, on the left-hand side, is yet extant an inscription, apparently his work.

In this confinement he was suffered to remain undisturbed till the 1st of July, when he was tried, convicted, and attainted, and as Beesly was executed on the following day,[t] it is not unlikely that they were arraigned together. Death, the common award of the Judges, was remitted on Gage—a mercy which he purchased by a long imprisonment.

On the 17th February 1592, I find her Majesty issuing a commission, directing Sir Francis Carew, Knt. Edmund Bowyer, and John Ownsted, Esqrs. and Robert Moyse, Richard Hopkins, and Edmund Farrant, gentlemen, to hold an inquisition on the estate hereby forfeited, which estate, from the return of the Commissioners dated 20th March following, comprised:

Six days after the date of this return, the manor, lands, and tenements therein specified, were let by the Crown to Charles Lord Howard, of Effingham, Lord High Admiral of England, who was already in possession of the mansion, for the term of twenty-one years, at a rent of 15*l.* per ann.,[v] and who, about the expiration of his lease, obtained a renewal for a like term for the same rent, dated 3rd March 1612.[x] Haling was now one of the "seven standing houses" mentioned by Fuller as maintained by this sumptuous nobleman.[y]

and here his second son Charles, afterwards third and last Earl of Nottingham of the family of Howard, was born 25th of December 1610;[a] and here also the Admiral himself committed his soul unto God, at the great age of 87, on the 14th of December 1624.

Reverting to the unfortunate lord of the manor. The date of his emancipation does not appear; but the birth of his eldest son Henry in 1597, leads us to suppose that at that time he was at large. The lady by whom he had this son, and other children hereafter to be mentioned, was Margaret, eldest daughter of Sir Thomas Copley, Knt. of Gatton, Surrey; and to her—from the rank of her family—I should imagine he was united prior to his misfortunes,—more especially as he was afterwards compelled to subsist on the charity of his kindred.[b]

This lady was now dead; and, low as his finances of necessity must then have been, they were not such as to deter him from leading to the altar a second wife—a lady of the name of Barnes. This was previous to the 21st of February 1621, as the second son of this lady, Francis, afterwards President of the English college at Douay, was born on that day.

Bowed down as he was by misfortune, yet in the piety of his eldest son he found a mitigation of his troubles. This gentleman, with a disinterestedness rarely to be met with, voluntarily relinquished to his parent, as a means of removing his pecuniary difficulties, the reversion of the forfeited manor, "waiving all respect of wrong to himselfe, or prejudice to his wife and children."[c] Accordingly, in the names of Sir John Gage, Baronet, of Firle, John Gage, Esq. and Henry Gage, he alienated by indenture, dated 12th July 1626, the fee simple of the estate to Christopher Gardiner, Esq. of Dorking, Surrey, in consideration of the sum of 2,350*l.* He did not long survive the sale; dying at Croydon on the 6th of December following.[d] well,[e] in the county of Middlesex; he bequeaths to his wife 800*l.* in performance of a covenant entered into at his marriage, in which he is bound to endow her with that sum during his life, and, in default thereof, to bequeath it her on his death. He also bequeaths her an annuity of 16*l.* and a mark, with the further sum of 10*l.* being a debt due to him from the Lord Montacute. To his son Henry he bequeaths the sum of 300*l.* and his lands at Mitcham, —a sum, the smallness of which he deems it necessary to apologize for, by stating that he had previously paid a debt of 400*l.* for the said Henry, and further that he had received "no profit" from his said son's marriage, "as fathers used to doe." Passing over his second son, Thomas, who had displeased him, he bequeaths to his son George 40*l.*, and to his three younger sons, John, Francis, and Robert, 200*l.* each, to be disposed of according to their mother's direction. To his daughter Helen he bequeaths an annuity of 20*l.* per ann. payable out of the manor of Arundel, by the Earl of Arundel. Item. Two pair of sheets and one dozen napkins, marked with the initials of himself and wife, "I. M. G." To his daughter Mary 200*l.* He also gives directions for the payment of his debts, viz. To Sir John Gage, Bart. 50*l.*; to his cousin Blackwell,[f] 10*l.*, and to Roger How 20*l.*

Of his family, by his first wife, he had three sons and one daughter, viz. Sir Henry, a Colonel under the King in the civil wars, and sometime governor of Oxford, who was killed at Cullum-bridge, near Abingdon, January 7th, 1644; Thomas, author of "Travels in Spane," &c.; George, D.D. prothonotary in England for the See of Rome; and Mary, the wife of Thomas Coldham, of Midhurst, Sussex. By his second lady, who survived him, he left issue in the same proportion: John, author of "The Christian Sodality; or Catholic Hive of Bees;" Francis, D.D. before-mentioned; Robert; and Helen.

Although I can find no authority in the church registers of the parish, for assigning Haling as the birthplace of John and Robert Gage, still it is more than probable that the brothers were natives of this place. Yet, if in this authority the names above-mentioned are absent, there are to be found in it those of other children of the same father—names which till now were unknown to the pedigree of this ancient family.—Mary, christened 3 Oct. 1563; Elizabeth, 3 March 1564; Edward, 26 Aug. 1567; and William, 3 Oct. 1568.

Returning to the manor. In the octaves of Hilary, 2nd Charles I. a suit was instituted in the Exchequer by Christopher Gardiner, Esq. of Croydon, to recover the manor of Haling; in support of which claim, he alleged that John Gage being at the time of the felony seised in fee tail, and having, in conjunction with his son Henry, by a bargain and sale enrolled, and a fine and recovery levied (17th January 1627), conveyed the reversion of the estate to him, the said Christopher Gardiner, he was entitled to possession of the said manor from the death of the said John Gage, freed from the unexpired term of the lease granted by the Crown to the Earl of Nottingham. In all which points he succeeded by the judgment of the Court.[g]

He died in 1710, and from his widow, who married for her second husband William Parker, Esq. it has descended (as shewn in the preceding pedigree) to its present possessor, William Parker Hamond, Esq. great-grandson of that lady.

There are now no courts held for this manor.

Notes to the Pedigree of Gardiner of Peckham.

* In Camberwell churchyard was formerly this epitaph on a large black marble slab: "Here lieth buried Sir Thomas Gardyner, Knt. the servant of Jesus Christ."

† This William Gardiner, having married Anne, dau. of Simon Hastings, esq. of Dailsford, co. Worc. died Jan. 1, 1632, æt. 26, and was buried at that place. (See his epitaph in Nash's Worcestershire, vol. i. p. 287.) He left a son William Gardiner, 4 months old 1632, (Esc. 8 Chas. I.) which William, or William his son, sold the rectory of Ewell 1690. Hist. and Antiq. of Surrey, i. 470.

‡ The husband of Anne Gardiner, Henry Bard, Viscount Bellamont, was an adventurous cavalier, who obtained rank and title from King Charles I. at a time when that monarch could not easily refuse such rewards to those who were solicitous to obtain them, and at the same time were zealous in his service. Some singular anecdotes of him are related in Wood's Fasti Oxon, (edit. Bliss,) ii. 67, and he is also noticed in Lloyd's Worthies; and Cole, in a memoir in his MS. history of King's College, Camb. (MS. Addit. Brit Mus. 1716, p. 137) endeavours to place his character in a more favourable view than that of the needy adventurer, depicted by Wood. He was a son of the Rev. George Bard, who died Vicar of Staines in Middlesex in 1616; and he had himself a Fellowship of King's College, which he resigned on his marriage in 1645. He was knighted Nov. 22, 1643; created a Baronet Oct. 8, 1644, being then styled "of Staines;" and a Peer of Ireland July 8, 1646, by the titles of Baron Bard, of Drombeg, co. Down (not Brombry, as in Wood), and Viscount Bellamont. He appears to have been particularly favoured by the notice of Prince Rupert; and was appointed to lead off the left tertia with Sir George Lisle at the field of Naseby. He died whilst Ambassador in Persia about the year 1660; leaving behind him, says Wood, "a widow, not so rich, but that she received relief upon her petition after his Majesty's return, from King's Coll. in Cambridge, and two daughters, who were of his religion [Roman Catholic], one of which was afterwards mistress to Prince Rupert." Dudley Bard, the issue of that connection, was killed at the siege of Buda in 1686, aged scarcely twenty, and is further noticed by Wood, Fasti (by Bliss) i. 490. Persiana, a daughter of the Viscount, married Nathaniel Bard, Esq. whose heiress married Henry Harcourt, Esq. (see Clutterbuck's Herts. i. 285.)

VALUATION OF THE ESTATES OF THE BISHOPRICKS OF ENGLAND AND WALES, IN 1647.

(MS. Rawlinson 240.)

The date of the following Survey, which is printed from a MS. preserved in the Rawlinson collection, in the Bodleian library, may be ascertained from the following notices. In the Act passed by the Parliament, 9 Oct. 1646, for abolishing of Archbishops and Bishops, and vesting their lands in Trustees, the Trustees are empowered to appoint from time to time fit and able persons to survey the premises, to hold Courts of Surveys, and to demand and receive all the evidences and title deeds relative to the same. The form of an oath to be taken by each Surveyor is also prescribed. (Scobell, pt. i. p. 100.) In the Ordinance which followed, 16 Nov. of the same year, it is further ordered that the Surveyors should make returns of their Surveys from time to time to Henry Elsyng, Esq. Clerk of the House of Commons, who was to make entry of such returns, and also to have the custody of the evidences concerning the lands. (ib. p. 106.) The powers given to these Surveyors are there stated at length, by which any three or more of them were to examine on oath, to compel the production of writings and evidences, and to commit to prison all such persons as refused. (ib. pp. 106, 107.) Their Instructions are annexed to the Ordinance by which such Surveys as shall be made by them are declared to be "good and effectual." (ib. p. 110.) On the 24th of December following an Act passed for the alteration and explanation of the oath appointed to be taken by the Surveyors, by which each is to swear as follows, "I shall use my best endeavour and skill to discover the estate therein [viz. the Ordinance for the sale of Bishops' Lands] mentioned, and every part thereof which shall be given me in charge, and to finde out the true values and improvements thereof, and thereof shall make true Surveys, according to my best skill and cunning; and the same from time to time deliver in writing closely sealed up, unto Henry Elsing, Esquire, Register in that behalf appointed, together with a true copy or duplicate thereof, likewise close sealed up, unto the said Trustees." This Survey therefore must have been made between January 1646-7 and July 1647, when the sale of the episcopal lands commenced. It must also be remarked, that the document here printed only contains an abstract, in all probability, of the original Returns, which, as appears from the above passages, were in duplicate, and also entered in a Register prepared for the purpose. Query, where are these Returns now preserved, or in whose hands is the Register? the entries in which, by the Ordinance of 5 March 1646-7 (Scobell, p. 114) were ordered to be copied by none but the Register or his Clerk, on oath. A statement of the sale of these lands has already appeared in our first volume, to which the annexed article may appear in some measure properly to appertain.

BANNERS, STANDARDS, AND BADGES, TEMP. HEN. VIII.

The following article describes that part of a volume in the Harleian Library [a] which contains sketches of Banners, Standards, and Badges of the English Monarchs from Edward III. to Henry VIII. and of the nobility and gentry in the latter reign. These sketches appear to have been executed between the years 1522 and 1534, the volume beginning with the arms of Christopher Barker as Richmond Herald,[b] and the badge of Wriothesley being given as that of "Master Garter." The early part of the volume is a collection of arms arranged somewhat in the manner of an ordinary, but the portion which is here described commences on folio 209, and concludes at 225 B. It is very probably a transcript from some more highly finished book of drawings which is at present unknown. A very finely drawn collection of the same period still exists in the College of Arms, marked I. 2, part of which has been described in the Retrospective Review, and the continuation in the "Excerpta Historica," page 50 ; but the two collections differ, not only in the names of the parties to whom the Standards belonged, but also in the bearings of those Standards ascribed to the same persons.

With the Standards now given are drawings of a considerable number of badges and crests, the last being distinguished by being placed on wreaths or in coronets. It is not unlikely that, in this part, the artist may have contented himself with sketching the charges on other Standards, instead of continuing, as he at first began, drawings of the whole Standards themselves. They are, however, extremely curious, as but few memorials remain to us of family badges. In the Archæologia [c] are

[b] The volume belonged to Barker, and appears to have been written for the greater part in his own hand. On folio 1 is the following entry, "M^{d}. that the iij^{ti} day of September, the xiiij yer of the Regne of our soveren King Henry the viij. the ordinacio of Sancti Gregori, being Wednesday and Sanct Cuthberti Even, betwene v of the cloke and vi was borne my sone Justeniaen, at afternone, in my hows in paternoster row, the name of his godfathers Master Doctur Cokes, Chanceler to my Lord of Canturberry, and Master Luopton, Doctur of Arches, and godemoder Mastres Asheley, at the beshoppyng Master Potkyn godfader, An^{o} Mv^{c}xxij." The arms of Barker are quarterly, 1 and 4, Argent, three bears' heads erased, two and one, Gules, muzzled Or, in chief three Torteaux ; 2 and 3, Argent, on a chevron Sable between three ravens Proper, as many estoils Or, for 'Carllyll.'" printed some political verses of the time of Richard the Second, and in the "Excerpta Historica,"[d] others of the time of Henry the Sixth, in all of which the personages are designated by their several badges. The Retrospective Review[e] contains also a list of Badges used about the 15th of King Edward the Fourth, and another of the year 1513,[f] the fifth of Henry the Eighth; these, with the book of Standards in the College of Arms alluded to above, the Royal Badges given in the "Regal Heraldry," and the miscellaneous collection in the Retrospective Review,[g] comprise all that has been published on the subject.

The use on seals of an heraldic figure distinct from the arms or crest, is extremely common at a very early date, and appears to have been generally used for the purpose of showing the descent or affinity of the bearer to other families, as the annulet of Vipont used by Clifford, and the garb of Chester by Lacy, afterwards shewn by quartering the whole arms of heiresses with the paternal coat. Sometimes the badges were punning allusions to the bearer's name, as the long sword of Longespee, and the plantagenesta of Plantagenet. In the reign of King Edward the Third family badges were used with profusion to decorate the dresses, caparisons, furniture, and utensils; and although the tournaments sometimes presented a device fancifully adopted for the particular ceremony, still the principal houses, in imitation of the royal family, had a distinctive mark for their retainers, which was no doubt at that time as well or better known than the personal arms or crest of their Lord.

About the time of Richard the Second, supporters became in use among the higher orders, and these appear to have been generally selected in the same manner as the badges had been. The severity of King Henry the Seventh against the practice of keeping large numbers of retainers, must have much contracted the use of badges; and the usual fashion of Elizabeth's time, which was to adopt for the tournament some fanciful and far-fetched device from classical or fabulous history, frequently changed at each pageant, tended still more to throw the ancient distinctions into disuse. Many of them were then placed on wreaths as crests, and have thereby been much confounded with them. There are now very few of our nobility who continue the use of the badge distinctly; but they are still retained by some charitable foundations, and the yeomen of the King's Guard wear them as in the time of Henry the Eighth. The following collection, with those already printed, may serve to make these interesting family distinctions more known to their present hereditary proprietors, and tend to their restoration in those ancient families that are entitled to bear them.

The banners of Brut, Arthur, and the other worthies with which the collection begins, were frequently displayed in pageants and triumphal processions; others might have been assigned, and perhaps were, with quite as much truth and propriety, to the Cardinal Virtues and the heroes of Heathenism.

BANNERS.

Brut. On the same page are the following Crests and Badges.

Mons. le Dolpyn.[b] From a coronet, a fleur-de-lis Or, en-

[a] At the interview of King Henry the Fifth and Charles the Sixth of France, on the Seine, the Pavilion of Charles was decorated on the top, by "a whyte harte flying, made all of fyne silver, with wings enamelled." This King is said to have adopted this device at the early part of his reign; and Anstis seems to infer that it might be the origin of the white hart of Richard the Second.

[b] Francis, the eldest son of Francis the First, who died Dauphin in 1536. The guivre or serpent, from the arms of Milan, being here added to the crest of France, evidently in allusion to the victories of his father over the Milanese, whose territories were then annexed to the kingdom of France.

Chascun yra par tout louant,
Disant, chantant, & escrivant,
VIVE LE ROY LOYS LE GRANT!"

Illustrations de Gaule, 1512.

This badge had been used by his grandfather Lewis of Orleans. Menestrier says it was part of the armorial bearings of Blois. According to Sauval, "Antiq. de Paris," the Celestins preserved the helmet of Charles, Duke of Orleans, father of Louis XII. round which was a collar of the order of the Porcupine; and also one of his banners, which was repainted in 1554, by order of Henry II.; the device on it was a porcupine lancing his quills, suspended from a wreath burning at both ends; round which, on a white ribband, was written, "Ma Volonté."

[d] Charles Count d'Angoulesme, father of Francis I. had used the salamander as his badge, with the motto "Nutrisco et extinguo." On the tapestry at Fontainebleau, of the time of Francis, the Salamander was accompanied by this distich:

Ursus atrox, aquilæque leves, et tortilis anguis
Cesserunt flammæ jam, Salamandra, tuæ.

Alluding to his victories over the Swiss bear, the Imperial eagle, and the Milanese serpent.

Cadorat Sr de Valery. On a wreath Or and Gules, a boar's head and neck Sable, armed of the First.

Guill'e Goufier, Sr de Bonyvet. On a wreath Or and Gules, a demi bull saliant Sable, armed and ringed through the nose of the First.

Le Cont' de Foix, Sr de Lautrec. In a coronet Or, a cow's head and neck Gules, collared and armed Argent.

Claude de Guyse de Lorane, Cont de Marle. In a coronet Or, a demi eagle affrontée, wings expanded, Argent, ducally collared Or, therefrom a patriarchal cross, pendant, of the Last.

Messire Pierre, Sr de Boyarde. On a wreath Or, Gules, and Azure, a scroll Argent, therefrom a demi female issuant, arms extended Argent, crined Or, between two wings displayed of the Last.

Robert de la Marc, Sr de Floenge. On a wreath, Or and Sable, a bull's head couped Gules, ringed through the nose Or, on the head a plain band chequée Argent and Gules, therefrom an eagle's head issuant Argent.

Standard. Fringed white and green; per fess Argent and Vert, both semée of suns Or. The device a stag lodged Argent, ducally collared, chained, and attired Or. The beast bearing the standard is the same as the sinister supporter of his arms.

j In Westminster Hall, now in the course of restoration by Sir Robert Smirke, the ornaments have been admirably perfected by Mr. Nichol, with strict attention to the style and spirit of the ancient work. The large trusses under the principals, are richly sculptured; alternately with the arms of King Edward the Confessor between two stags, ducally gorged and chained; and with the quartered arms of France, ancient, and England, between two lions. These animals can scarcely be called supporters, but they are evidently a commencement of those additions to the heraldic escutcheons.

The string course that connects the trusses, has two kinds of enrichments; one the crest of the lion guardant, crowned, standing on a chapeau, which is placed on a helmet; the other the badge of the stag, ducally gorged and chained; these are alternated. There are some curious variations in both figures; the crest is sometimes placed in front of three ostrich feathers, in other places between two of them; and one instance occurs of a single feather appearing behind the lion; in another, the crest and helmet are placed on a square tablet, formed of clouds. The stag is usually lodged on a single row of nebulée, with ornamental foliage springing from behind; this foliage is in some places distinguished as oak with acorns; or as a rose bush; or terminates in fleurs-de-lis. In one instance the shape of the tree is the same in form as that on the seal of the hind, used by John Holland Earl of Huntingdon. The stag is in one instance placed in a four-wheeled cart, as if on his way to the chase; in another he is pulled down by dogs; in a third he is lodged, the end of his chain being held by a "woodhouse," or wild man, who bears a club over his shoulder. In the whole series especial care has been taken to distinguish the crest from the badge; the lion invariably being placed on a helmet.

On the same page are drawings of the following royal devices.

A tree, the trunk ragulée and the roots eradicated. An ostrich feather erect, the quill passed through a scroll, inscribed "Prence."

The root of a tree[k] couped at the top, the lower part erdicated Or. The motto, "Counfort et lyesse." A sceptre topped with a fleur-de-lis, inscribed "Fraunce:" another topped with a cross patée, theron a dove: a third sceptre terminating at top in a sun, inscribed "Spayne." A sword erect, the grip and hilt, Gules, the pomel formed by a rose. A double rose Argent; another Gules; a third rose Argent, charged with another Gules, and rayonnée Or. A fleur-de-lis Or. A portcullis and chains Or; and a royal crown, doubly arched.

Henry the iiijth. Arms surrounded by the Garter, Quarterly: 1 and 4, Azure, semée de lis Or; 2 and 3, Gules, three lions passant guardant, in pale, Or. Dexter supporter, an heraldic antelope Argent, ducally collared, chained, armed, &c. Or; the sinister, a swan,[l] wings expanded, Argent, ducally gorged and chained Or.

(Margin.) "Henrye son to therle of Derby, fyrst Duke of Lancastre, gave the redde rose crowned, whose ancestors gave the foxe tayle[m] in his propur cooler, and the oystryche fether Ar. the pen hermyne.

"Kynge Henry the iiijth gave the swanne Ar. bekyd G. crowned and cheyned Or; and the tree roote Or."

Standard. Fringed white and blue. Per fess Argent charged with red roses, and Azure charged with tree roots Or, and foxes' tails pendant Proper. The devices, a large double rose Gules; and a swan, wings expanded, Argent, ducally gorged and cheyned

[k] The root of a tree Or, was the badge of John Duke of Bedford, son of King Henry the fourth, and in the celebrated Bedford missal is accompanied by the motto of "A vous entier."

[m] Walter Hungerford, Steward of the Household to King Henry the Fifth, received a grant of the Castle and Barony of Homet in Normandy, by the service of providing to the King and his heirs at the Castle of Rouen, a lance with a fox's tail hanging from it; and Monstrelet mentions that at a magnificent entry of Henry into that city, a fox's brush was fastened as a pennon to the end of a lance, carried by a page superbly mounted, the circumstance, he says, occasioned much talk at the time.

Or. The beast bearing the staff is an heraldic antelope as the dexter supporter.

Henry the vth. Arms surrounded by the Garter, Quarterly: 1 and 4, Azure, three fleurs-de-lis Or; 2 and 3, Gules, three lions passant guardant in pale Or. The dexter supporter, a lion guardant crowned Or; the sinister, an heraldic antelope, as to Henry the Fourth.

Standard, fringed white and blue. Per fess Argent and Azure, both parts semée of roses Gules. The device an heraldic antelope statant as before; the same animal bears the standard.

Henry the vj^th^. Arms within the Garter; with the same supporters as King Henry the Fifth.

(Margin.) "Kinge Henrye the vi^th^ gave the same as hys father dyd."

Standard, and the beast supporting it, the same as his father.

Edward iiij^th^. Arms surrounded by the Garter, the same as to King Henry the fifth. The dexter supporter, a lion guardant crowned Or. The sinister a bull Sable, armed, membered, and hoofed Or.

(Margin.) "Kinge Edward the 4th gave the whyte lyon,[n] and whyte roses with rases of the son',[o] and the blacke bulle w'thout crowne, horneyd, cleyd, and membred Or."

Standard, fringed blue and murrey. Per fess Blue and Murrey, semée on both of roses Argent, rayonnée Or. The device a lion statant guardant Argent, his tail passing between his legs and over his back. The bearer a lion rampant guardant Argent.

Richarde iij^de^. Arms surrounded by the Garter, and the same as King Henry the Fifth. The dexter supporter, a lion guardant crowned Or; the sinister, a boar Argent,[p] armed bristled and membered Or.

[n] The white lion was derived from the House of Mortimer, the black bull from Clarence.

[o] The sun was added to the white rose of York, to commemorate a remarkable appearance in the heavens previous to the victory by Edward the Fourth, at Mortimer's Cross.

[p] This badge of the white boar is said to have been derived from the Honor of Windsor. Two boars were used by Richard as his supporters.

(Margin.) "Kinge Richard the iij^de gave a bore Ar. and the whyte rose, the rayes Or."

Standard, fringed blue and murrey. Per fess Blue and Murrey, both parts semée of roses Argent, rayonnée Or. The devices, a large white rose on golden rays, and a boar Argent, armed, &c. Or. The supporter of the staff is the white boar.

HENRY vij^th. Armes within the Garter, as to King Henry the Fifth. The dexter supporter, a dragon,[q] wings expanded, Gules; the sinister, a greyhound[r] Argent, collared Gules, the rims and terret Or.

(Margin.) "The oystryche fether Ar. & the penne Or, ys the Kinge.[s]

"The oystryche fether, the penne and all Ar. ys the Prynces.

PEDIGREE OF MALTRAVERS, BARON MALTRAVERS.

The pedigree of the Baronial Family of Mautravers or Maltravers, owing to the frequent repetition of a favourite name, has ever been a source of much perplexity to the genealogist. Not only has the patronymic of John descended from generation to generation, but in two instances we find it borne by brothers, increasing exceedingly the difficulty complained of. Thus the history of a family, conspicuous in the criminal annals of our country by the participation of one of its members in the murder of his Sovereign (Edward the Second), and again in the death of the brother of that Sovereign (the Earl of Kent), has been buried in the tomb of obscurity.

John Maltravers, ob. 24 Edw. I.

.....	John Lord Matravers senior, æt. 30, 25 Edw. I. d. 16 Feb. 38 Edw. III.	Agnes, widow of John de Argentine and John de Nerford.
John Lord Matravers jun. knighted 34 Edw. I. d. 23 Edw. III.	.....	John Matravers of Hook, d. 15 June, 9 R. II.	Elizabeth, remarried to Sir Humphrey Stafford.
Henry.	Joan, w. of Sir John de Kaynes. Alianor, w. of Sir John Arundel.	Maud, wife of Peter de la Mare.	Elizabeth, mar. to Humphrey, son of Sir Humphrey Stafford.

In this very imperfect and erroneous genealogy a generation is omitted between the first and second descents; and another between the second and John Maltravers of Hooke. It is true that fuller information has since been published in Hutchins's Dorsetshire, where a pedigree of Maltravers, of Litchet, will be found in vol. iii. p. 19, and one of Maltravers, of Hooke, in vol. ii. p. 492; but the former of these is much confused by the introduction of the wife of John Maltravers, of Melbury Sampford, temp. Ric. II. to the side of John his great-grandfather, temp. Edw. II. which error is partly, but not wholly, removed in Banks's Extinct Peerage; whilst the last-named author acknowledges himself to be entirely at a loss respecting the Melbury Sampford branch.

The following pedigree has been carefully considered; and, if not perfectly satisfactory, is still, as far as it extends, supported by proofs:

- Walter Maltravers, lord of Sumerford, Wilts, temp. Ric. I. (Plac. Abbr. p. 13.)
  - John Maltravers held land at Wellcombe, Dorset. = Alice, dau. of ...., remar. to Walter de Turberville, before 2 John (1201). (Plac. Abbr. p. 29.)
    - ..... John Maltravers held one fee in Chelrey, Berks, and another at Somerford, Wilts (Testa de Nevill, pp. 123, 140.) = ...
      - .... = John Maltravers, of Litchet Maltravers; ob. 1296. Esch. 25 Edw. I.
        - Sir John Maltravers, junior, aged 30 in 1296; ob. 9 Edw. II. (1316). = Milicensia.[a]
        - Alice, m. Elias Giffard of Brimsfield. ⊥
        - Robert Maltravers, mar. 1313. (Cl. 6 Edw. II. m. 24, Vinc. B. B. 144.) = Lucy only dau. of Giles de Braose, by his first wife Beatrice, dau. and heir of John de St. Eloria, æt. 7, 1305; inherited the manor of Crowell, co. Oxf. from her mother.
          - John Maltravers.
        - Matilda, m. John de Lenham, jun. 6 Edw. II. a widow 19 Edw. II. (Madox's Baronia Anglica, p. 128.)
        - Ela, or Eva, eldest dau. of Maurice 3rd Lord Berkeley, by Eva, dau. of Eudo la Zouch. = John Lord Maltravers, K. B. senior, Baron by writ of summons, 5 June 4 Edw. III. (1351) and 18 Nov. 25 Edw. III. (1351); obiit 16 Feb. 1365. Esch. 38 Edw. III. Buried at Litchet.
          - John Lord Maltravers, K. B. junior, summoned to Parliament with his father; obiit 1350. Esch. 23 Edw. III. n. 52. = Wensliana, who survived her husband. a
          - Agnes, dau. of William Bereford, mar. 1st to Sir John de Argentine, ob. 1318. ⊥ 2d to Sir John de Nerford (ob. 1329); her will dated 1375.
            - Margaret (will of Agnes Maltravers). = Sir John Maltravers of Hooke and Crowell; obiit 47 Edw. III. (Hutchins.) = Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Robert Cifrewast, of Hooke and Crowell. b
        - Roger Maltravers,[b] ob. 1352. Esch. 35 Edw. III.

[a] MS. Lansd. 860, B. f. 378.

- Henry Lord Maltravers, aged one year at his father's death; obiit cœl. before his grandfather.
- Joan, aged 22 years at her grandfather's death; obiit s. p.; mar. 1st. Sir Robert de Roos, will dated 1383, sepult. in the Abbey of Tarent, Dorset; 2dly, Sir John de Kaynes.
- Alianor, aged 19 years at her grandfather's death; obiit 1404, æt 60, (Vincent.) mar. 1st Sir John Arundel, will dated 26 Nov. 1379; drowned same year in the Irish sea. ⅄ 2dly, Reginald Lord Cobham, obiit Jan. 10, 1405 ⅄

- Sir John Maltravers of Hooke and Crowell; obiit 15 June 1386; Esch. 9 R. II. sepult. at Abbotsbury, Dorset.
  - Elizabeth, dau. and coheir of Sir William Aumerle, rem. to Sir Humphrey Stafford, senior, "of the silver hand," will dated 8 Sept. 1405; Sepult. at Abbotsbury.
    - Sir John Maltravers[c] of Melbury Sampford and of Melbury Osmond; bur. at Melbury Sampford.
      - Joan, dau. and heir of Sir Walter Foliot of Melbury Osmond, by Alda (or Alice) dau. and coheir of Sir Laurence Sampford of Melbury Sampford; remar. to Alexander Venables, who d. 23 Edw. III. (Vincent).
        - Matilda, aged 18 at her father's death; obiit 11 Hen. IV. s. p.; mar. 1st Peter De La Mare; 2dly Sir John Dynham.
        - Elizabeth, aged 8 years at her father's death. — Sir Humphrey Stafford, jun. will dated ⅄1442.
        - Joan, obiit 44 Edw. III. s. p. (Harl. MSS. 2223); mar. Ralph Warren.
        - Elizabeth, obiit s. p.; mar. 1st. Roger Folville of Clonne; his widow 1386 (Rot Plac. 10 R. II.) widow of Wm. Latimer, 1412.
        - Alice, m. John Bruning;[d] both buried at Melbury Sampford. ⅄

[b] Dugdale has omitted another generation in the descent of this race after it had merged in the house of Arundel; see Tierney's History of Arundel, p. 289.

[c] In the epitaph of his grandson John Bruning, in Melbury Sampford Church, he is styled "Joan. Mautravers, militis, qui fuit 2 filius Joan. Mautravers, militis, D'ni de Hoke."

[d] The following is an imperfect copy of an inscription, now lost, which appears to have recorded their names, together with that of Sir John Maltravers her father, "Hic jacent Johannes Maltravers jun. miles, sec. [filius, &c. as in the inscription quoted in the preceding note; et Joanna] uxor ejus, filia et heres Walteri Foliot, militis; et [Johannes Bruning, et Alicia uxor] ejus, filia et hères predicti Johannis Maltravers." The unusual double style of this epitaph, as thus supplied, corresponds with another still remaining in the church, recording Sir Laurence Sampford and Sir Walter Foliot, with their wives; and there are are also three others to the Bruning family, full of names, but deficient in dates, which are printed in Hutchins, vol. ii. p. 244. They were evidently all inscribed when Alice, wife of William Bruning, son of John, repaired the monuments in 1467. The descent of the family of Bruning, or Browning, for several generations, will be found in Fosbroke's Abstracts of Smyth's Lives of the Berkeleys, p. 76.

GRANT FROM THE CORPORATION OF LONDON TO THE COLLEGE OF MINOR CANONS OF ST. PAUL'S OF A PIPE FROM THE CONDUIT IN PATERNOSTER ROW.

At the east end of Paternoster Row stood the church of St. Michael le Querne, in front of which "by Paul's-gate" was a Conduit. "William Eastfield, Maior, the ninth of Henry the Sixth, at the request of divers Common-Councels, granted it to be; whereupon, in the 19. of the same Henry, 1000. Markes was granted by a Common-Councell, towards the workes of this Conduit, and the reparations of other. This is called the Little Conduit in West Cheap, by Paul's Gate." Stow's Survey, fol. 1633, p 388. The hall of the Minor Canons was situated on the north side of Pardon Church-yard, which was on the north side of the Cathedral Church, east of the Bishop's palace; and consequently in the immediate neighbourhood of the Conduit. See the Appendix to Dugdale's St. Paul's, No. xxxv.

DOCUMENTS RELATING TO THE SCHOOL AND GILD AT STRATFORD-UPON-AVON.

The Constitutions and Ordinances of this Gild, together with some particulars of its foundation, will be found in the Gentleman's Magazine for Feb. 1835; and some extracts from the Gild Ledger in that for April. The originals of the following documents are in the possession of the Corporation of Stratford.

Indenture relative to the foundation of a Free Grammar School.

Leland says, this Grammar School was "of the foundation of one Jolepe, Mr. of Arts, borne in Stratford;" which is repeated without further information in Dugdale's History of the County. By the following indenture the founder's name will be shown to have been Thomas Jolyffe; but it is remarkable that a schoolmaster is mentioned in the document which follows, at the earlier period of the beginning of the previous reign. The School is not noticed in Carlisle's History of the Grammar Schools of England and Wales. It was directed to be maintained by the Corporation in the charter granted to the town in 7 Edw. VI.

EXTRACTS FROM THE PARISH REGISTERS, AND EPITAPHS, AT HAWNES, CO. BEDFORD.

The Register commences in 1596. From the Newdegates, who are first mentioned in the following entries, the manor passed by purchase, successively to the Lukes of Cople; then to Sir Humphrey Winch; then in 1667 to Sir George Carteret, who was created Baron Carteret of Hawnes in 1681; and it has since descended by inheritance, to the present Lord Carteret, whose uncle, the Hon. Henry-Frederick Thynne, was also styled of Hawnes, when raised to the same title by a new creation in 1784.

In the south aile, on a marble monument affixed to the wall:

"Sacred to the memory of Eleanor, Lady Carteret,[d] in whom a superior understanding, manners the most engaging, and the warmest benevolence were united. This marble is inscribed by her affectionate husband Henry Frederick, Lord Carteret; who, after more than fifty years enjoyment of her society, now offers this testimony of his continuing remembrance and regard."

In the chancel, near the door, on the floor:

"Robert Hagar, Vicar of Hawnes, died Oct. 15, 1780, aged 53."

In the church-yard; on a tomb, at the east end:

"Sacred to the memory of the Rev. Thomas Bedford,[e] A. M., vicar of this parish, who died May 29, 1793, aged 53 years. Also of William, son of the Rev. Thomas Bedford, who died Oct. 2d, 1791, in his infancy."

At the west end:

"Beneath this tomb, with her father, rests the body of Mary Bedford, who died the 31st January, 1806, aged 29 years."

On a grave-stone within the same iron railing:

"In hope of a joyful resurrection to eternal Life through the mercy of God in Christ Jesus, here rests the mortal part of the Rev. Thomas Bedford, A. M., vicar of Wilshamstead, who departed this life March 9th, 1816, aged 28 years."

CHURCH NOTES FROM ELLESMERE, CO. SALOP.

Mr. Lloyd's collections, from public records, relative to the history of the manor and castle of Ellesmere, have been printed in the first Volume of this Work, pp. 233—237.

The Church, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, is placed on an eminence at the entrance of the town, and contains some interesting features of ancient architecture. It is a large cruciform building with a finely proportioned central tower, crowned with eight pinnacles, and having on each side handsome double windows.

The exterior of the Church presents various styles. In the north wall of the nave are the remains of four circular arches evidently of Norman erection, but now blocked up, and which served to a north aile not now remaining, each arch having inserted within it a square mullioned window of three divisions. The west side of the north transept appears to have had a like communication from the aile.

The door leading to the north transept displays a small, though beautiful arch, of the period when the circular arch was giving way to the pointed style.

The eastern window has been renewed, and is a good pattern of the style which prevailed about Henry the Seventh's time. The western window is of similar design.

The south or Otely aile and transept have windows nearly circular; that at the eastern extremity is remarkably broad for its height, and filled with most elegant tracery. From the date 1571 on one of the battlements, this portion of the building was no doubt erected at that time. A new porch corresponding in style has lately been erected as an entrance to the transept, by Robert Clarke, Esq.

The windows of the north transept and aile have arches quite obtuse; the date 1668 on a beam in the interior probably denotes its repair.

At the western and northern entrances are niches with basins for holy water, in a good state of preservation.

THE INTERIOR

is much disfigured by ponderous and unsightly galleries, which extend over the whole length of the nave, which is upwards of sixty feet, and over the spacious transepts, as well as block up some of the arches of the chancel.[a]

The tower is supported by four lofty pointed arches springing from piers having the remains of rich clustered capitals, but the beauty of these arches is in some measure obscured by the belfry.

The transepts are separated from the side ailes of the chancel by very broad pointed arches, resting on octangular columns with plain capitals. The chancel has on each side three pointed arches in the style of Henry the Fourth's time.

The ceiling of the chancel and choir is of oak paneling; and that of the Oteley aile is beautifully carved, and the intersections of the beams adorned with bosses and various devices, the different compartments having nebule quatrefoils.

The eastern window is filled with some modern stained glass, beautifully executed by Mr. David Evans, of Shrewsbury, at the expense of Robert Clarke, Esq. It consists of figures of St. Paul and the four Evangelists, the arms of David Prince of Wales and Emma dau. of King Henry II., Llewellyn the Great and Joan natural daughter of King John; Le Strange impaling Ferrers; Le Strange inpaling Ingham; Egerton quartering Bassett; the see of Lichfield; and various other devices.[b] This was erected in 1829; and in the year 1834 the chancel was enriched with two other windows of stained glass by the liberality of the same benefactor, and the work of the same able artist. That on the south side contains, in its central division, the armorial bearings of the late Earl of Bridgewater and his Countess, above which is placed the badge of Henry the Seventh, and beneath the arms of the Isle of Man. In the first light are the coats of Le Strange, Bassett of Blore, Stanley, and Egerton; and in the third those of Mortimer, Brandon impaling Clifford, Grey, and Byron. The arch of the window contains the arms of Sir John Kynaston, Bart. and C. K. Mainwaring, Esq. of of Oteley.

[a] The pews in these galleries are freehold property, and of course only available by purchase from the respective possessors; otherwise, if the nave was taken down and rebuilt with the addition of side ailes, the Church would more conveniently accommodate a larger congregation, as well as afford a good situation for the organ, which is much wanted.

[b] A full description of this window will be found in the Gentleman's Magazine. vol. XCIX. pt. ii. p. 115.

The small window on the north side has the armorial bearings of the present Vicar,—the Rev. J. A. Cotton, A. Matthews (of Lyth), T. B. Owen, and E. Dymock, Esquires.

At the further end of the gallery over the south transept is a diminutive organ, made by John Snetzler, but very powerful and sweet in its tone. In the tower is a peal of eight bells.

The Church is in length 138 feet, of which the nave is 64 ft., the space under the tower 24 ft., and the chancel 50 ft., breadth of nave and transepts 80 ft.

Ellesmere Church appears never to have been rich in ancient memorials. Against the south-west wall of the Oteley chancel is a recumbent figure, which from its battered appearance (having sometime been exposed to the weather) seems at first sight to be of great antiquity, but a little examination will not assign it to a very remote period; it appears to be the figure of a knight cut in stone, and resting on a shallow basement from the floor, above which are the remains of a shield surmounted by the helmet and mantle. Though the person whom this figure was intended to represent is unknown, yet, from a lion passant guardant appearing on the shield, it may throw some light on the subject to mention, that the Kynastons of Oteley in Shropshire quartered these arms from the marriage of an heiress of Edward ap Morgan, of Alrhey.

At the eastern end of the same chancel is a fine altar-tomb, on which are recumbent figures of marble, much mutilated, with the following inscription on the ledge:

SVB . HOC . TVMVLO . SECVNDV' . ADVENTV' . DOMINI . NOSTRI . JESV . CHRISTI . FRANCISCVS . KYNASTON . AR . ET . MARGARETA . VXOR . EIUS . FILIA . FRANCISCI . CHARLTON . AR . EXPECTANT . QVI . QVIDE' . FRANCISCVS . KYNASTON . OBIT . QVARTO . DIE . AVGVSTI . ANNO . DOMINI . 1590.

At the head of the monument are the following quarterings in marble, the colours of which are destroyed: 1. A lion rampant; 2. A chevron engrailed between three mullets; 3. On a chevron three mullets; 4. On a chief a raven; 5. A chevron engrailed; 6. A lion passant guardant; 7. On a bend three garbs.

In the same aile a long oblong tablet bears the following inscription:

Sacred to the memory of Edward Hatchett, of Lee in this parish, who d. 1754, æt. 58, and of Eliz. his wife only dau. of Robt Bulkeley of Coedana, co. Anglesea, and sister of Samuel B. Esq. of London, whose only child, the Rev. Sam. Bulkeley, D.D. Prebendary of Bristol, died 1809, s. prole, and lies interred in the Church of Hatfield, co. Hertford, by the side of his beloved wife, the Lady Frances Anne, eldest dau. of Chas. Earl of Peterborough and Monmouth, who d. Oct. 4, 1798, æt. 62.[c]

Within the same vault of the Church at Hatfield are the remains of Hugh Bulkeley Owen, Esq. of Tedesmere Hall, Salop, & of Coedana, grandson of the above Edw. & Eliz. Hatchett, & 2d son of Rich. B. H. Esq. of Lee, & Martha Owen his wife. He served the office of High Sheriff of Anglesea in 1812, & died Dec. 25, 1818, s. p.

In a vault underneath are interred the remains of the above R. B. Hatchett, Esq. of Lee, only son of the above Edward & Eliz. H,; he died Dec. 15, 1800, aged 80. Also the remains of Martha his wife, dau. (by his second wife Abigail) of Thomas Owen of Llunulloed near Machynlleth, co. Montgomery, Esq. & sister of Hugh Owen of Woodhouse, co. Salop. Esq. She died June 29th, 1792, æt. 79, and her brother, whose remains are interred in Old St. Chad's Ch. Shrewsbury on the fall of which edifice his monument was removed to the Church of St. Julian's in the same town, died June 28, 1764, having bequeathed the property which he purchased at Tedesmere, and elsewhere in Shropshire & Montgomeryshire, to his sister Martha Hatchett, & the estate of Woodhouse to his kinswoman Mrs. Sarah Owen.

Underneath lie also the remains of the following persons. Mary Hatchett, eldest dau. of the above R. & M. H. She died Feb. 27, 1800, aged 46.

Bulkeley H. eldest son of the above R. & M. H., he served the office of High Sheriff for the co. Merioneth in 1800, & d. Aug. 23, 1800, aged 80.

Hugh Jas. H. & Sam. Bulk. H. 2nd & 3rd sons of the above B. H.; the former d. May 25, 1791, aged 3 weeks, & the latter July 21, 1817, aged 24 years.

[c] The epitaph of Lady Frances Bulkeley, at Hatfield, will be found in Clutterbuck's Hertfordshire, vol. iii. p. 367.

Denbigh, & Rector of Llanymowddy, co. Merioneth, & half sister of Martha Owen, the wife of R. B. H. She died 1795, aged 73.

Eliz. Mainwaring, relict of Thos. M. of Brombro, co. Chester, Esq. by Mary his wife, eldest dau. & coheiress of Chas. Kynaston of Otely Park, in this parish. She departed this life 3 Jan. 1818, aged 84.

Abigail Mason, sister to the above Eliz. M. died unmarried 1797, aged 62.

This monument was erected at the expense of Mary, widow of the above B. H. & their only surviving son Thos. Bulkeley Owen, Esq. of Tedesmere Hall.

At the east end of the south aile is a neat tablet of white marble, with a black border, and surmounted by a small urn.

In memory of Penelope Vaughan, neice of the late Edward Kynaston, Esq. of Oteley Park in this parish. Her remains, at her own particular request, were deposited by the side of her mother in the chancel of the Church of Withington. Having endured with much fortitude the pangs of a long and severe illness, she was released from her sufferings on the 21st Nov. 1805, in the 72d year of her age.

On another tablet in the same aile:

In memory of Mrs. Mary Walford, who died March 7, 1780, aged 78, and whose remains are deposited in a vault adjoining the south porch encompassed with iron railing. Also Robert, the son of the said Mary W. who died April 4, 1798, aged 55. Likewise the body of Rich. brother of the said Rob. W. who died Mar. 6, 1822, aged 73. Likewise in the same vault is deposited the body of the Rev. E. Evans, late minister of Dudleston and Welsh Hampton, who lived as mess-mate in the same family upwards of 60 years, died Apl 17, 1823, aged 88.

Another tablet commemorates several of the family of Gough.

In the north aile of the chancel is a brass plate:

In memory of Mr. John Higginson, ironmonger, of Ellesmere, who was exemplary in his piety towards God, and the first promoter of bringing the organ to be erected in ye Duke's chancel, and died lamented, 1st Dec. 1771, aged 75.

Near the western entrance of the nave is a brass plate inscribed thus:

Near this place lies the body of Ann the wife of Thos. Jackson of this town, who was interred Dec. 3d, 1733, aged 50. Also near this place:

Likewise her husband, who the world must own
Neighbour to many, was a foe to none;
Ready to serve, yet serv'd no private end,
Would e'en distress himself t' assist his friend;
True to his Prince,—in principles as just,
Faithful in secrets, and sincere in trust;
Whose spotless hand and uncorrupted soul,
No trick e'er daub'd, nor paltry act made foul.
Blest with enough,—was hospitably free,
Yet thriv'd by prudence and economy,
His policy took honour for its guide,
So liv'd in credit, and in credit dy'd.

Thos. Jackson, July 13, 1746, aged 59. Also Margaret, aged 2 years, and Richard, aged 18, their children.

In the nave are the following memorials (on neat marble tablets):

To the memory of Francis Lloyd, Esq. who died 3 Aug. 1830, in the 79th year of his age, greatly beloved and highly respected in every relation of life, as a husband, a father, and a friend, and for upwards of twenty-five years an active Magistrate for the County of Salop.

In memory of Mary the wife of Thos. Jones, of Oswestry, d. April 13, 1752, æt. 45. William Powell of Tetchill, d. Jan. 24, 1762, aged 52. Also Mary aged 16. Arthur P. d. Nov. 20, 1770, aged 29. Elizabeth Jones, d. Feb. 11, 1771, aged 35. Jane, w. of Will. Powell, d. Mar. 31, 1780, aged 77.

In memory of the Rev. Edward Moreton, who was very justly esteemed and beloved in his life-time, and his death as greatly lamented. He d. Feb. 22, 1776.

To the memory of Edward Acherly, Esq. late of the Cross, who died 13 Feb. 1829, aged 72 years, and whose remains are interred in his family vault in the aile opposite to this place, with those of his father, Roger A. Esq. and his mother, Dorothy A.

Against the wall of the church yard is a marble tablet in memory of Rear-Admiral William Hay, who died Dec. 27, 1801, aged 67 years.

ACCOUNT OF THE SEVERAL BRANCHES OF THE FAMILY OF CHAMBERLAYNE.

From an old writing endorsed "The Chamberlaynes Pedigree given me by Cozen W. Fletcher," in possession of J. Chamberlayne Chamberlayne, Esq. the present representative of the family at Maugersbury, co. Gloucester.

"The Armes & Pedigrees of the Chamberlaines, descended from the family of Earl Tankervile, who came in with William the Conqueror, of Normandy, which was John de Tankervile Count Tankervile, and after the Conquest returned into Normandy; & when John de Millaine, Earle of Leicester, rebelled against William the Conqueror, John de Tankervile subdued him & took him prisoner,[a] whereupon the Conqueror gave the Earle of Leicester's coate-armour to be quartered with the armes of Tankerville.

"The paternal coat of Tankervile was, Gules, a fess between 3 escallops Or;[b] the Crest a mule's head in a coronet; the arms of John de Millaine, Earl of Leicester, were Gules, an escocheon between 8 mullets, as Sir Edwd Ferne and Mr. Brampton, two of the most ancient writers of Heraldry, agree. Count John de Tankervile had issue John, who had issue Richard, Lord Chamberlayne to King Stephen; at which time surnames began in England, whereupon Richard assumed the name of Chamberlayne; he marryed the daughter of Galfrey, by whom he had Richard, who marryed the daughter of Sir Robert Eckney; who had issue Sr Richard Chamberlayne, who marryed the daughter and heir of Edward Mortin, Esq.; who had issue[c] Richard Chamberlayne, who marryed the daughter of Sr Richard Lovan;[d] who had issue Sr Richard Chamberleyne, who marryed death he married with Alderman Machin's widow,[q] by whom he had issue Sr John Chamberlayne,[r] and Edmund Chamberlayne,[s] and one daughter,[t] mother to the now Lady Danvers. (Note, this Lady Danvers was about ye year 1640).

"Sr Thomas Chamberlayne had a third wife Anne Kirkeet, sister to the wife of Sr George Monke of Devonshire, grandfather to the Duke of Albemarle, and by her had only one son Thomas Chamberlayne of Adington (Oddington) in the County of Glocester, Esqr, who marryed the daughter and heir of Edward Badghett, who had issue by her, Thomas, John, Leonard, George, and Edward, and Anne, Margaret, Frances, and Elizabeth, and Christian, another daughter by a second venter.

"The name and pedigree of Chamberlayne, descended from the Earl Tankervile, who came into England with William the Conquerer, was John de Tankervile of Tankervile Castle in Normandy, who had John, Ld Chamberlayne to H. the First, who had Richard, Lord Chamberlayne to King Stephen, who marryed the daughter of Galfrey, who had Wm Lord Chamberlayne to H. the Second, who subdued Robert de Bellemont Earle of Millaine in Normandy, and Earle of Leicester in England, with Hugh de Mountfort his sister's son, and took them prisoners, and presented them both to the King. Whereupon the King gave the Earle of Leicester's coat armour to be quartered with the arms of Tankervile, anno Dom. 1174. John Count de Tankervile, Chamberlayne of France, anno 1367. Sr Jno Chamberlayne, of the house of Oxfordshire, was a great Commander in the time of King Edward the Third. There is now a record in the Tower of London wherein its expressed, that the said King Edward the Third did grant to this Sr John Chamberlayne, by the name of Count Chamberlayne, Earl of Tankervile, Viscount de Millaine, high Constable of Normandy, a warrant to receive ten thousand marks which he had lent to the King's son in the conquering of France; he marryed the daughter and heir of the Lord Harling, Govr of Paris, who was possessed and seized in fee of the mannor and castle of East Harling, in the County of [q] She was Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Luddington, of the North.

[r] He died without issue.

[s] From whom was lineally descended the late Edmund John Chamberlayne of Maugersbury, Esq. who died Feb. 12, 1831. See Fosbroke's History of Gloucestershire, vol. ii. p. 405.

[t] Mentioned in Vincent's pedigree as Theophila wife of .... Hughs, Dr. of Physic.

Norfolk, and much more lands in that and other Countys. She was accounted the greatest female heir in England, and had many of the nobility of England suitors to her, but she refused all, and took this great Commander, who was fain to ask leave of Edward the 3rd to be a suiter to her before he went, and then addressed her with one hundred men in white armour mounted on stately horses, accoutred in warlike manner, and summoned East Harling Castle; she delivered up both herself and Castle to Sr John Chamberlayn. There is one of his family now at Barnam Brome, near Norwich; after his decease his Lady marryed with the Lord Scrope, from whom the Scropes family descended, and afterwards to Benefield of Norfolk; but she chosed and ordered herself to be buryed by her husband Chamberlayne; [u] there is a large history of this on the tomb of Chamberlayne and his lady in East Harling Church, and in the window of the great chambre in the said Castle, but all to this effect.

"The kindred and allyes of the house of the Chamberlayns of Gloucestershire were so numerous that one Dean Hurst, Rector of Burton on the Water, in the County of Gloucester, made a catalogue of the kindred and allyes, only in Glocestershire, where he found neare allyed to that family one hundred Gentlemen of 300*l.* p. ann.; 100 Gentn of 200*l.* p. ann.; and 100 Gentn of 100*l.* p. ann., besides many of much greater estates, and also saith that there cou'd not be a Jury of Gentn returned in Glocestershire but that one of them must be allyed to that family. This catalogue was found among Deane Hurst's writings after his death, about the year 1600."

[u] He and his wife in 1457 settled 9 marks annual rent, issuing out of Falconars manor, on the chantry priests who officiated in Sir Robert Herling's Chapel; according to his will, he was buried in a fine arched monument with his wife, on the north side of the chancel of East Herling in Norfolk.—See vol. I. of the present work, p. 21.

ABSTRACTS OF ANCIENT WILLS.

The following abstracts of Wills have been found among the genealogical collections in the Lansdowne MS. 860 A, and appear to have been taken from the originals by Mr. James Strangman (as were those in MS. Harl. 6148) about the reign of Elizabeth or James I. Where any will was previously published in Nicolas's Testamenta Vetusta, a reference has been made to that work, and such matter only given which affords additional information. There are also abstracts of the wills of Sir Robert Swillington (f. 379 b), Sir Fulke Fitzwarine (f. 376 b), Isabel Duchess of York (f. 336), Alice Lady West (f. 375), Sir Simon Felbrigg (f. 372), Alianor Countess of Arundel (f. 370 b), which may be compared with those in the Testamenta Vetusta; where, in p. 135, "the King of Armonie," mentioned by the Duchess Isabel, should be Armenia.

LIST OF PRIORS, AND EXTRACTS FROM THE CALENDAR, OF TYWARDRETH PRIORY, CORNWALL.

St. Andrew's Priory at Tywardreth, situated about half way between Lostwithiel and Fowey, was founded soon after the Conquest, and was a Cell to the Benedictine Abbey of SS. Sergius and Bacchus at Angers. At this distance of time it may be impossible to recover the complete succession of its Priors; the following is the best that I can now offer.

1. Osbert occurs Prior in the time of Robert Warelwast, Bishop of Exeter; consequently between 1155 and 1160, and, it is believed, was in the sequel Abbat of the mother house at Angers.

2. Baldwin, as Prior, witnessed a deed of Robert Fitzwilliam in Nov. 1169.

3. Theobald, it is probable, succeeded Baldwin.
4. Michael, whose obit was kept 6th March.
5. Hamelin, who died 1st April.
6. James, who died 24th March.
7. John Loenter, died 6th April.
8. Roger, whose anniversary was kept 12 October.
9. Roger, whose anniversary was kept 31 Oct.

The six preceding are from the Tywardreth Calendar, but the years are unrecorded.

10. Galfridus, or Geoffrey, was admitted Prior 22 May 1263.

11. Philip de Trembleyon, after a long superiority died 25 May 1333.

12. William Bonges, confirmed Prior 17 Novr 1333. One account states that he died 18 Oct. 1355; another fixes his death in 1371.

13. William de la Hay succeeded 1 Nov. 1371; ob. 18 June 1399.

14. John Maslyn followed: I find that he died Prior 7 Aug. 1406.

15. John Rogger, confirmed Maslyn's successor 18th Dec. 1406, and resigned his office 27 years later.

16. John Brentyngham succeeded 28 Oct. 1433, and died Prior 11th Oct. 1450.

17. William or Walter Barnecote was admitted Prior 31 Oct. 1450, and held his dignity until his decease 20 Nov. 1496.

18. Richard Marston or Martyn died Prior 4 Nov. 1510.

19. Thomas Colyns (son, I believe, of John Colyns and Alice his wife) succeeded on 25 Nov. 1510, and was the Prior at the dissolution of his house in 1536.

But the present object of the writer is not to attempt a history of the Priory, but to furnish some account of a folio Latin Manuscript now before him, which formerly belonged to it, and is still in a fair state of preservation. A considerable portion, he conceives, was written in the early part of the fifteenth century; but there is intrinsic evidence that certain parts were not written until the close of that century, and that several entries were made but within a short period antecedent to the suppression of the Monastery.

The work is divided into five parts. The first contains about thirty-six folios. On one side are placed the obits of the religious brethren under the title of Professi; on the other side occur the names of friends and benefactors under the title of Familiares. Many of the names in this Calendar are Norman; they would be too numerous and uninteresting to copy; some, however, with several curious memoranda interspersed, will be given towards the conclusion of this article.

The second part consists of nine folios; it contains the ceremonial of blessing the religious habit, and of receiving Novices. The following English dialogue, between the Prior, standing in the Chapter House surrounded by his brethren, and the Novice kneeling before him, may amuse the readers of the Collectanea:

Prior. What desire ye?

Novice. To be mad Broder.

P. Ys hit yowr wyl & yow hertely desyre to be parte taker of all massis and prayers and almys dede done yn holy place, or schall be done here after?

N. Ye.

P. Al so ys hit yowr wille to defende and to manteyne the righte of this holy plas to yowr power, where by God & Synt Androw may be the pesabeler servyd by yowr worde and godewille, as a trewe broder otghte to do?

N. Ye.

The third part has twenty-five folios, and comprehends thirty-three homilies selected from the works of SS. Augustine, Maximus, Leo the Great, and John Chrysostom. One of these was read at the collation or evening refreshment, granted to the Community before complin, on most of the week days in Lent, viz. from the first Monday until the last Wednesday inclusively; for no collation was allowed on the four first days, nor on the last three days of that penitential season. In more ancient times the Lecture was taken from one of the twenty-four "Collationes Patrum,"[a] or Conferences of the Fathers of the Desert, and by degrees the refreshment itself obtained the name of Collation. For a long time the refreshment was confined to a draught of wine mingled with water; but gradually the relaxation of a morsel of bread or dried fruits was introduced.

The fourth part comprises in forty-one folios Usuard's Martyrologium. The dedication to Charles the Bald (fourth son of Louis le Debonnaire and grandson of Charlemagne, and who died in 877, æt. 54) begins thus, "Domino Regum piissimo Karolo, Usuardus indignus Sacerdos ac Monachus perhennem in Christo coronam." The author states that, in obedience to the orders of this "wisest of Princes," he had ventured to imitate the labours of St. Jerome, of venerable Bede, of Florus, the Deacon of Lyons, a contemporary,—that he had revised and added several notices, and had derived important assistance from one Stephanus. This Martyrologium begins with Christmas Eve.

The fifth part contains the rule of St. Benedict in twenty-one folios. "Hic Incipit Regula eximii Patris Benedicti."

We may now transcribe from the Calendar what is more generally interesting:

[b] Our Cornish readers may not have generally heard that the last of this family, Francis Tregian, Esq. after 28 years' close imprisonment under Queen Elizabeth, for adhering to the Catholic religion, was set at liberty by King James I. or that he retired to Lisbon and died there 25 Sept. 1608. His life in Latin (a rare duodecimo) was written by a relation, Francis Plunkett, and was published at Lisbon in 1655. A poetical compliment to Verstegan by this Francis Tregian is prefixed to the "Decayed Intelligence."

FORESTS OF SHROPSHIRE.

The cruel and insupportable hardships of the Forest laws, under sanction of which the most horrid tyranny and oppression were exercised for the sake of preserving the beasts of the chace (to kill any of which within the limits of a royal forest [a] was as penal as the death of a man) occasioned our ancestors to be not less jealous for their reformation than they were for the relaxation of the feudal rigours and other exactions introduced by our Norman monarchs; and accordingly, we find the immunities of the Carta de Foresta as warmly contended for as those of Magna Carta itself. By the former, which was confirmed in Parliament, 9 Henry III. many forests were disafforested or stripped of their oppressive privileges; and regulations were made in the regimen of those that remained. Henry, however, very soon commenced making fresh encroachments by extending the forests, and by enforcing their laws in places over which they had no legal jurisdiction; and his successor Edward I. pursued the same system until the difficulties he got into by his arbitrary conduct towards the then Earls of Hereford and Norfolk, enabled the Barons of the realm to extort from him a fresh confirmation of the two charters. On which occasion, for the better and more complete execution of the Carta de Foresta, or 'lesser charter' as it was called, the King agreed that new perambulations thereof should be made, whereby the exact boundaries of all the royal forests should be defined by a jury in each county; that all those places and lands which had by former encroachments been comprehended within their limits should be disafforested; and that Commissioners should be appointed to inquire into offences done contrary to both the charters; in every county three substantial men, knights, or other lawful, wise, and well disposed persons, which should be Justices, sworn and assigned by the King's letter.

[a] Besides the royal forests, there were in the county of Salop others which were in the hands of private individuals; but the latter, though called forests, were properly the same with chaces, being subject to the common law, and not to the forest laws, unless the jurisdiction were added in the original grant. These forest laws have fallen into total disuse since 1688.

In pursuance of this arrangement the perambulation of the royal forests took place; that of those in Shropshire, 28 Edw. I. A. D. 1300, as appears from the following important charter granted by that monarch, a copy of which stands No. 279 in the cartulary of Shrewsbury abbey, and shews by and before whom the same was made, the boundaries of the respective forests, and the places that ought to be disafforested; thereby enabling any one possessed of local knowledge of the county to form a tolerably correct estimate of the immense extent to which those encroachments had been carried.

[l] Better known by its more ancient as well as present name, the Wrekin. How and when it acquired the name of Mount Gilbert is not easily ascertained satisfactorily. It is so called in a grant of all the land of Upinton and land in Hodinton, which had been Hamo Peverell's, made by King Henry the Second, when at Salop 1152, or 1158, to Roger de Mussun, who is therein denominated "seruienti meo." This Roger de Mussun or Muisun, and his brother Gilbert de Muisun, had an extensive property in the neighbourhood of the Wrekin:—Gilbert may have been proprietor of it, and thence its appellation of Mount Gilbert, but this is only conjecture; he appears to have died without issue, and his property was probably inherited by his brother Roger, who left thirteen daughters, coheiresses; most of whom were benefactors to the priory of Wombridge, co. Salop, in the cartulary of which, tit. "Upinton," No. CV. is the following entry: "Be yt knowyne yat a parsell of wood on the north syde i' the Mont Gilbert Hyll beyng w'in the Lordshipe and franchys of Oppinton' wnto the Lordschip the whych was Sr Hamond Peu'ell and his Heyris and Sr Rog' Mwsson and his eyris of the sam Lordschip of Vpinton and the forsayd p'cell of wood strechyng fro the fott of the forsayd hyll wn to the tope beyng in bred half a myll saff halff a quart' and strechyng in lentht a myll rowght and smetht kepyng the same brede."

GEORGIUS OSBORN.

Below the chancel is the Columbarium, the last resting-place of the Osborns: and those of its cells which are occupied, have tablets bearing the following Inscriptions:—

(i). Within this place lye deposited all the remains that are not immortal of the Right honourable the Lady MARY OSBORN, 3d daughter of George (Montagu) Earl of Halifax, by Mary his 2d wife, daughter of Richard (Lumley) Earl of Scarborough, and wife to Sir Danvers Osborn of Chicksands, Baronet, born March 10th, 1718, died July 23d, 1743, in the 26th year of her age.
We are conscious, gentle reader, that in death itself there is no real calamity;
Yet, should reflection on the instability of human affairs, should the remembrance of so sweet a flower, cut off so early in her prime, raise the least tender passion in your breast, indulge one generous tear to the memory of this Lady, who, when alive, was all that could be wish'd in Woman.
Her very Person spoke her illustrious birth;
nor was her mind less noble:
In both of these a perfect ornament of her sex, and bright example of Human Nature's superior excellence.
The virtues that possessed her were many, unalloyed even with a tincture of the least vice!
Above all, the sincere and tender affection she bore her husband, was so predominant.—But no more:
Gratitude required this last testimony,
Love, Friendship, and Regard, inscribe the rest.
Here also rest the remains of the Husband of this excellent Lady;
few we presume will visit this awful place, who will not, with the most affectionate gratitude, remember that the several Virtues, which endear the Father, the Master, and the Friend, were all united in the most amiable character of Sir DANVERS OSBORN of Chicksands, Baronet, Governor of New York, son of John Osborn, Esq. (eldest son of Sr John Osborn, Baronet), and of Sarah, only daughter of George Byng, Viscount Torrington.
Born 17 Nov. 1715, died 12 Oct. 1753.

stone. Mr. Davenport was for many years Curate of Campton, under Dr. Osborn, and died at Shefford. His wife was sister to the Rev. William Cole of Ely, and also to Counsellor Cole.

On a tomb, near the north side of the church:

Sacred to the memory of George Hicks of Shefford, Gent.; who during the space of 52 years, practised the different branches of Medicine as Surgeon & Apothecary with general approbation & success, and having, by his persevering industry & attention, reared up in credit a numerous family, died Novr. 18th, 1804, aged 82 years.

His twelve surviving children in grateful piety towards so good a father, desire thus to perpetuate his memory.

Also of Alice & Ann his second & third wife. Alice died March 13th, 1763, aged 28. Ann died July 3^{d}, 1798, aged 56.

Also of Frances Hicks, sister of the above George Hicks, who died July 18th, 1773, aged 56.

On a handsome sarcophagus of freestone, inclosed with iron railing:

In the vault beneath are deposited the remains of Mr. John Fuller, late of London, Merchant: who, in full assurance of a joyful Resurrection, resigned his soul into the hands of his Redeemer, on the XXIInd of April MDCCCXIX, in the LXIIIrd year of his age. This Monument, a tribute to the memory of a father, most affectionately and deservedly beloved, is raised and inscribed by his only son Christopher Fuller.

Arms: Argent, three bars and a canton Gules; impaling, Gules, a lion rampant Arg. a chief Or. Crest: a lion's head erased.

On a gravestone near the north-east angle of the chancel:

Here lie the remains of Robert Bloomfield. He was born at Honington, in Suffolk, December 3, 1766; and died at Shefford, August 19, 1823.

Let his wild native wood-notes tell the rest.

This memorial of the author of "The Farmer's Boy," was erected at the expense of the Ven. Henry Kaye Bonney, Archdeacon of Bedford.

There were twelve tombs in Campton churchyard, the inscriptions on many totally obliterated, supposed to belong to the Ventris family..

There are gravestones for Roman Catholics of the names of Noddings, Bower, and Dixie.

In Shefford is a Chapel of Ease to the Church at Campton, which has of late years been much enlarged by the zeal, and chiefly at the expense, of the present Rector. The publication of banns, and all marriages and burials, take place at Campton; christenings indifferently at Campton or Shefford; but there is only one register.

In Shefford is a small endowed Roman Catholic Chapel, dedicated to St. George. The Rev. Christopher Taylor officiated here for many years; he died 4 June 1812, and was buried at Campton. (See his character in Gent. Mag. LXXXII. ii. 187). He had for one of his pupils, Bernard Edward Howard, the present Duke of Norfolk, who for some time resided with him at Shefford. The successors of Mr. Taylor were,

The Rev. John Potier. He was born in Hampshire; at 7 years of age went to school at Sedgeley Park, near Wolverhampton, and completed his education at Douay.—Previously to his coming to Shefford he kept a school, and officiated as Catholic Priest, at Old Hall Green, Herts. He died 31 March 1823, aged 65 years, and was buried in Hertfordshire.

The Rev. Mr. Chabot.

The Rev. Mr. Rolfe, now residing at Shefford.

ACCOUNT OF THE PROCTORS OF THE CHURCH OF YEOVIL, CO. SOMERSET, 36 HEN. VI. 1457-8.

Among the Churchwardens' Accounts published in the "Illustrations of the Manners and Expenses of Antient Times in England," 4to, 1797, there is very little that is of so early a date as the present Roll, which abounds with entries of much curiosity.

Its most remarkable feature in contrast to parish accounts of the present day, is the absence of any rate (unless we so regard the collection for the Easter wax); notwithstanding which, the proctors, or wardens, entered on their office with the large stock in hand of 12*l.* 11*s.* 0½*d.*, and left it with a balance of within twelve shillings of the same sum. The several sources of income were the sale of seats 10*s.* 10*d.*; the fees for tolling the bell 16*s.*; the rents for cart-standing by the church-yard 1*s.* 4*d.*; the gifts of pious individuals, &c. 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; and the rents of the parish weights 9*s.* 1*d.* Total of receipts, independent of the money in hand, 4*l.* 10*s.* 7*d.*

The first item is remarkable as affording an instance of seats in churches being made subject to sale at so early a period; though, as the only price paid appears to have been rendered to the benefit of the parish, it may be considered rather a fine on alienation or transfer, than either rent or purchase money. It may be observed that the two sexes must have sat in different parts of the church, as with only one exception the seats are let to other persons of the same sex as before. The price of seats varied from 10*d.* to 16*d.*, the former sum being paid for one behind the font, and the latter for one opposite the pulpit.

The fee for a simple knell was 6*d.*; but when the brazen (or latten) cross was likewise used, it was 10*d.* Many of the knells were tolled on the anniversaries of the defunct. The larger sum of 20*d.* was received from Richard Flynt, for the striking of the bells when his wife was carried through the town towards Crewkerne for burial there; and 3*s.* 4*d.* from Henry Byndelaus for the use of the cope, cross, and silver censer of the church at the funeral of his wife.

The total sum of 16*d.* was received from four several persons for the accommodation of allowing their carts to stand next the church yard wall, a spot still used for that purpose on market days.

Among the gifts or votive offerings are some curious items. Several other loans of the church furniture occur under this head. On the feast of St. Lawrence the linen and jewels of the church were sent to Stourminster, the market-town in the adjoining county of Dorset, about sixteen miles distant. Bradford, to which they were sent in the summer season, was doubtless the next parish of Bradford Abbas in Dorsetshire. Even the Vicar of Yeovil himself had to pay for the loan of the cross, cope, and censer belonging to the church, when he took them to the funeral of the neighbouring Rector of Berwick.[a] He had also to purchase for 13*s.* 4*d.* the gown which had been given by Margery Hagard, for prayer yearly in the pulpit. A coopertorium (it is believed a cassock) another gift, was sold for 3*s.* 6*d.* The parish kept a store of three sheep, and their wool was sold for 6*d.*; and in the expenses we find that the pasture for the two ewes cost 8*d.*

"The issues of the weights of the church," convey the information that a store of these important standards of value, duly authenticated, was kept by the parish, and that they were let out from year to year.

Such are the several heads of Receipt. Those of Expenditure are composed of a greater variety of subjects. A considerable number of the entries belong to the bells, which frequently required a new "bawdrye," or thong, or the mending of a clapper. For the great bell a new rope was made of thirteen pounds of hemp given by Tristram Burnell, and the making cost 4*d.* The provision and erection of a new bell was the most important work done during the year. On this object 100*s.* 8*d.* appears to have been spent in the year preceding, to which was added, for the making of the bell, 20*s.* 1*d.*; for carrying the old broken bell to Bristol 5*s.*, for bringing the new bell home 6*s.* 8*d.*, for its suspension, to three carpenters 2*s.* to Richard Hosyer (one of the accompting proctors) superintending the work 6*d.*, and to Guy Corveser (the other) 2*d.* To these expenses were added several other items; in which it is remarkable that, whilst the bell was brought from Bristol, the cable to raise it was procured from Montacute, and the nails and bolts from Sherborne. These items are wound up with one characteristic of such operations in all ages: "And in victuals and drink for the said men helping to raise the bell into the belfry during two days and a half, 2*s.* 2½*d.*"

The minor bells are also thus mentioned; "For a new clapper for the bell serving for the body of Christ 1*d.* For a string bought for the Salsyngbelle 2*d.*"

For two ells and a half of linen cloth for two banners of the church to be carried round the fields, probably on beating the parish boundaries, was paid 15*d.*; and for dying half of the same 1*d.*; and in making the banners 6*d.*; and for seven wooden rods to carry them in procession 2½*d.* Again, for three ells of linen cloth for the dex (desk?) at 8*d.* an ell, with the painting of the same, 8*s.* 8*d.* For a silken cloth bought to lie upon the altar of St. Thomas 16*d.*; and for two hesses to lie over the biers 2*s.* For ten ells of woollen cloth of a crimson (blodii) colour to lie before the high altar, for the preservation of the vestments at the principal feasts, 4*s.* 4*d.* A new surplice also was made, for which eleven ells of linen were bought, which cost 4*s.* 6*d.* and the making and thread 21*d.*

Of annual customs and observances the following notices occur:

Lent. "For holding the general anniversary," or obit, 8*s.* 3*d.*

Easter. "For making the Sepulchre, with the placing of the canopy, 1*d.* For four iron staples for the covering of the Lord's body 1*d.* For wax bought to renew the paschal light, with its making, 12*d.*" As we find in the receipts that 7*s.* 6*d.* was collected for this special object, the parish purse was considerably benefited thereby.

Whitsuntide. "For cirribus? bought for the vestry towards the feast of pentecost, 1*d.*"

Christmas. "For a torche made for the high altar, viz. for four pounds of wax, at 5½*d.* a lb., 22*d.*, for twelve pounds of rosin 9*d.*, for match yeerns 4*d.*, verdegrece . . , and in the making of the torch 10*d.*" Richard Hosyer again gave his assistance in this work, and took 2*d.* for his trouble; as he did on spending half a day on the carpenter's work in the belfry; and again for carrying the ladder when a window was mended.

Corpus Christi. "To the ringers for ringing whilst the procession went round the town 1*d.* And to John Mershe for the placing of the canopy, with the mending of one parish surplice, 1*d.*"

To these memorials of the religious observances we may add that, "For drink given to the ringers when it thundered, 1*d.*"

Of the remaining items the most remarkable are, for cleaning and scouring the great latten candlesticks standing before the high altar, with two other small candlesticks, 8*d.* For making three candles with the store wax to burn on the high altar, 1*d.* For greasing the bells throughout the year, 4*d.* For washing the church linen during the year, 3*s.* For a pair of clasps for the great book lying in the chancel, 6*d.* For the parchment used for this roll 2*d.* and for making and finishing this account 4*d.*

The total expenditure was 101*s.* 1½*d.*

EXTRACTS FROM THE PARISH REGISTERS OF CAMBERWELL, SURREY.

The first Register begins in 1557, and is a transcript to the year 1621.

The principal families [a] residing at Camberwell, whose pedigrees are entered in the Visitations of 1623 and 1662, are Scott, Muschamp, Draper, Bowyer, Duke, Gardiner, Grymes, Turner, Cherry, Harper, Shelbury, Vernon, Fox, and Wytham. The entries of Gardiner have been already given in the pedigree at p. 15 of this volume; of Harper, Fox, and Wytham, none have been found. Those of the other leading families will now be given distinctly, and then the most remarkable of other names.

FAMILY OF DOWE, OR DOVE.[b]

Arms. Party per chevron Az. and Vert, three doves with wings addorsed Arg. membered Gules. Crest. A dove, close, Proper, membered Gules, within a wreath Vert, fructed Gules and banded Or.

This family is not noticed in the Visitations; but in a table in the volume of Surrey pedigrees, MS. Harl. 5830, f. 108, its connection with Camberwell is shown to have commenced at a very early period. Henry Dove of Camberwell was slain at Bosworth field under King Richard III. having married Joan, daughter of Thomas Brereton of Cheshire, "a younger brother;" both of them, as well as John Brereton the grandfather of Joan, were buried in Camberwell Church,—of course before the period of the registers.[c]

John Dove, his son and heir, married Margaret, daughter of —— Pike, of Nutfield in Sussex; and had issue John, the father of John, Edward, and John; another John, of whom presently; Henry, and Oliver, s. p.

John Dove married Katharine, daughter of —— Waker of Carshalton,

[b] The orthography of the name was changed from Dowe or Doue to Dove. The same was the case with another family of the name, or a branch of the same, who bore for arms the same doves with a fess and different field, of whom some particulars will be found in Wilson's History of Merchant-taylors' School, pp. 1149, 1150, 1164.

Elizabeth Dowe, bur. 3 Apr. 1558.

Walter Dowe, gent. bur. 26 Sept. 1562.

Bridgett Dowe, his dau. bap. 16 Feb. 1560; bur. 20 Oct. 1562.

Alice Dowe, another dau. bur. 25 Oct. in the same year.

John, son of John Doue, bap. 9 May 1562.

This is unquestionably the same person who in 1580, being then 18, was elected from Westminster School a student of Christ Church, Oxford; was afterwards D.D. and Rector of St. Mary Aldermary, in London. He was a celebrated preacher, and author of several publications, an account of which will be found in the Athenæ Oxonienses, where Wood styles him "a Surrey man, born of plebeian parents." He died Apr. 19, 1618; but it is not known where he was buried. He married Frances, only daughter of Thomas Blague,[f] D.D. Dean of Rochester, by whom he had an only daughter, Brooke Dove, and secondly Anne, daughter of —— Carleton, of Bridewell, co. Oxford.

Walter, son of John Dowve, bap. 18 Feb. 1565[-6].

Elizabeth and Dorathie, daus. of John Dove, bap. 27 Feb. 1569.

Jone, daughter of Henry Dove, bur. 21 Oct. 1570.

Agnes, dau. of Henry, bap. 30 July 1572.

Margaret, wife of John Dowe, bur. 23 Apr. 1582.

There is a brass figure in Camberwell Church to the memory of this Margaret, wife of Mr. John Dove, the daughter of Matthew Kelett of Surrey, Gent.[g] and also the arms of Dove impaled by, Arg. on a mount Vert a bear Sable chained and armed Or, which coat was confirmed to Matthew Kelett, of Ripley, Surrey, 1 Oct. 4 Edw. VI. She died 11 Apr. 1582, having had issue five sons (of whom Dr. Dove was one) and four daughters.

Mr John Dove and Mrs Anne Knightbridge were married at Streatham, 15 Nov. 1632.

[f] Thomas Blague, S. T. B. Master of Clare hall, Camb. and Rector of Bangor, was installed Dean of Rochester Feb. 1, 1591, and died in Oct. 1611. See more of him in Newcourt's Repertorium, vol. ii. p. 91. In the pedigree his name is erroneously written Blagrave.

[g] The pedigree erroneously calls him Nathaniel Collet, of Sands, Surrey.

FAMILY OF SCOTT.

Arms. Arg. on a fess Sable three boar's heads couped Or. Crests. 1. A cup Arg. of fire Proper; 2. A boar's head couped Arg. a pheon fixed fesswise in his neck Sable.

An erroneous and imperfect pedigree of Scott is printed in the Hist. of Surrey, iii. 406. The following is taken from that in the MS. Harl. 1561, f. 43, and from the Visitation of 1662. It appears that William Scott, by Isabella, (who died 18 Sep. 5 Hen. V.) daughter and heiress of William Beckwell, had issue William, aged 7 in 5 Hen. V. who, by Margaret, dau. and coh. of —— Bredinghurst, had issue John Scott, Baron of the Exchequer; and Agnes the wife of William Muschamp, of Camberwell.

John Scott was Sheriff of Surrey and Sussex in 1520; was constituted third Baron of the Exchequer,[a] 15 May 20 Hen. VIII. (1529); and died 7 Sept. 1532. He married Elizabeth, dau. of Richard Skynner, and sister and coheiress to William Skynner, of Camberwell, Esq.[b]; by whom he had issue John his son and heir; and Edward, who died 29 Sept. 1538 (epitaph in Camberwell Church, with a figure in brass, engraved in Hone's Year Book, p. 914); and Elizabeth, mar. to —— Appleyard. The monument of the Baron of the Exchequer still remains in Camberwell Church, with representations, on brass plates, of himself, attired in armour, his wife, four sons, and seven daughters. This is engraved in Lysons's Environs.

John Scott, Esq. his son and heir,[c] lord of the manor of Camberwell Buckingham's, and Sheriff of Surrey and Sussex in 1548, married three wives: 1. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of John Robins, of London, merchant of the Staple of Calais, by whom he had issue John, Richard, Edward, William, Bartholomew, Acton; 2. Catharine,[d] widow of John Sandford, and had issue Margaret, who was married to Edward Stone (see hereafter); 3. Margaret Borton, and had issue Edgar and Southwell, who both died s. p. The nine children already named are mentioned in the epitaph erected by the widow of his son Bartholomew; but in his will dated 3 Nov. 1557, it appears that he had, besides Margaret, four other daughters, Elizabeth, Ann, Mary, and Friswith, bequeathing to each of the five 10*l.* on their marriage. His eldest son John died before him;

[a] There was a former John Scot, appointed Baron of the Exchequer 8 Jan. 4 Hen. VIII. (1513.)

[b] See the sepulchral memorials and epitaphs of the Skynners in Hist. of Surrey, iii. 426.

[c] In the month of November 1520 this gentleman, together with the Lords Ogle and Howard, Sir Matthew Browne, and Sir William Bulmer, was brought in the Star Chamber before the King "for diverse riots, misdemeaners and offences by them committed." See Holinshed, ed. 1577, vol. ii. p. 1507. It appears that they were all pardoned save the Lord Ogle, whose case being murder, he was remitted to the Common Law.

The lady appears to have had a second husband before Scott, probably the "Maister Wychurch," who was buried at Camberwell, 1 Dec. 1561. Strype, in his Life of the Archbishop, gives no further information of his last wife than that she survived him, "and living she was toward the latter end of Archbishop Parker's time, and for her subsistence enjoyed an abbey in Nottinghamshire, which King Henry, upon Dr. Butt's motion, without the Archbishop's knowledge, granted to him and his heirs."

FAMILY OF MUSCHAMP.

Arms. Or, three bars Gules. Crest. A mastiff dog Proper, collared Argent.

A family of Muschamp flourished at an early period in the North of England (see Raine's History of North Durham). Thomas Muschamp, Esq.[c] of Peckham, married the dau. and heir of —— Welbeck. William his son lived at Camberwell, and had three wives: 1. Agnes,[d] dau. of William Scott, Esq. (see p. 155); 2. Elizabeth, dau. of Henry Harmonde, Esq. of Crayford, Kent, widow of Nicholas Minne, Esq. Alderman of London; and 3. Elizabeth, dau. of Richard Sandys, Esq. By the first he had no issue. By the second he had

1. Thomas, who married Katharine Rose, and had issue, Jane, the wife of Thomas Grymes, Esq. and Sir Thomas Hunt (see p. 164), and Susanna, mar. to Henry Topsfield, of London and Sussex.

2. Sir Matthew Muschamp, ob. s. p.

3. Edward; 4. Christopher.

By the third he had issue,

5. Ralph, whose wife and descendants occur below.

6. Christopher, of Carshalton, made Baron of the Exchequer 28 Nov. 1577, who married and had issue Christopher and Henry. Christopher Muschamp, Esq. who died 1 Oct. 1660, æt. 61, and was buried at [a] William, son of George Barrett, was bap. 11 Jan. 1595. George Barret was bur. 27 Nov. 1604.

[b] Perhaps the widow of Acton Scott.

[c] Thomas Muschamp, Sheriff of London and Middlesex in 1463, buried at St. Mary Magdalene's, Milk-street, bore for arms, Or, three bars Gules (as the Muschamps of Camberwell), and in chief a mullet.

[d] The error in the pedigree in the Hist. of Surrey, iii. 414, dividing this Agnes into two persons, as the grandmother and the wife of William Muschamp, has been already corrected in vol. ii. p. 116 of the present work, where the armorial coats of Muschamp in the windows of Camberwell Church have been described.

Carshalton, to which parish he bequeathed 200*l.* to found apprenticeships, was doubtless descended of this branch. The helmet, crest, surcoat, and pennon of a Muschamp (quartering Welbeck) was formerly in the north side of the choir of the church. MS. Lansd. 874.

7. John, of Mitcham in Surrey, who married first Anne Tresby; and secondly Ellen, dau. of Robert Gainsford, and had issue by the former, John; Edmund, who mar. Mary, dau. of —— Norris, of Aldingborne, Sussex; William; Elizabeth, mar. to Thomas Hodgkin; and Jane, mar. to Sampson Hawse of Kent; and by the latter, Sir Thomas Muschamp (mentioned below), and Anne.

8. William, of Unsted and Godalming, who married Mary, sister and heir of John Agmondesham of Rowbarnes and East Horsley in Surrey, and was the ancestor of the Muschamps, who remained for four generations at the latter place, and of whom a pedigree is given in the Hist. of Surrey, vol. iii. p. 29.

9. Edith, married to Henry Berry.

[a] "Edith Burton, of Carshalton." Pedigree.

[b] This Christian name occurs several other times in this register, as Sence Blackwell, Sence Fromond, Sence Bowyer, Sence Symonds, Sence Briggs, &c. It seems to be derived from the moral quality, like Prudence, Charity, Faith, &c. though Mr. Bray, in his History of Surrey, appears to have connected it with the old name Senchia, having sometimes spelt it thus, and sometimes Sanctia. (vol. ii. 473, 512.)

FAMILY OF DRAPER.

Arms. As described in p. 154. Crest. A stag's head couped Gules, charged on the neck with a fess Or between three annulets Argent, attired of the Last.

In the Surrey Visitations, this family is derived from John Draper of Flintham, Notts. father of Thomas, of the same place, who by the daughter and heiress of Auger, by —— daughter and heiress of Urswicke, had another Thomas, also of Flintham,[g] the father of Robert Draper, of Camberwell, Page of the Jewel Office to King Henry VIII. This Robert married Elizabeth, daughter and heiress of John Fyfield, alias Lowe, of Camberwell, and had Henry and Matthew (mentioned in the ensuing extracts) who both died without issue; Elizabeth, the wife of John Bowyer, Esq. of Lincoln's Inn, and afterwards of William Foster, Esq. (see p. 152) and Benedicta the wife of John Fromond, of Carshalton (see note in p. 162.)

Robert had a younger brother John, father of Sir Christopher Draper, who was Lord Mayor of London in 1560, and whose three daughters Bennet, Agnes, and Bridget, were married to Sir William Webbe, [e] See his epitaph in Hist. of Surrey, iii. 426. It is now concealed by pews.

[f] See her epitaph, ibid.

[g] This is confirmed in Thoroton's Nottinghamshire, p. 133, where it is stated that in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, the manor of Flintham came to "the wife of John Draper, whose ancestors had been here resident since the beginning of Edward the Third." These Drapers, of Flintham, bore also the same arms as those of Camberwell. (ibid. p. 135.)

Sir Wolstan Dixie, and Sir Henry Billingsley, who all filled the same high office; see in the Histories of London the epitaph of Sir Christopher Draper at St. Dunstan's in the East, where were his arms, quarterly of the two coats described in p. 154.

FAMILY OF BOWYER.

Arms. As described in p. 154.

This family of Bowyer is derived in the Visitations from John Bowyer of Chichester,[b] whose descendants for five generations were of Shepton Beauchamp in Somersetshire. Ralph his son was father of Richard, father of William, who married Joan Lambert, and had issue Thomas, who married Joan (who, according to the pedigree in Hist. of Surrey, iii. 409, died 15 Oct. 1539). Their son John married a third Joan, daughter and heiress of William Brabant, of Bruton, by Alice, daughter and heiress of Richard Boys (both which coats were quartered by the Bowyers), and had issue John Bowyer of Camberwell, William and John, who both died without issue; and Agnes, married to John Browne, by whom she had William, Agnes, and Joan.

John Bowyer, of Camberwell, born at Shepton Beauchamp, was married to his first wife, Anne Jenes, 29 Apr. 1540, and had issue Rice, s. p. and Thomas and Anne, who died infants. He married secondly Elizabeth Draper, of Camberwell, as stated below.

Monument in Camberwell church, with figures in brass and shields of arms: see Hist. of Surrey, iii. 426. There was formerly in Camberwell church the surcoat carried at the funeral of this Matthew Draper, bearing on the skirt and sleeves the following arms: Quarterly of six, 1 and 6, Draper (as in p. 154,) 2 and 5, the other coat of Draper; 3. Auger; 4. Urswicke. Also a pennon of the same. MS. Lansd. 874, 64.

[b] Francis Bowyer, esq. Alderman of London, and Sheriff in 1578, was the son of Robert Bowyer, Mayor of Chichester in 1532, and bore the same arms as the Bowyers of Camberwell, Arg. a fess Vaire cottised Gules. His immediate relations are fully described in his epitaph at St. Nicholas Acons (Stow's Survey, 1754, i. 482). He was the ancestor of the Bowyers of Denham, co. Bucks, Baronets; and from his uncle Thomas Bowyer of London, were descended those of Leythorne, co. Sussex. See a pedigree in Dallaway's Rape of Chichester, p. 61. In the armorial coat of the latter branch the cottises are sable.

[a] The account of the expenses for wedding clothes at this marriage, is printed in Lysons's Environs.

[b] "Had issue by him one sonne and one daughter, and died the xxvii of Aprill 1605" (Epitaph.)

[c] Son of John and Elizabeth, born at Camberwell 12 May 1552. Pedigree in Hist. of Surrey, where his wife is erroneously called Elizabeth Binde.

[d] Or Byne, of Rowdell in the parish of Washington, Sussex, and brother to Katharine (Lady Bowyer); see a pedigree in Hist. of Surrey, ii. 513, and another in Cartwright's Rape of Bramber, p. 131; and in p. 135 of the latter work the epitaph of this John Byne, Esq. who died July 21, 1600, æt. 63, having had five sons and two daughters by Elizabeth Bowyer. Jane his granddaughter was married to Francis Muschamp, as already noticed in p. 150. See the marriages of his brother James Byne hereafter, p. 162.

[e] Daughter of William Byne of Wakehurst, Sussex, Esq. and widow of Edward Snow of Chicksands, co. Beds. Esq. to whom she had been married at Camberwell, 17 May 1580. They had issue Elizabeth, bapt. at Camberwell, 24 Aug. 1581, Alice (the wife of Sir Robert Albany of Bagshot, Surrey), and Sarah, mentioned in his epitaph, formerly in Wandsworth Church, at the manor of Alfarthing in which parish he died in 1587. Epitaph in Hist. of Surrey, iii. 354, copied by Aubrey. In his pedigree of Byne above mentioned, Mr. Bray has incorrectly married Emma the daughter of James Byne to George Bowyer.

John Bowyer, Esq. of Camberwell, [Justice of the Peace] bur. 3 June 1623; Mrs Emma Bowyer, bur. 26 Dec. 1624.

The old mansion of the Bowyers stood on Camberwell Green, on the site now occupied by the charity school erected by Henry Clemeson, Esq. in 1721. Another mansion of the Bowyers, situated on the road from Camberwell to London, is still standing, and has lately been restored for Sir John Smijthe of Hill Hall, Essex, Bart. the present representative of the Bowyer family. Some account of it, with a view of the more ancient portion, now removed, will be found in the Gentleman's Magazine, vol. xcv. ii. 585.

[b] See his epitaph, Hist. of Surrey, iii. 426. He died June 28, 1709, æt. 76.

[c] The chancel of Camberwell Church was repaired at her expense in 1713.

The following shields in stained glass, of the family of Bowyer and its connections, came from a house in Norton Falgate, which, as well as the manor of Camberwell Fryern, was parcel of the possessions of the priory of Haliwell, granted to Robert Draper, Page of the Jewels. (See Ellis's History of Shoreditch, pp. 190, 193, 329). They were formerly in the possession of Richard Gough, Esq. Director S.A. and are now at the residence of J. Bowyer Nichols, Esq. F.S.A. at Hammersmith:

FAMILY OF DUKE.

Arms. Per fess Arg. and Az. three chaplets Counterchanged. Crest. A demi-griffin Or, winged Sable, holding a chaplet.

Of this family some account is given in the History of Surrey, iii. 416, but the genealogy will be corrected by the following from the Visitation of Surrey 1623, when one of the family was residing at Richmond in that county, to which place this pedigree properly belongs.

John Duke, of Sherborne in Dorsetshire, Esq. married —— dau. of —— Skelton; and had William Duke, Esq. of Sherborne, father by Cecily dau. of —— Power, of John Duke, of Powderham, Devon, who by Julian or Joan Stockham his wife, had John (see Hoare's Wiltshire, Hundred of Underditch, p. 139) and George Duke, of Camberwell.

George Duke, lord of the manor of Milkwell in Camberwell and Lambeth, by marriage with Anne daughter and coheiress of William Wilde, Esq. also of Camberwell, had issue Thomas; Elizabeth, ob. s. p.; and Dorothy, married to —— Farrant, of Somerset.

Thomas Duke, of Camberwell, and afterwards of Cossington in Somersetshire, married Elizabeth, daughter of John Colepeper, of Wakehurst in Sussex, by whom he had issue: 1. Sir Edward Duke of Cossington, who married first, Margaret, dau. of William Brockman, of Kent, by whom he had issue; and secondly —— Russell; 2. William Duke, of Richmond, Surrey, (living 1623) who married Anne, dau. and coh. of Isaac Rudston, of Horston, Kent; 3. Richard Duke, of Maidstone, who married Anne, dau. of —— Cowper of Sussex; also Matthew, and the children below mentioned:

Anne, "dau. of Thomas Duke, gent." bap. 15 Apr. 1566; Richard, bap. 24 June 1567; Olyver, bap. 13 Aug. 1568; John, bap. 23 Mar. 1569; Elizabeth, bap. 17 June 1571; Henry, bur. 11 Jan. 1573.

Thomas Duke and Bridgett Bresley, mar. 5 May 1584.

Agnes, dau. of Thomas Duke, bap. 27 Sept. 1584.

FAMILY OF GRYMES.

Thomas Grymes, of London, citizen and haberdasher, and of Peckham, son of Richard Grymes, of London, married Jane, dau. and coh. of Thomas Muschamp of Peckham (she remar. Sir Thomas Hunt, see her burial in p. 164). They had issue two sons, 1. Sir Thomas; 2. John (see both below): and three daughters, 1. Elizabeth, mar. John Stokes of London; 2. Jane, mar. William Carew of the Inner Temple; 3. Mary, mar. William Glascock, of Henningham, Essex.[a]

Mr. William Care (sic) and Mrs. Jane Grimes, 9 Sept. 1598.

Mr. Will. Glascock to Mris Mary Grymes, 12 March 1608-9; Mris Mary, wife of Mr. Will. Glascock, bur. 1 Feb. 1630[-1.]

Sr Thomas Grymes, Knight, bur. 7 May 1664.

Sir Thomas Grymes, of Peckham, was knighted at Hanworth, Middlesex, 2 June 1603; was a Justice of the Peace and Deputy Lieutenant of Surrey, and M.P. for the county in 1623; he married Margaret, dau. of Sir George More, of Loseley, Surrey, and sister to the wife of Dr. Donne.[b] See letter addressed to Sir T. Grymes concerning coat and conduct money. (Coll. of Pamphlets, presented by Geo. III. Brit. Mus.)

Margarett Grimes, Lady, bur. 15 Nov. 1665.

Their children were: 1. Sir George Grymes (see below).

Frances, bap. 29 Aug. 1603.
Elizabeth, bap. 24 June 1606, bur. 25 Jan. 1606[-7].
Martha, bap. 4 Oct. 1607; mar. 1 June 1626 to John Brograve.
Arthur, bap. 29 Jan. 1608-9.
Thomas, bap. 28 June 1610.
Mary, bur. 5 Sept. 1615.
Anne, bur. 11 Sept. 1615.
Anne, bap. 30 Dec. 1615; bur. 3 June 1617.
Elizabeth, bur. 26 July 1618.
Susanna, bap. 12 Apr. 1621.
Constance,[c] bap. 4 Oct. 1624.
Jane, bur. 19 March 1638[-9].

Ellis Crymes and Rebecca England, mar. 18 July 1653.

Sir Thomas had also two other children: Richard and Margaret (Visitation). The former was probably Sir Richard Grymes of Peckham, knighted at Whitehall, 9 Jan. 1628-9, then "servt to ye Duke," (List of Knights, Coll. Arm.) who paid 500*l.* composition for his estate (Lloyd's Memoirs, p. 677) and is mentioned by Clarendon as an Equerry to King Charles I. Le Neve (Pedigrees of Baronets, Coll.

[a] Qu. Sibel Hedingham? which manor belonged to Edward Glascock, who died in 1604.

[b] Among the MSS. at Loseley (as I am informed by Mr. Kempe) is a letter from Sir Thomas Grymes to the Right Worshipful Sir George More, Knight, at Loseley, dated from Peckham, 10 June 1606. Grymes expresses that he is glad to hear of his sister Frances' preferment (her marriage with Sir John Oglander); desires to be remembered to his brother More concerning certifying "the collectors of the fifteenes into Chauncery;" his wife is reasonable well and on the last Whitsunday was brought to bed safely of a daughter (Elizabeth, above mentioned). He subscribes himself Sir George's "most assured Son in law."

[c] A god-daughter of Dr. Donne, named in his will.

Arm.) states that a sister of Sir George was living in 1694, poor and blind, but he does not mention her name.

John Grymes, brother to Sir Thomas, was of Bury St. Edmund's, and mar. Susan, dau. of Ambrose Jermyn of Stanton, Suffolk, and Hocksham, Norf. by whom he had issue John and Thomas, who both died without issue; and three daughters, Jane, Margaret and Anne. The last was married to Sir Thomas Windebank, Bart.; the second to —— Spring. (Harl. MS. 1147, 89.)

Margaret, dau. of Mr. John Grymes, bap. 2 June 1616.

Sir George Grymes, of Peckham, "sonne to Sr Thomas Grymes," bap. 10 Feb. 1604-5; [knighted at Theobalds 9 Dec. 1628;] bur. 15 Oct. 1657; married Alice, dau. and coh. of Charles Lovell, of West Harling, Norf.

In Sir Edward Bysshe's Visitation of Surrey, 1662, the title of Baronet is given to Sir George Grymes, and Thomas his son; but Le Neve was of opinion that the family had only a warrant and never passed the patent. He also supposed that the warrant was given to Thomas, father of Sir Thomas.

Their children were:

Sir Thomas Grymes (see below).
Charles-Lovell, bap. 7 May 1639 [mar. the dau. of a taylor of London, s. p.]
Margaret, bap. 1 May 1640 [mar. Sir John Scudamore.]

Richard, bap. 1 July 1646; bur. 25 Jan. 1660-1.
Elizabeth, bap. 13 Nov. 1647 [mar. —— Birch.]
George, bap. 20 Apr. 1641; bur. 29 Sept. 1652.
Henry, bap. 23 July 1654.
Benjamin, bur. 22 Oct. 1655.
[Sarah.]

Sir Thomas Grymes, of Peckham, "sonne of Sr George Grymes," bap. 10 May 1638.

Sir Thomas Grymes mar. Mary, daughter of Thomas Bond, of Hogsdon, Middx. M.D. and sold his estate in Peckham to his brother-in-law, Sir Thomas Bond, Bart. He had issue: 1. Edward (below); 2. Sir Thomas Grymes, living in Yorkshire or in Gloucester when Le Neve wrote, 1694, s.p.; 3. William, living in Virginia, having issue a daughter; and 4. Edmund, living in Ireland 1694.

Edward, "son to Sr Tho. Crymes," bap. 6 Sept. 1660; bur. 19 Apr. 1664, "son of Sr Tho. Grymes, Bart."

FAMILY OF TURNER.

Arms. Sable, a chevron Erm. between three fers-de-moline Or. Crest. A castle breached Argent.

Richard Turner, of Westminster, by Elizabeth, dau. of Duckett, of Leicester, had issue four sons and one daughter: 1. Robert, Steward of the Household to Queen Elizabeth, ob. s. p.; 2. John, 3. Richard, both s. p.; 4. Sir Jeremy; 5. Elizabeth, mar. to Jeremy Palmer, of Westminster.

Sr Jeremy Turner, bur. May 30, 1624.

Sir Jeremy Turner was Captain of the Surrey militia or trained bands, and is styled "Muster-master" in the disbursements of Alleyne the founder of Dulwich College. He was knighted by King James the First at Chatham dockyard, at the same time as Sir Francis Cherry mentioned below, July 4, 1604. He married Alice, dau. and heiress of John Underdown, of the isle of Thanet, and had issue Richard, æt. 30 in 1623; Walter, Robert, John, Frances, Katharine, Barbara, as named in the Visitation. The following are the names of his children which have been found in the registers of Camberwell:

Barbara, bap. 25 Jan. 1600, bur. 9 Oct. 1610.

Isaac Shelbury, son of Gerrard, was of Colchester in Essex, and by Elizabeth, daughter of —— Harvey of that town, had issue Henry, John, and Richard.

Richard Shelbury, gent. was of Camberwell in 1662, at the time of Sir Edw. Bysshe's Visitation of Surrey. He also occurs among the intended Knights of the Royal Oak in 1660, under London, as "Alderman Richard Shelbury," with an estate of 1000*l.* per ann. His name, however, does not occur in the lists of Lord Mayors or Sheriffs. He had three wives: 1. Margaret, daughter of Richard Beale of Maidstone, by whom he had no issue; 2. Abigail, dau. of Thomas Porter, of Barking in Essex, by whom, according to the Visitation, he had William his son and heir, Thomas, and Abigail; and 3. Sarah, dau. of John Winspeare, of Plymouth, merchant, s. p. The Camberwell registers record the names of some other children :

1605, May 9. George Donne,[c] son to —— (sic).

[a] The party intended to be designated in the preceding entry baffles inquiry; and the present is almost equally obscured by the inaccuracy of the registrar. However, there can be no doubt he ought to have been written, Edward Seymour, son of Edward Lord Beauchamp (son of the Earl of Hertford). This was Sir Edward Seymour, who was made a K.B. at the creation of Charles Prince of Wales in 1616, and died in Aug. 1618, before his father and grand-father. His younger brother William was the Marquis of Hertford so distinguished during the civil war, who lived just long enough to be restored to the Dukedom of Somerset, after the Restoration of 1660, and died the same year.

[b] Afterwards wife of Peter Cock, Esq. of Camberwell; she died Apr. 25, 1769, aged 71, and was buried in Camberwell churchyard. See an account of the family in Hist. of Surrey, iii. 407.

[c] Bishop of St. David's 1744, Durham 1752, died 1771. He was the second of three sons by the Judge's second marriage.

[d] Mr. James Byne was brother to John and Katharine (Lady Bowyer) already noticed in p. 152. His wife was one of the sisters and coheiresses of John Fromond, Esq. of Carshalton; see the pedigree of Fromond in the Hist. of Surrey, vol. ii. p. 473. Their daughter Emma was baptised at Camberwell, 21 Jan. 1595. The rectory and estate at Carshalton descended in the family of Byne to Henry Byne, Esq. who was Sheriff of Surrey in 1791, and his pedigree will be found in Hist. of Surrey, ii. 513.

[e] Sister to the lady in the preceding entry. Catharine Palmer, her dau. and heir, was married to William Forster, Esq. of Stockwell. Hist. of Surrey, ii. 473.

Spencer Madan, Bishop of Peterborough), and 2. Frances, who married Sir Will. Stapleton, Bart. second son of Sir W. Stapleton, Governor of the Leeward Islands. See Le Neve's Collections for the Pedigrees of Knights, temp. Car. II. MS. Harl. 5801, f. 105 b. In his Pedigree of Russell of Nevis are several errors, which may be corrected from the statement now given. (F. M.)

[a] Lord of the manor of Basing in Peckham (afterwards the property of Sir Thomas Gardyner, Knt. who probably purchased it of Baker.) (See Hist. of Surrey, iii. 415.) Ralph his son, bap. 2 Apr. 1582; Edward bap. 18 Apr. 1585; bur. 10 July 1586. Bray erroneously supposed his sister married Sir Thomas.

[b] Jane, dau. and coheiress of Thomas Muschamp, of Peckham, Esq. and widow of Thomas Grymes (see p. 155). She was married secondly to Sir Thomas Hunt, of Lambeth Dene, and of Folsham, Norfolk. Her painted effigy remains in Camberwell church, with a poetical epitaph, printed in Hist. of Surrey, iii. 425, but more correctly in Gent. Mag. xcv. ii. 519. She was the second of Sir Thomas Hunt's three wives; see in Blomefield's Hist. of Norfolk his epitaph at Folsham, where there is an effigy of the Knight, with his three ladies kneeling behind him. Sir Thomas is erroneously styled "Knight and Baronet" in an inscription at the Fishmongers' Almshouses. (Hist. of Surrey, iii. 635.) He was Sheriff of Surrey and Sussex in 1610, and died at Camberwell, to the poor of which parish he left four marks per ann. for ever. (Epitaph.) The substance of his will is given in Hist. of Surrey, iii. 447.

[c] The manor of Dulwich and the advowson of the vicarage of Camberwell were granted to Thomas and Margaret Calton 11 Oct. 36 Hen. VIII. 1545. The former was sold to Alleyne the player by Sir Francis Calton in 1606. Sir Francis was knighted at Greenwich, 9 April 1605. Alleyne also purchased four messuages of Thomas Calton, Gent. brother of Sir Francis, and Anne his wife. (Hist. of Surrey, iii. 438.) Anne, dau. of Mr. Thomas Calton, was baptised at Camberwell 8 Sept. bur. 10 Sept. 1596. Nicholas, his son, bap. 20 Nov. 1597.

[f] Sir Henry Mainwaring was knighted at Oking in Surrey, 20 March 1617. He was sometime Lieutenant of Dover Castle, and was Captain of the Prince Royal, the Admiral's ship in the fleet sent to bring Charles Prince of Wales back from Spain in 1623, and Vice-Admiral under the Earl of Northumberland in the expedition of 1640. His lady has been already recorded in p. 15.

[g] George Moore, Esq. of St. Olave's, Southwark, was a Justice of the Peace for Surrey, and married Hannah, daughter and coh. of John Wainwright, Esq. (Visitation 1662.) They had the following children baptized at Camberwell: Charles, 11 May 1637; Susanna, 27 Oct. 1638; Henrie, 24 Oct. 1639; Elizabeth, 15 Oct. 1640; another Elizabeth, 9 Nov. 1641; James, 11 Nov. 1642; William, 16 Aug. 1647.

[h] The Rev. Jonathan Dryden, Fellow of Trinity college, Cambridge, was author of some verses in the Cambridge Collections in 1661 on the death of the Duke of Gloucester, and the marriage of the Prince of Orange, and in 1662 on the marriage of Charles II. See Sir Walter Scott's Life of Dryden. He is not mentioned in Bray's list of the Vicars of Camberwell.

[i] "One of the daughters of Thomas Burges of Horly, Surrey." See in the Hist. of Surrey, iii. 427, the epitaph on her monument, erected "by her most sorrowfull husband, Thomas Vincent, Esq. one of the Justices of the Peace of this County, and Alderman of the Citie of London, to whom she was wife 20 years, and by whom he had yssue 5 sons and 9 daughters." Of these were baptised at Camberwell, Judith, 9 May 1649; Thomas, 5 Dec. 1651; Susanna, 7 Apr. 1653; Deborah (as in p. 161.)

[j] Knighted at Oking, March 30, 1615, and then called "the Avener," an officer attached to the court for the provision of "horse-meat," the name being derived from the French avoine. In 1627 he was Clerk of the Green Cloth, as we learn from the epitaph of his first wife Dame Anne (above mentioned), who left him seven children "yet living." Hist. of Surrey, iii. 428.

1666, Aug. 26. Collonel Tho. Lytcott.[m]

1666-7, Jan. 2. Nathanael, son of Mr. Alderman Warner.[n]

——, Feb. 20. Mary wife of Francis Paire, murdred in her house near Dulwich: —— as was supposed by one Henry alias Hamshire, wch sayd Henry was, by the diligence of Jo. Scott, of Camberwell, Esqr one of his Maties Justices of peace, app'hended two years after the fact done, and araigned at Kingston and condemned, and accordingly was executed for that murder, Martij 13, 1669.

1671-2, 28 Feb. Mrs Ann Ingolsby, daughter of Francis Ingolsby,[o] Esq.; Mary, his dau. 12 Apr. 1672; and Martha, his dau. 23 Ap. 1672.

1673, Feb. 21. The Lady Hope Stapłton.

——, Mar. 4. Henry, son of Mr Sargeant Parker.[p]

[m] Col. Lytcott, of Dulwich, was the son and heir of Sir John Lytcott, Gentleman of the Privy Chamber to James I. (knighted at Hampton Court, Oct. 3, 1609) by Mary, daughter of Nicholas Overbury, Esq. and sister to the unfortunate Sir Thomas Overbury. Sir John was imprisoned for questioning Weston, the poisoner of Overbury, when at the gallows (see Nichols's Progresses of James I. vol. iii. p. 106.) Colonel Litcott commanded a regiment under General Poyntz in the engagement which took place between that General and King Charles on the march of the latter to the relief of Chester 1645. See a letter from Colonel General Poynts to the Honourable William Lenthall, 24 Sept. 1645. (Collection of Pamphlets presented by Geo. III. Brit. Mus.) He died of the plague, as did these members of his family and household—all in the short space of two months.

Buried.

1665, Sep. 11. Susanna, wife of Coll. Lydcott.
—— — 12. Thomas, son of Coll. Tho. Lydcott.

—— — 23. Leonard, son of Collonel Lytcott.
—— Nov. 2. Temple, son of Collonel Lytcott.
—— — 9. A servant man of Collonel Lytcott.

Further information respecting the Lytcott family will be found in the epitaph of Giles Lytcott, Esq. younger brother to the Colonel, at Allhallows' Barking (see the Histories of London); and in Ashmole's Berks. pp. 43, 163, 171.

[n] Francis Warner, Sheriff of London and Middlesex 1659.

[o] This Francis Ingoldsby, Esq. was cousin-german to the Protector Oliver, being the eldest son of Sir Richard Ingoldsby by Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Oliver Cromwell, K.B. and brother to the regicide Colonel, afterwards Sir Richard Ingoldsby, K. B. He was M.P. for Buckingham throughout the Protectorate; but having, says Willis, "run out his estate, retired to London about 1673," and was in 1679 admitted a Pensioner of the Charter-house, where he died Oct. 1, 1681. (See Willis's Buckingham, p. 36.) His daughter Anne was baptized at Buckingham in 1650, and Martha in 1662. Ibid. pp. 70, 71.

[o] Sir Christopher Eyre, of Harrow, Middlesex, was knighted 19 Nov. 1664. Some extracts from the register of Northall, corroborative of the above, will be found in Lysons's Environs, iii. 316.

[p] Sir Thomas Bond was Comptroller of the Household to the Queen Mother (Henrietta-Maria), and was created a Baronet by Charles II. when at Brussels in 1658. He purchased the moiety of the manor of Peckham which belonged to Sir Thomas Grymes, who had married his sister (see p. 157) and having pulled down the old mansion, erected another, which was afterwards the residence of Chief Justice Trevor, and then of the Shards. See Hist. of Surrey, iii. 411; also Evelyn's Diary, 8vo. ii. 420, iii. 54, in both which places it is called a "fine house." This mansion has also been pulled down.

[q] Mary-Charlotte, only daughter of Sir Thomas Bond, was married to Sir William Gage, the 2d Bart. of Hengrave, Suffolk, (see Gage's History of Hengrave, p. 243) but the son William here mentioned has not hitherto appeared in the pedigree of the family.

[r] Daughter of Sir Roger James, Knt. of Reygate, by Margaret, daughter of Anthony Aucher, Esq. of Bishopsbourn, Kent, and widow of Henry Moyse, of Bansted. Anthony Wood calls her "a widow of a plentiful fortune." See her epitaph in Hist. of Surrey, iii. 428.

[s] Richard Parr, D.D. son of the Rev. Richard Parr a Devonian (the same, it has been supposed, who died Bishop of Man in 1643,) was born at Fermoy, co. Cork, in 1617; entered at Exeter coll. Oxf. 1635, and became Chaplain to Abp. Usher, whose Life he wrote, and published in 1666. He was Vicar of Reygate in 1644, (Hist. of Surrey, i. 214) by the patronage of his brother-in law, Roger James, Esq. and held that living for some years after. His presentation to Camberwell is thus noticed by himself in the register: "1653, Dec. 18. Dr. Rich: Parr about this time became Minister of Camberwell by the presentation of Sr Edmond Bowyer, Knt. patron." He retained the living for thirty-eight years; duirng which, says Anthony Wood, "he broke two conventicles in his neighbourhood, by his outrying the Presbyterians and Independents in his extemporanean preaching." He was also Rector of Bermondsey from 1654 to 1682, and a Canon of Armagh, through the patronage of Abp. Usher. He is said to have refused the Deanery of Armagh, and even an Irish Bishoprick. Further particulars of him, with the titles of his publications, will be found in the Athenæ Oxon. (edit. Bliss) iv. 341, the Hist. of Surrey, i. 323, and Evelyn's Diary.

INDENTURE OF THE TRANSFER OF THE PATRONAGE OF THE HOSPITAL OF ST. CROSS BY WINCHESTER, FROM THE PRIOR OF ST. JOHN OF JERUSALEM TO RICHARD BISHOP OF WINCHESTER, IN 1185.

The existence of this important charter in the Harleian Collection (43 I. 38) is not noticed in the new edition of the Monasticon; although the fact of the transaction it records was known from the Register of the Hospital preserved in the Harleian collection, No. 1616, p. 27.

The founder of the Hospital of St. Cross, Bishop Henry de Blois (half-brother to King Stephen), had committed the government of the institution to the Prior and Brethren of the Hospital of Jerusalem; but one of his successors, Richard de Toclyve, in the reign of Henry the Second, appears to have disputed their jurisdiction, and finally obtained its resignation by the charter before us. It was executed at Dover, in the presence of the King, of Eraclius Patriarch of Jerusalem, John Bishop of Norwich, the Justiciary Glanville, and other witnesses of consequence. It is remarkable that it was in the very same year, about two months before (iv id. Feb.), that the Patriarch Eraclius, being in London, dedicated the present Temple church, as was recorded in the inscription formerly over its door; [a] and about one month before (vi id. Mart.) he dedicated the church of St. John's, Clerkenwell.[b]

Notwithstanding the present Charter, the Prior of the Hospital of Jerusalem managed to obtain from Pope Clement, within two years afterwards, a full confirmation to him and his successors of the Hospital of St. Cross and its possessions, dat. xiv kal. April 1187, (MS. Harl. 1616, p. 121,) but, apparently, without any material result. With regard also to the surrender of the Muniments of the Hospital to the Bishop of Winchester, as specified in the Charter, it was certainly not carried into effect, since it was not till the year 1372 that the documents were finally given up by Robert Hales, then Prior, to William of Wykeham. A list of these Muniments is given in the Register, p. 4, and among them is noticed the very Charter now printed.

The cross preceding the Bishop's name and the signature were evidently traced by his own hand.

Three very perfect seals are still attached to this document:

1. That of Roger de Molins, Custos or Master of the Hospital of Jerusalem, appended by a lace of yellow silk. It is of lead, circular in form, one inch and a quarter in diameter. On one side, a figure kneeling before the double cross, and between them the letters A ω; legend + ROGERIUS CUSTOS: on the other, + HOSPITALIS IERUSALEM, with a representation of the Holy Sepulchre, and the Saviour's body therein. This is engraved in the Gentleman's Magazine, vol. CIII. ii. 305; together with that of another Master of the Hospital, bearing similar designs.

2. That of the Bishop of Winchester, of red wax, oval in form, on a narrow parchment label. The principal side measures $3\frac{3}{4}$ inches in height, by two inches in width; and represents a figure of the Bishop standing, his right hand raised in benediction, and his left holding his pastoral crook. On his right side is a hand holding a crosier; and on his left a double triangle, resembling an heraldic mullet, but doubtless symbolic of the Trinity. Legend: + RICARDVS : DEI : GRATIA : WINTONIENSIS : EPISCOPVS. The counter seal, also oval, two inches high by one inch and a quarter wide, represents standing figures of St. Peter and St. Paul, finely drawn. Legend: + SVNT MICHI SINTQ' BONI PETRVS PAVL' Q' PATRONI.

3. That of the Prior of the Hospitallers, suspended by a hempen string. It is of red wax, circular, and has only one engraved side, which is two inches in diameter. It represents a figure kneeling to the double cross, arising from the dome of a Temple-church, about which is his orison, SALVE CRVX SC̄A, ARBOR DIGNA. Legend: + SIGILL' : PRIORIS : FRATRVM : HOSPITAL' : [IERVSALEM : IN] : ANGLIA: This has been engraved in Nichols's History of Leicestershire, vol. III. pl. xxxix. and pl. cxiii.

DESCENT OF THE FAMILY OF WICKHAM OF SWALCLIFFE, CO. OXON, AND THEIR KINDRED TO THE FOUNDER OF NEW COLLEGE.

In continuing the progress of this Controversy, it is obvious that the reader must be subjected to considerable repetition. The same line of evidence would of necessity be followed, and the same proofs be adduced, in the second suit as in the first. Nevertheless, as there is undoubtedly much original matter mixed up in this rehearing of the case, it is thought best to pursue the path as it was then pursued, rather than by an attempt at abbreviation to run the risk of impairing the fidelity of the narrative.

The great mass of these papers seems to be in the hand-writing of William Wickham of Abingdon, who prosecuted his researches with unwearied perseverance, and whose balance sheet of the expenses incurred is a curious document, and will be given at the conclusion of the case.

WICAM'S BREVIAT.

About 68 yeares since Humfrie Wicam of Swalecliffe, havinge 4 sonnes, tendered one of them to be chosen child into Winť Colledg as kyn to the founder: But by Sr Richard Fyennes his meanes he was refused, notwthstandinge 3 of ye Electors did conceive him to be kyn.

The Electors beinge equaly divided in opinion, they & Humfry Wicam by consent referred the matter to be descided by the Heralds, as most competent judges of descents and kyndred.

The Heralds, upon examination of ye cause, & sight of divers ancient Deeds and Court-rolls, & other evidences produced then by Humfry Wicam, allowed ye said Humfry to beare ye founder's & Colledg armes, as beinge of ye same bloode wth the founder: but upon Sr Richard Fyennes his suggestion, that the said Humfry would thereby claime his landes, judgment was for a time stayed: and then the Duke of Norfolke fell into his trobles.

The Pedigree drawne by Cotgrave & Cooke.

At an other election Humfry Wicam againe tendered one of his sonnes to be chosen as ye founder's kinsman: but, ye Electors beinge againe divided in their opinions, some thinkinge him to be kyn & somme denyinge his kyndred, they & ye said Humfry Wicam referred the matter to be ordered by ye Lord Treasurer Burleigh: who appoynted Dr Lewes & Dr Awberie to heere all their allegations, & to certifie them unto him, wch they did; and then Sr Rich. Fyennes dyed.

The copie of ye certificat made by Dr Lewes & Dr Awberie.

Rich. Fyennes sonne to Sr Rich. beinge wthin age, was then ward to ye Queene, & ye Lord Treasurer Burleigh conceavinge yt Humfry Wicam had sufficiently proved his kindred to ye founder, drue up a sentence to ye same effect, & delivered it to Mr Kingsmeale (attorney of ye Court of Wards, & unkle to Richard Fyennes) to peruse: and in the meane time writt his letter to Dr Culpepper (to whom Dr White had then resigned ye Wardenship of New Colledg) in the behalf of Humfry Wicam, promisinge to sende his finall sentence in ye cause soe sone as he should receave it back frõ Mr Kingsmeale.

Dr Stempe & some other of ye electors, notwthstandinge ye Lord Burleigh's letter, still refused to accept Humfry Wicam's sonne as kyn to ye founder, & thereupon the said Humfry moved ye visitor to heare & descide ye matter, & upon his refusinge to medle therewth, the said Humfry exhibited a Bill in ye Chancery against ye Wardens of ye Colledges, Dr Culpeper & Dr Stempe.

The Copie of ye Bill.

Dr Stempe answered to Wicam's Bill, Wicam replyed, Stempe rejoyned, &c. Then they proceeded to commission, examined witnesses & brought ye cause to a hearinge: but for some respects judgment was againe deferred.

The Copie of ye Answer, Replication, Rejoynder, & Depositions.

A gentleman, a meere strainger unto Humfry Wicam, that chanced to be at the hearinge in ye Chancery, after ye Court was risen, came to Humfry Wicã & tould him that he had heard his cause: and that he had an ould geneallogie in his custodie, wch he conceived might stand him in somme steede: and that he would bestow it upon him if ye said Humfry would direct him whither he should sende it to him in London; wch ye said Humfry Wicam did, & ye gentleman sent it accordingly.

The ould Geneallogie.

Shortly after Humfry Wicam dyed, & his eldest sonne Richard Wicam, havinge noe issue, gave over ye prosecution of ye cause, and about two yeares since the said Richard Wicam died: and soe this ould geneallogie hath not as yet beene produced for evidence.

A nameles author, but said to be one Thomas Marten, writt ye founder's life, & as in ye next page, at the beginninge of ye answer to ye first objection.

About July 1635, Edward Wicam, the second sonne of Humfry Wicam aforesaid, & his kinsman Wm Wicam of Abingdon, to revive their clayme, petitioned ye Earle Marshall about it, who, after ye officers of armes by his direction had searched their records & made certificat unto him of what they founde, was gratiously pleased to write to the Wardens & officers of ye Colledges in the behalf of the petitioners.

The Petition to ye Earle Marshall.

The Certificat of ye Officers of armes.

The Copie of ye Earle Marshall's letter.

At the election at Winchester 1635, the petitioner delivered the Earle Marshall's letter to the Wardens & other electors, shewed them the Heralds' certificat under the seale of their office: and tendered one Joseph Deane, a neere kinsman of theirs, to be chosen child as of ye bloode of ye founder. But by the interposition of ye Lo. Sey the electors denyed to choose him.

In Michaelmas terme 1635 the petitioners moved the Court of honor, that ye Wardens & other electors might be ordered to shew cause why they did denye the said Joseph Deane to be of ye founder's bloode.

The Wardens & other electors havinge notice of ye petitioners' motion, acquainted the Lord Sey therew^th, who undertooke the cause, & about the ende of the same terme brought into the office of armes 5 objections against the petitioners' kyndred to ye founder; & meetinge in the office wth the petitioners' sollicitor, upon somme conference had of ye cause, said that, although the Earle Marshall were Judg of armes & descents, yet he had noe power to force admission into ye Colledges.

Nathaniell Powell.

Thereupon Edward & Wm Wicam petitioned ye Kinges Matie to referr the cause to the right ho^ble the Earle Marshall of Englande, & to ye right reverend father in God the Lord Bishop of Winton: and his Matie was pleased to add unto them the Lord's Grace of Canterbury.

RICHARD WICKHAM'S DECLARATION.[a]

To all Christian people to whome this present writinge shall come, I Richard Wickham of Swacliffe, in the countie of Oxon, Esq. aged fowerscore yeares and upward, doe by these presents testify, publish, and declare, that William Wickham, of Abingdon, in the countie of Berks, sonne of John Wickham, late of Rotherfeild, in the countie of Sussex, deceased, is my kinsman in bloode, & descended from ye Wickhams of Swacliffe aforesaid; and further I doe make knowne that my father Humfry Wickham havinge fower sonnes, me self, Thomas, Edward, & Ferdinand, and endeavoringe to place some of us (as others of our kindred before had beene) in the new Colledg by Winchester, as kinsmen to the founder, to be chosen from thence under the same title unto the new Colledg in Oxford, had not beene denyed (as I am assuredlye perswaded) but that Sr Richard Fenis, grandfather to the honorable William now Lord Seye, (upon a suspition that my father, beinge allowed to be of the same bloode wth the founder of the said Colledges, might ꝑtende title to sõme of his lands if he the said Sr Richard should have dyed wthout issue) affirmed that my father was not descended from those Wickhams wch were of the same bloode wth the said founder, meaninge the Perrotts, who, by the said founder's adoption, chainged their names from Perrott to Wickham, and ꝑswaded D. White[b] & D. Stempe,[c] the Wardens of ye said Colledges, to deny our admission into the said Colledges as the founder's kinsmen, wch although they did, yet it was by them & the rest of the electors agreed that the offices of armes & descents should be searched, to trye my father's pedegree & kindred, wch was done, & those armes wch Sr Richard Fenis claymed, & wch ye monumentes of the said Colledges shew to be the armes of the founder, were allowed unto my father by Thomas Duke of Norfolke, then Lord high Marshall of England, and sett downe and blazed by

At the election after the death of the Duke of Norfolke, my father againe prayed D. White & D. Stempe, then wardens, John Underhill[d] & Michael Manshorte, then posers, John Chandler, then sub-warden of Newe Colledg by Winchester, & Thomas Bilson,[e] then scholemaster, to receave one of his sonnes as cozen to the founder: The wardens and sub-warden denyed his request; but the two posers and the scholemaster thought it reasonable, and thereupon my father's allegations and prooffes were putt in writinge and sent to the right hoble Sr William Cecill, Lord Burleigh, high Treasurer of England, and the decydinge of the matter referred to his honor; who, takinge the troble upon him, appoynted Doctor Lewes & D. Aubery, and Sommercette herault, to heare the allegations of Sr Richard Fenis of ye wardens & of my father, & to certifie the effect thereof, wch they did, & then, Sr Richard Fenis dyinge, his sonne Richard Fenis beinge under age was the Queenes warde, and Doctor White, the warden of New Colledg in Oxford, resyned his place to Doctor Culpepper, and the Lord Treasurer, after he had imparted the cause to Mr Richard Kingsmill,[f] the Queenes attorney of the Courte of Wardes, unkle to Richard Fenis the Queenes warde, did resolve that there was good apparent matter to prove my father to be the founder's kinsman, and writt to each of the wardens a severall letter to admit his sonnes as the founder's kinsmen, certifyinge further by his letters that he had sett downe his finall sentence in writinge, & delivered it to Mr Kingesmill, & that it should be sent unto them. This notwthstandinge, the wardens of the said Colledges refused to accept me self or any of my brothers as kinsmen to the founder, except they should thereto be compelled by such order & judgment as in

When the Bisshopp had refused to meddle in the cause, my father exhibited a Bill in the Chancery against Doctor Culpepper & Doctor Stempe the wardens of the two Colledges; and, after Doctor Stempe had answered, my father replyed, and Doctor Stempe rejoyned, and my father surreioyned, they proceeded to commission and examined witnesses, and on the thirteth daie of Januarie in the two & twentieth yeare of Queene Elizabeth the cause was brought to a hearinge and (if my father would have consented there unto) had beene ordered & decreed, That fower severall schollers of my father's bloode & issue male successively one after other should upon request be admitted into the said Colledges. But my father would not consent unto any such order, and because none of his sonnes could then be admitted as founder's kinsmen wthout such limitation, would not to the preiudice of his right suffer any of them to be admitted into ether of the said Colledges.

Furthermore my father, to geve light in this cause to his posteritie & kindred, committed all the proceedings in these matters to writinge, & left divers books of them, & charged me to lett all my brothers, my sisters, and our kinsman John Wickham of Rotherfeild aforesaid, to have the sight & use of them, & copeys also, if they required them: and by reason of this my father's charge, & his assurance of me that the said John Wickham of Rotherfeild was my neare kinsman in bloode & my neerest kinsman of my name, me selfe havinge noe issue at all, & nether of my brothers for a longe tyme havinge any issue male, I intended for many yeares together (notwthstandinge one of my brothers had many daughters) to settle the mannor of Swaclife (where my ancestors the Wickhams have continued by the space of above three hundred yeares now last past) upon my kinsman William Wickham of Abingdon, and his heires male, wch I would not have doone had not the said William beene descended from my ancestors the Wickhams of Swacliffe. But after my brother Edward had beene married, & his wife continued childles above the space of eight yeares, it pleased God to blesse her wth a sonne, to whome I now intende my estate. Lastly, I make knowne that my kinsman William of Abingdon, when I shewed him the books & notes wch my father left of his prooffes of our kindred to the founder aforesaid, & of Sr Richard Fenis his objections & prooffes against it, he desyred a copye of them, and I permitted him to have it, together wth the copeys of some letters, writinges, evidences, & pedigrees wch may conduce to the clearinge of all obiections wch heeretofore have beene or heereafter may be urged against our kindred to the said founder. PETITION of Edward Wickham & William Wickham. That being descended of Bishop Wickham, & so to have prioritie of Election. The Warden and Fellows questioning their descent, my Lord to give order to the Officers of Armes to certifie their Petigree, &c.

To the right hon^ble Thomas Earle of Arundell and Surrey, Earle Marshall of England.

The humble peticõn of Edward Wickham of Swalclive, in the countie of Oxon, and Wiłłm Wickham of Abingdon, in the countie of Berks,

Shewinge,

That yor Pet^rs beinge discended of the blood and kindred of Wiłłm Wickham, Bishop of Winton, Founder of New Colledge in Oxon, and the Colledge of Winchester, and by reason of their soe beinge the Founder's kinsmen, they and their posterities ought to have priviledge and prioritie of elecc̃on first unto Winchester Schoole, and from thence to New Colledge in Oxon, accordinge as divers of yor pet^rs auncestors and kindred have upon that their title beene elected and admitted.

Nowe forasmuch as the wardens, the fellowes, and other officeres of those Colledges have made question of yor pet^rs kindred to the said Founder, and denied their claime.

Yo^r pet^rs humblie praie that yor Lo^p wilbe pleased to give order to the office of Armes to examine the veritie of yor pet^rs pedegree, and to certifie yor Lo^p howe they finde the same to be.

That soe yor good Lo^p maie judge of yor pet^rs kindred to the saide Founder.

And they, according to their dutie, shall dailie praie, &c.

I desire the Officers of Armes, upon search of the records remayninge in their office or elsewhere, to make report unto me what they finde concerninge the clayme made by the pet^rs and their pedegree.

the first of Julie, 1635.

This petition to the Earl Marshal, and his order to the officers of armes, will be found in L 2. 54, Coll. Arm., where, in the opposite page, is a transcript of the pedigree (beginning with Robert Wickham and Maude Waterville,) drawn by Cotgrave and Cooke, and which will hereafter be noticed. At the foot of this are the following two notes:

"In the visitation of Oxfordshire, taken 1634, the continuation of the Wickham's descent, Swacliffe, from Humphry Wickham here menc'oned," (This is Humphry the claimant in 1570) "is recorded, wherein it doth apeare that Edward Wickham of Swacliffe and Wm Wickham of Abingdon, com. Berks, p'ties to the petic'on referred unto us by your Lo^p, dated the first of July 1635, are truely branched out of that familye. And there is mention in the same visitation, that Hugh Cotgrave, Richmond Herald, by directions from the Duke of Norffolke his Grace, Earle Marshale of England, delineated a pedegre of the sayd familye agreeable to this here exemplified, the original whereof was exhibited unto us; testified also by Wm Camden, Cl. K. of Armes, under his hand, that he had examined the same."

"In obedience to your Lo^ps directions, in your Lo^ps reference unto us upon the peticon of Edward Wickham of Swacliffe, in com' Oxon, Esq. & Will'm Wickham of Abbingdon, in com' Berks, dated the first of July 1635, annexed hereunto. We have examined their pedigre and clayme they make to be of the bloud and kindred of Will'm Wickham, Bishop of Winton, and doe finde their exhibitts for proofe of their sayd kindred to be agreeable to what is recorded with us in the office of armes, which wee have here exemplified in this pedegree under the common seal of our office, wch wee humbly submit unto your good Lo^p."

THE EARLE MARSHALL'S LETTER.

To my very lovinge frindes, the Wardens of New Colledge in Oxford and Winchester Colledg, & the Fellowes and other officers of those colledges, theise.

After my very hartie commendations, whereas I have lately receaved a petition from Edward Wickham of Swacliffe, in the countie of Oxon, and William Wickham of Abingdon, in the countie of Berks, to referre the examination of their pedigree & kindred to William Wickham, Bishop of Winton, founder of New Colledge in Oxford and Winchester Colledg, to the officers of armes, to the intent that they might prserve and continew their interest in the election of their children accordinge to the statutes of the founder; which accordingly beinge done, and the officers of armes havinge exemplifyed their true pedegree, I have thought fitt heerewth to recomend it unto you, and shallbe glad to understand, that the petitioners maye finde the benefitt of this attestation, and receave those prvileges from you, wch in right they ought to inioye. Soe not doubtinge of your readines heerein, I rest, Warden of New Coll.

Warden of Winton Coll.

The following letter, in the hand-writing of William Wickham of Abingdon, appears, from its contents, to have been sent to one of the officers of arms.

Sr, I have beene at the Election at Winchester and tendered a scholler to be chosen into the Colledg there as the founder's kinsman, his name was Joseph Deane, grandchild to Margaret that was sister to Humfry Wickham named in the pedigree. The Wardens, with the rest of the electors, examined him, and for his learninge tooke noe exceptions against him. But D. Pinke, the Warden of New Colledge in Oxford, in the behalf of all the rest, tould me that their founder's name was not Wickham, but de Wickham, and that he was prayd for by the name of de Wickham, & soe written in all their statute books, and that accordinge to somme his father's name was John Longe, and accordinge to others Jo. Perrott. And that notwthstandinge the pedegree and certificat under the seale of your office and the Earle Marshall's letter attesting the same, they all as yet stoode very doubtfull of our kindred to their founder, because in the pedegree it doth not appeare how their founder was branched out from the Wickhams of Swakliffe, and therefore could not admitt of my scholler before the matter were decyded by ye authorities of the lawes, and such as were to adiudg the same. And therewthall Do. Pinke showed me a little booke newly written, wch I conceave he latly receaved from the Lo. Sey, wherein, as he said, was expressed, that when Humfry Wickham made the like clayme as we now doe, the decydinge of the cause was by consent referred to the Lo. Burleigh, who, the better to informe himself, required the assistance of Do. Awbery, Do. Lewes, & Somersett herald, to examine the prooffes on both sides, & to certifie him of their opinions in the cause: and in that booke he read unto me some parte of the copy of a letter, wch he said was written by Somersett to the Lord Burleigh, the effect whereof, as neere as I can remember was: That a chevron was the carpenters' armes, and that the founder, before he was Bisshop, in respect he was a carpenter, or had good skill in architecture, did use a seale wth one cheverne betweene three roses, and that afterward he used a seale wth 2 chevernes betweene 3 roses, wch, in his opinion, was geven to the Bishop for his coate of armes, because his skill in architecture was the chiefe yf not the only cause of his cumminge into grace & favour wth the kinge, & bye consequence of his risinge & preferment. And further, that in the books belonginge to the office of armes it did appeare, that the propp coate of the Wickhams was far different from their founders. I demanded the difference; & one of the posers, by name Richard Parsons, a kinsman of the Lo. Seyes, standinge by, made answer, that as he remembered it was divers mullets Or, in a field Gules, & was to be seene in one of the windowes of Swacliffe church. I then demanded if they would be pleased to sende any answer to the Earles letter, & they said noe. But I was tould by a frinde that privatly amongst themselves they had resolved to write unto the Earle; if they doe, the sight of their letter, wch I doubt not but you may procure, may hap to doe us a pleasure. My cozen Powell came not to the election, wch began ye 15th of this moneth; but ere longe, God willinge, I shall meete him at London, where we will both attend you, and in the meane tyme I rest * * *

Below is written, as a sort of postscript—

See Harpsfield's storie of England, as touchinge Bishop Wickham ye founder.

In the cathedral church at Winchester, at the end of the founder's toombe, we finde written in brass, "Wilhelmus dictus Wickhamus jacet hic."

When Joseph Deane was to be examined accordinge to the custome there, he delivered to the electors this ticket followinge:

Anno 1635. Ego Josephus Deane, de genere et sanguine Domini fundatoris, de parochia Pinnoke Comitatus et Diocesios Glocesteriensis, natus sum annos undecim ad festū Michaelis ultimo prterito.

Petition to the Archbishop of Canterbury.

To the most reverend father in God William Ld Archbishop of Canterbury his Grace.

The humble Petition of William Wickham, & Elizabeth Mayott of Abingdon, in the countie of Berks,

Shewinge,

That William Wickham, Bishop of Winton, & founder of New Colledg in Oxford, & the Colledg by Winchester, indulged p^r^cedency in election & other p^r^vileges in those his Colledges unto his kindred & their posteritie. That your Grace's petitioner William Wickham, beinge descended of the same bloode & kindred wth the said Bishop, about July last petitioned the right ho^ble^ Thomas Earle of Arundell & Surry, Earle Marshall of England, that he would be pleased to geve order to the officers of armes to examine the veritie of his pedegree & to certifye his honor how they founde the same, that soe his Lo'shp might iudg of your petitioner's kindred.

That the officers of armes did search & certifie under the seale of their office, that your petitioner was of the same bloode wth the said Bishop. And his honor, in attestation thereof, was gratiously pleased to write to the Wardens & other officers & fellowes of the said Colledges to afforde to suche as were of your petitioner's bloode the p^r^vileges aforesaid, beinge of right due unto them.

That upon the delivery of the Earle's letter & shewinge the certificat aforesaid, your petitioner, at the last election at Winchester, tendered one Joseph Deane, a poor scholler of his bloode, to be chosen child there. But nether his kinsman nor cause could be admitted; not soe much by ye opposition of the Wardens & other electors of the Colledges, as by the interposition of the Lord Sey, who beinge descended from one of the Bishop's sisters, to ingrosse the benefitt to his owne posteritie, labors to suppresse your petitioner's right, undertakinge at his owne charge to defende the Wardens & other electors from all suites wch by reason of that their denyall may be brought against them.

That the eldest sonne of y^r Grace's petitioner Elizabeth Mayot, hath intermarried wth the daughter of yor Grace's other petitioner Wickham, and have issue, who ought to have and enioye the benefitt of the said foundac̃ons, as beinge of the bloode and kindred of their said Founder. But by the opposition of the Lord Sey both they and their posterities are like to be deprived thereof.

Yo^r peticõners therefore humblie beseech yor Grace that you wilbe meanes that their cause maie have faire and speedie determinac̃on. Soe as neither the powerfull greatnes of their adversarie, nor the meane estate of y^r Grace's peticõners, maie p^r iudice the same, and y^r Grace's peticõners, accordinge to their bounden dutie, shall dailie praie, &c.

Petition to the King.

To the Kinges most excellent Matie.

The humble petition of Edward Wickham of Swacliff, in the countie of Oxon, & William Wickham of Abingdon, in the countie of Berks.

Humbly sheweth, That, whereas William Wickham, Bishop of Winton, & founder of New Colledg in Oxford, & the Colledg of Winchester, indulged p^r cedency & other previledges in those Colledges unto his kindred & their posteritie, Your petitioners, beinge descended of ye same bloode & kinred wth the said Bishop (as appeareth by the certificat of your Maties officers of armes, under the seale of their office: they beinge, upon the petition of the now petitioners, exhibited to the right hoñable the Earle Marshall of England, by his Lo^p required to examine the veritie of their pedegree & accordingly to certifye the same), att the last election at Winchester, tendered one Joseph Deane, a poor scholler of their bloode, to be chosen a childe there: producinge at the same tyme the certificat of the said officers of armes touchinge his descent, together wth the said Earle Marshall's owne attestation to the electors, that the said certificat was grounded upon a reference made by his Lop.

For as much as nether the petitioner's kinsman nor their cause could then be admitted by the Wardens and other electors of those Colledges by reason of the interposition of the Lo. Viscount Say & Seale, who beinge descended frõ one of the Bishop's sisters, to appropriat the aforesaid previledges wholy to his owne posteritie, endeavored to suppresse the petitioners right, & animated the said Wardens & electioners to that their denyall.

They humbly beseech your Matie to be graciously pleased to refer the examination of the prsent difference unto the right hõble the Earle Marshall of England, to whose place the examination of pedegrees and discentes doth propperly belonge, & to the right reverend father in God the Lo. Bishop of Winton, visiter of the said Colledges, wth some other whom your Matie shall thinke fitt, gevinge them power, after a full hearinge of all parties, & vewe of their exhibitts & other records, to put some fayer ende & speedie determination there unto, and your petitioners, as in dutie bound, will ever pray for your Maties longe & most happie reigne.

At the Courte at St. James, 18o Februa. 1635.

His Matie is pleased to refer this petition to the Lo. Arch Bishopp of Canterbury his Grace, the Earle of Arundell & Surrey, Earl Marshall of England, and the Lo. Bishopp of Winchester, for to heare & examine the truth of this complaynt, & to take such order therein as their Lops shall thinke good.

cleiring thereof, it is necessary that some of the Register bookes and other Records of the said Colledges be p^rused and examined, Theis are therefore to will and require you to p^rmitt and suffer the Pet^rs, or any other by them nominated, to see and p^ruse all or any the Register bookes and other Records whatsoever of the said Colledges, and to transcribe the coppies of such of them as they shall conceave p^rtinent to the matter in question. Provyded that you suffer them not to take any of the said Bookes out of the Colledges aforesaid, nor to transcribe any coppies but by such as yo^rselves shall appoint, or in the p^rsence of such officers that maybe carefull to see the bookes be not wronged. Objections and Answers in brief. The sentences within brackets are side-notes in the original.

[Lo. Viscount Sey & Seale.]

1. That the Wickhams of Swaclive were not of the same bloode wth ye Bishop, because about one yeare after the Bishop's death, one John Wickham of Swaclive was admittəd probationer into New College in Oxford; who, had he beene the Bishop's kinsman, should have been admitted fellow.

[By ye Prothocall, or register booke of New Colledg in Oxf.]

2. That the Coate borne by the Bishop was not his paternall coate, but was geven him in respect of his dignitie.

Sr Richard Fyennes, grandfather to the now Lo. Sey, claymed the coate borne by Bishop Wickham to be the propper coate of the Perrotts; but upon examination of the matter by the heralds it was denyed him, & adiudged to be the propper coate of the Wickhams of Swaclive.

3. That ye Bishop's father was noe gentleman, but a base fellow, & that his name was not John Wickham, but John Longe.

That the Bishop took his name Wickham, or de Wickham, from ye towne of Wickham where he was borne, & not from his father.

[Regnald Higden, munke of Chester.]

[The Geneallogies of ye register book of Winchester Colledg.]

And that Dr Lewes & Dr Awbery, upon the credit of the geneallogies written at the ende of the Prothocall booke of Winchester Colledg, reiected all the probabilities and prooffes wch Humfry Wickham produced to the contrary.

4. That the Bishop, in respect he was borne at a towne called Wickham, did not only take the name of the towne unto himself, but also caused Thomas, John, & William Perrott, the sons of his eldest sister's daughter, & his heires, to chainge their names from Perrott to Wickham.

5. That there were noe Wickhams of the Bishop's bloode, but only such as were discended frõ those Perrott Wickhams. Because there are noe other Wickhams named in the intayle of ye Bishop's lands; nor noe other Wickhams named kinsmen in his will, nor in a letter of attorney made to one of them, & Thom. Wick of Swaclive.

[The intayle; the Bishop's will; the letter of attorney.]

6. That the pedegree drawne by Hugh Cotgrave, Richmond Herald of Armes, & subscribed by him the 20th of Februarie, 12o Eliza. 1569, about 2 yeares before the death of the Duke of Norfolke, was after ward by the said Hugh Cotgrave, upon his better information, disallowed againe, & the true coate of the Wickhams approved by him at the foote of the said pedegree in the margent.

7. That the proper Coate of the Wickhams of Swaclive is a field ermins bordered gules, charged wth .... mullets Or, as appeares in the books of the office of armes & in ye windowes of Swacliffe church.

8. That William Camden, Clarenceux Kinge of Armes, aposinge at the foote of our pedegree drawne by Hugh Cotgrave the propper crest belonginge to the coate there allowed us, and subscribinge his name there unto, did not approve that coate to belonge to us.

[Wickham.]

That, about the yeare 1570, Humfry Wickham tendered his sonne to be chosen childe at Winchester as the founder's kinsman, wch Sir Richard Fyennes then opposinge, the decydinge thereof was by consent referred to the Duke of Norfolke, Earl Marshall of England.

That, by the appoyntment of the Earle Marshall, Hugh Cotgrave [Richmond] herald, and also Robert Cooke Clarenceux, & Rob: Darmer, accordinge to ancient evidences & prooffes out of the register booke of New Colledg, produced by Humfry Wickhã, did delineat his pedegree. And that upon prooffes then made, the coate wch the Bishop gave, & wch Sr Rich. Fyennes then claymed to belonge unto the Perrots, was allowed & adiudged to be the coate of Humf. Wickhãs predecessors, & annexed to the said pedegrees,

[The pedegree drawne by Ro. Cooke.]

That in Januarie [1572] the Duke of Norfolke dyed, and Humfry Wickham, at the election followinge, tendered his sonne againe at Winchester: Sr Rich. Fyennes againe opposinge his kindred, procured 3 of the electors to ioyne wth him therein; and then, by consent of all six ellectors, Sr Rich. Fynes & Humfry Wickham, the decydinge of the matter was referred to Sr Wm Cecill, Lo. Burleigh, Lo. Treasurer of England, who appoynted Dr Lewes & Dr Awbery to heare the allegations of both parties, & to certifye him what they found.

That not longe after Sr Rich. Fyennes dyed, and lefte a sonne Rich. Fyennes warde unto the Queene.

That, before the next election at Winchester, the Lord Burleigh havinge considered of the Drs certificat and Humfry Wickham's reply to some objections therein made against him, writ his letter to the Wardens of the Colledges in Wickham's behalfe, yet they againe denyed to admitt his sonne.

That there upon Humfry Wickham exhibited a Bill in Chancery against Dr White, Warden of New Colledg, & Dr Stemp, Warden of Winchester Colledg. But Dr White surrenderinge his place to Dr Culpepper, Dr Stempe only answered, & in his answer insisted only upon Humfry Wickham's clayme of Sr Rich. Fyennes his lands or inheritance, but denyed not, nor, upon examination of witnesses, disproved not any ꝑticular poynt of the bill.

That in ..... the cause was brought to a hearinge, but not decreed, & shortly after Humfry Wickham dyed, & left 4 sonnes, viz. Richard, Edward, Thomas, & Ferdinando. Rich. Wickham, eldest sonne to Humfry, never had issue, & therefore never revived the suite, & the younger brothers neglected it, because they were not of abilitie to contende wth such adversaries, in respect of the small meanes left them by their father, one of them also havinge noe issue at all, Thomas having only daughters, & Edward, one of the now petitioners, beinge married 8 yeares or upward before he had any childe.

That the said Rich. & Edward Wickham knowinge that Wm Wickham of Abingdon, their neerest kinsman in bloode & name, had a sonne whome he desyred to make a scholler, shewed unto the said Wm Wickham divers books & nots of all the afforesaid proceedinges betweene their father Humfry Wickham & Sr Rich. Fyennes; and thereupon the said Wm Wickham, intendinge to tender his sonne to be chosen as founder's kinsman into Winchester Colledg, repayred to the Lo. Sey, and acquainted him wth his intent. And in respect the cause for wch Sr Richard Fyennes did oppose Humfry Wickham's kindred to the founder was taken away (the intayle wch the Bishop made of his lands beinge cutt of), craved hisLoshps favor, & furtherance for the ꝑferment of his sonne, hopinge that upon his request his Lo'shp would at the least stand indifferent and desist to oppose the said Wickhams kindred. He the said Wickham offeringe to shewe unto his Lo'shp all his prooffes, and desyringe, if his Lo'shp by the sight of them should not be fully satisfyed that he was of the same bloode wth the founder, his Lo'shp would be pleased to refer the decydinge thereof to one or more, who might have power and authoritie to determine the same.

That, as the said Wm Wickham conceaved, the Lord Sey for a tyme seemed to yeald unto his request; but at the last, when the petitioner's sonne was allmost superannuated to be chosen at Winchester, his Lo'shps resolute answer was, that the said Wm Wickham should expect nothinge but what he could obteyne by lawe; and his Lop spake unto the Warden of New Colledg to denye the said Wickham to be of the same bloode wth the founder, promisinge to be at the charge of all suits wch should arrive thereby.

That, about July 1635, Edward & Wm Wickham petitioned ye right hoble Tho. Earle of Arundell & Surrey, Earle Marshall of England, that the officers of armes might by their records examine the veritie of their pedegree and kindred to the said Bishop, that soe his Lop might iudg thereof.

That the officers of armes, upon what they found recorded in their office upon the first difference betweene Sr Rich. Fyennes and Humfry Wickhã, did certifye his honor that the said Edward & Wm Wickham were of the same bloode wth Bishop Wickham the founder.

That, upon this certificate the Earle Marshall was gratiously pleased to write his letter to the Wardens & other officers of the said Colledges, to afford them those prvileges wch of right were due unto the said Edw. & Wm Wickham.

That at the election at Winchester in August 1635, the Petitioner Wm Wickham delivered the Earle Marshall's letter, & shewed the certificate under ye seale of the office of armes; &, his owne sonne being then superannuated, tendered one Joseph Deane of his bloode & kindred, beinge grand child to Margaret the sister of Humfry Wickham aforesaid, to be chosen childe there as of the founder's bloode.

That, by the Lo. Sey's meanes, the Wardens and other electors refused to admitt of the said Joseph Deane as the founder's kinsman, wch to prove, if they had beene pleased, or that their leasure would have p^r^mitted them to p^r^use the prooffes & probabilities alleaged heretofore by Humfry Wickham out of their owne register books & out of antient evidences, & a roll of accompts of the maynteynance of certayne schollers in Oxford by the Bishop before the erection of New Colledg, and out of the Bishop's will & intayle of his landes, & by an ancient geneallogie, agreeinge wth the said will & intayle, the said Wm Wickham would have shewed them unto them.

That the Bishop's father's name was not Perrott, for that, the Perrotts beinge his neerest kinsmen & his heires, he altered their names from Perrott to Wickham that they might inherit his name as well as his lands, nether did ye Bishop beare the armes of ye Perrotts.

That his father's name was nether Perrott nor Longe, for that the Bishop sued not forth his pardon by the name of Wm Perrott or Wm Longe, but by the name of William Wickham, or de Wickham. And he well knewe misnomer in a pardon made it voyde.

That in those tymes it was usiall to add de, or de la, before the surnames of men, and that divers of our ancestors did sometyme write them selves Wickham & sometyme de Wickham. Robert or Thomas de Wickham signifyinge Rob. or Tho. ye sonne of Wickham.

That the Bishop's father's name was not Longe, for that it appeares not by ye Bishop's will, nor by the intayle of his lands, nor by the register books of his Colledges (notwithstandinge divers Longes have beene admitted into his Colledges) that the Bishop ever had any kinsman of that name.

That the Bishop's father (accordinge to some writers) was called John Longe only in respect of his tallnes, or lenght of his stature.

[Bishop Godwine in his Catalogue.]

That there is noe credit in this poynt to be geven to the geneallogies written in the ende of ye register booke of Winchester, for that they are apparently false, one assertion in them disagreeinge wth an other, and because they disagree also wth the Bishop's will & intayle of his lands.

That the Bishop was a gentleman borne & a Wickham, his coate of armes of 2 chevernes betweene 3 roses doth witnes; wch is the same the Wickhams now geve, & wch their ancestors did geve before the Bishop was borne, & wch therefore, but by descent, the Bishop could not have geven.

That the said coate doth propply belonge unto these Wickhams, Robert Cooke, Clarenceux Kinge of Armes, & Rob. Darmer officer at armes at one tyme, Hugh Cotgrave [Richmond] herald at an other tyme, and afterward Wm Camden, Clarenceux Kinge of Armes, assigninge the crest there unto, have under their hands iustifyed and confirmed, & lastly they have beene confirmed unto them by all the officers of armes under the seale of their office.

That, if these armes (as the Lord Sey affirmeth) had beene geven the Bishop in regard of his dignitie, he beinge a clergie man, & soe in those dayes single, they had dyed wth him, & should not at any tyme have beene blazoned wth the difference of a younger brother, nor ought not to have beene quartered wth any other coate.

That at the funerall of Sr Richard Fyennes, Humfry Wickham did see the Bishop's armes quartered by Somerset herald wth the coate armor of Sr Rich. Fyennes.

That this coate of two cheverns betweene 3 roses, seeminge to be of great antiquitie, was seene by John Underhill crested sometyme wth a myter and sometyme wth a bull's head, & blazed in St. Martyn's church in Oxford, wth the difference of a mullet.

[The bull's head is allowed for our crest by Camden, Clarenceux Kinge of Armes, according to Underhill's deposition.]

That the same coate was seene in Thame church blazoned wth the like difference.

That upon such prooffes as these, this coate, when Sr Richard Fyennes denyed it to Humfry Wickham, and claymed it for the Perrotts, was allowed to Humfry Wickham by the heralds aforesaid, by the approbation of the Earle Marshall, & now to question it againe were to question the credit & judgment of the heralds and court of honor.

That in æquitie we ought not now to be driven to prove these thinges againe, in respect those armes beinge but in glasse are since broken and defaced, and the parties that did testifie them are dead.

That in the yeare 1539, one Agnes Wickham, the wife of William Faunt & Edward Bolney, was buried in the cathedrall church of Canterbury wth this coate of the two chevernes betweene 3 roses ingraven in brasse on the fower corners of the grave stone.

That Wm Camden in his Britannia reporteth, that when William Wickham was made overseer of the kinges buildinges at Winsor, he caused these words, hoc fecit Wickham, to be ingraven in a wall of the said buildinges, for wch beinge questioned by the kinge, he answered, that that made Wickham, meaninge himself, whereby it is apparent that his name was Wickham.

That, by the epitaph upon the Bishop's tombe at Winchester, not sett there wthout the approbation of his executors, who doubtlesly well knew his name, it is apparent that his name was Wickham, for it beginnes thus: Willhelmus dictus Wichamus jacet hic nece victus. Longus would as well have stoode in the verse as Wichamus.

That if the Bishop's name had not beene Wickham from his father, but Longe, it was a great absurditie in the author of the first parte of the geneallogies written in ye ende of ye Register booke of Winchester Colledg to say: fuit igitur Willielmus Wickham de quo loqui disposui apud opidum de Wickham enixus, for fuit igitur Willielmus Longus de quo, &c. But the author, to his best abilitie, was willinge to expresse in the most rethorical manner he could, that the Bishop's surname was simply Wickham, & de Wickham a loco, and that it was a grace to the towne to have soe excellent a man of its name to be borne there, & a grace to the Bishop to be borne in a towne of his owne name. If the Bishop's surname had beene altogether unknowne unto the author, he would certaynly then have said: fuit igitur Willielmus, or fuit igitur Willielmus Episcopus de quo loqui, &c.

That, in a booke in New Colledge Librarie, called Vita Wichami, written longe since the beginninge of the aforesaid suits betweene Sr Rich. Fyennes ..... Wickham, & as we conceave purposely to avoyd our clayme, we finde ..... Wicham natus fuit in pago sui nominis, & for this he cyteth in the margent ..... records of the Colledg of Winchester & some other authors. Now the name of the ..... where ye Bishop was borne is Wickham, & therefore the Bishop's name was also Wickham . . . . . he could not be borne in pago sui nominis.

That, by a geneallogie of exceeding great antiquitie . . . . . with the Bishop's will & intayl of his lands, it is apparent that the Bishop's father's name was Wickham.

That Dr Harpsfeild, a New Colledg man, and sometyme Archdeacon of Canterbury (who dyed longe before that Sr Rich. Fyennes denyed Humfry Wickham to be of the same bloode wth the founder [a]), in his Ecclesiastical History of England doth testifye, that the Bishop was descended frõ Sr Robert Wickham, & that that geneallogie was then extant, cum multis aliis.

Harpsfeild in historia Eccle. Anglicanæ, fol. 550, in textu et margine.

CASE,

With the Lord Say's Objections & the Answers.

The Lord Sey, to prove that the Wickhams of Swaclive are not of the kindred of Bishop Wickham the founder of New Colledg in Oxford,

Alleageth,

Ob. 1. That by the statutes of New Colledg in Oxford none that are of the founder's kyndred ought to be admitted probationers, but fellowes of the said Colledg.

But John Wickham of Swaclive, as appeares by the register book of the same Colledg, was admitted probationer in the yeare 1403, wch was but one yeare after the founder's death, and he must needs be admitted child of Winchester in the founder's life time: And then if ye Wickhams of Swaclive had beene of his kindred, it should not have beene vnknowne unto him, he havinge bought the parsonage of Swaclive of him: And therefore conclude that the Wickhams of Swaclive are not kyn to the founder.

Ans. 1. To this we answer, that at this present there are at Swaclive two families of the Wickhams, wch have continued there for many ages, & are not, nor never were, knowne to be any kin to each other, And therefore but one of these famelies could be kin to the founder, & that was the famely of Sr Robert Wickham, lord of Swaclive: Nether doth or ever did the other famely clayme to be of the same bloode wth Sr Robert Wickham or wth the founder.

And therefore the admittance of John Wickham of Swaclive of that family wch was noe kin, as a probationer, doth not dis-prove the kyndred of Sr Robert Wickham's famely to the founder.

[a] Not true. He died in 1583, and the denial was in 1570, see vol. i. p. 227.

Also in respect it is evident by an ancynt roll of accomptes made of the expences of schollers mayntayned in Oxford by the Bishop before the erection of New Colledg, that one Richard Wickham was of the bloode of the Bishop.

And that it is apparent by the register book & other records of the Colledg, that Nicholas Wickham ye first Warden of that Colledg was of the founder's bloode.

That Thomas Wickham of the bloode of the founder was fellow of New Colledg in the founder's life time, viz. in the yeare 1390, as appears by a roll of the burser's accompts, annis Rich: 2i 14o & 15o.

And that one John Wickham of the founder's bloode was admitted into Winchester Colledg 1393, and that ten yeares after, viz. 1403, one other John Wickham of the founder's bloode was named in election to be Warden of New Colledg in Oxford, (for in respect that none above 15 yeares of age may be admitted into Winchester Colledg, and that none are elegible to the office of Warden under 30 yeares of age, it is evident that there were two John Wickhams of the founder's bloode:) and it appeares also by a roll of accoumpt for the 5 and 6 yeares of Richard the Second 1381, in wch roll is found, In lib Magistro Johannni Wikeham consanguineo domini diversis vicibus hoc anno ex mandato dñi xxli.

And that Percevall Wickham of Swaclive of the founder's bloode and of our famely was sworne of Winton. Colledg in the yeare 1439.

And that the aforesaid Richard, Nicholas, Thomas, & John Wickham were not descended frõ any of the Wickhams wch were the children of Wm & Alice Perrott, because then the founder's lands had not descended to a daughter.

It must be granted that besides the Perrotts, whose names were altered frõ Perrott to Wickham, there were divers Wickhams of the same bloode wth the founder—And that all those Wickhams were of one & the same family—Or els that the Bishop was a kinsman in bloode vnto two famelies of the Wickhams, whereof the one was noe kyn to the other.

Wch if the Lord Sey or the Wardens of the Colledges shall admitt, it being apparent that Percevall Wickham was of the famely of Sr Robert Wickham of Swaclive, let them show of what other famely the rest were.

Nota:—Therefore to conclude this poynt, the admission of John Wickham of Swacliffe Probationer in the year 1403, And the admission of Percevall Wickham and of the bloode of the founder in the yeare 1438, doth playnly prove that, as at this present there are, soe heretofore there were, two famelyes of the Wickhams in Swaclive noe kin to each other, & whereof the one was kin, the other no kin to the Bishop.

That there were somme of ether of these famelies of the Wickhams livinge also in Hampshire or diocesse of Winchester as well as in Swalecliffe, appeares by the admission of John & Richard Wickham into Winton Colledg in the founder's life time: John beinge admitted as his kinsman, & Richard as noe kynne.

Whether Humfry Wickham, now Lord of Swalecliffe, & Thomas Wickham, now also of Swalecliffe, be or ever were reputed to be of the same bloode. See at the ende of this booke what Thomas Harper hath heard the said Thomas Wickham say. See also what Thomas Wickham's mother hath acknowledged under her hand.

Besides these Wickhams of Swaclive wch are not of the famely of Sr Robert Wickham, lord of Swaclive, there were divers Wickhams livinge in Banbury, about 5 miles distant from Swaclive, wch were noe kin to the said Sr Robert, nor to the Bishop, of wch famely were Symon Wickham of Banbury & others, frõ somme of whome Dr Wickhã, sometime of Baliall Colledg in Oxford, but late of Chichester, was descended.[b]

Ob. 2. Secondly, to prove that the founder was not of the famely of Sr Robert Wickham of Swaclive, the Lo: Sey affirmeth that he was noe gentleman borne, and that the coate he gave was not his paternall coate; & for confirmation thereof, alleageth two geneallogies written in the ende of the statute book of the Colledg by Winchester, producinge the copyes of them examined & subscribed by Clarenceux Kinge of Armes, & Dr Stampe Warden of the same Colledg.

And to free them from forgery and falshoode, & to inforce the truth of them, he sayeth:

1. First, that they were written in the ouldest register book of the Colledg.

[b] See vol. ii. p. 384. He was Rector of Storrington, co. Sussex, and bur. there Aug. 21, 1621. Elizabeth, the wife of Simon Wickham, was buried there April 24, 1606. These are the only entries of Wickham in the Register.

2. Then that the booke wherein they were written, hath allwayes remayned in ye custodie of the Colledg.

3. Thirdly, that they were written in the life tyme of Agnes, daughter to Matild cosen-german to the founder, & soe if they had not been true would then have beene controuled when the truth was soe well knowne.

4. Fowerthly, for that they doe agree wth the Bursers accoumpts, wth the admission of schollers, & the traditions of the Colledg from their ancestors, as appears by a certificat under the handes of Dr Stempe, & Mr Larke, Warden & Subwarden of the same Colledg.

5. Fifthly, for that they agree wth the founder's will, wherin legacies are geven unto divers men mentioned in the said geneallogies, under the name of kinsmen, and wth the intayle of his lands soe fully as if they had beene drawne out of them.

6. Sixtly, for that the credit of these geneallogies seemed soe great to Dr Lewes and Dr Awbery, appoynted by the Lo: Treasurer Burleigh, to heare this matter, when it was first controverted betweene Humfry Wickham & Sr Richard Fyennes, that there upon espetialy they reiected the proofes & presumptions of Humfry Wickham as not beinge compatible therew^th^.

7. Seaventhly, for that Somerset Herald, gevinge his opinion in this matter, confirmed what was written in these geneallogies, sayinge that he hadd readd certayne learned authors' opinions of the Bishop, which did all agree that he was libertinus, vel a patre libertino natus, wch he sayth consenteth wth what is said in these geneallogies, viz. that he was progenitorum libertate dotatus: And for proofe of this he referreth himself to certaine letters of the Lo: Burleigh & Somerset Herald concerninge this matter.

Ans. 2. We grant that there are two geneallogies or more written at the beginninge or before the beginninge, on the inside of the cover of an ould, if not the ouldest, statute or register book of Winchester Colledg: But say, that their beinge there written is noe proofe of their antiquitie.

Nether can we admit it for an aphorisme, that the antiquitie of books must allway inforce their truth; for then there is nothinge soe false, but that by printinge or writinge thereof it may in time be inforced to be true.

It is apparent that W^m^, John, & Thomas Wickham, the sonnes of Perrott, were all dead before these geneallogies were written, for in them they are said to be nunc mortuos, whereby it must follow y^t^ they were not written in 37 years after the Bishop's death, for that Thomas Wickham soe longe survived the Bishop; and for ought we can conceave they may be written 40 years after. See ye office found upon Tho: Wickham's death.

And allthough we will not brand the authors of these geneallogies wth forgerie, that is wth writinge of lyes wittingly & willingly, of purpose to wronge posteritie, yet we shall make it appeare that these geneallogies are very false & erroneous.

As touchinge the former parte of these geneallogies, if we shall grant that it was written in the life time of Agnes, daughter to Matild (allthough we conceave the founder had noe such cosen-german, because there is noe such mentioned in his will) yet the latter partes of these geneallogies might be written a longe time after, for, as we are informed, they are written secundum quosdam, & secundum alios, & in different handes from the former parte, wherefore we desyer the book it self may be produced.

We confesse that the book wherein these geneallogies are written, hath allwayes remayned close kept in the Colledg: And therefore we say, if, when those geneallogies were first written, the said Agnes were livinge, & that she knew the true name of the founder's father, his sisters, brothers in lawe, uncles, aunts, kindred, & allyance, & could have understoode the latin tongue (wch is not very likely), yet in respect these geneallogies were obscurly kept in the Colledg, & not divulged & exposed to the oppen & publike vewe of the world, they were not only alltogether unknowne unto the said Agnes, but to all other who knew the truth, & therefore could not then de controwled by her or any of them.

Againe, these geneallogies beinge written upon the cover of an ould book in divers hands secundum quosdam & secundum alios by nameles authors, the actes of children of the schoole, (for others then children could not have committed such errors in penninge of a geneallogie as are to be found in these,) they were then by the wiser sorte in the Colledg regarded as thinges of noe esteeme, & soe not questioned nor controuled by them.

We grant that these geneallogies may in somme thinges agree wth the Bursers accoumpts, the admission of schollers, & wth some traditions delivered to those of the Colledg from their pdecessors, but what those traditions were is not yet explayned, nether is their agreement in those poynts much materiall; they beinge thinges acted & doone when the children wch writt these geneallogies might live in the Colledg. Nether ought Dr Stempe's certificat to be alleaged as a thinge of any force against us, he beinge one of Humfry Wickham's adversaries in this cause, & (as we may say) Sr Richard Fyennes his creature: See Stempes Ans: to Wick. bill in ye Chancery.

Farther we grant that soe farforth as those geneallogies doe agree wth the founder's will, & the intayle of his landes (wch is but in few thinges) they are true; but their contrarietie to the will & intayle doth prove their falshoode.

For allthough the syrnames and christian names of divers men and weomen specified in these geneallogies to be the founder's kindred & allyance, doe agree wth somme syrnames & somme christian names of men & weomen mentioned in the founder's will & in the intayle of his landes to be his kyndred & allyance, yet in respect they are not sett downe in these geneallogies in the right place & degree of their kindred and allyance—And that somme of them wch agree wth the will or intayle in their syrname, disagree therewth in their christian name—And other, agreeinge in their christian name, disagree in their syrname, & the like, we deny these geneallogies to be true.

And by the juditious comparinge of these geneallogies wth ye Bishop's will & the intayle of his landes, & wth a geneallogie wch by chance is come unto our hands, & wch we conceave by the very lookes thereof is far more ancient then these; but certaynly more agreeable to the founder's will & the intayle of his landes; conteyninge not only the founder's pedegree, & the progenie of his sisters, but also the descent & progenies of divers other gentlemen of good rank & qualitie, in such sorte as may releave it from all suspition that it should be delineated of sett purpose to expresse the descent, issue, or offspring of any one of them more then of the other: wherein it appeareth that the founder had two sisters, and that his father's name was Wickham, though haply for his talents or length of stature, he might by somme be nicknamed Longe, as Bishop Godwine in his catalogue of our English Bishops, relates to have beene by some affirmed.

7. Now as touchinge Somersett's opinion geven in this matter, grounded upon his readinge of divers learned authors concerninge the Bishop, all wch he sayth agree that he was humilis conditionis, and that he was called Wickham a loco unde natus est, et non a parentibus:

We grant that in respect of wealth the Bishop at the first was but of a lowe or meane estate, and that he might be called de Wickham from the place of his birth; but that he was not called Wickham from his father we denye; and to prove that his father's name was Wickham will cyte as many & as learned authors as have beene yet coated to the contrary. [Nicholas Harpsfeild, who geves good reasons for his opinion.]

For by this obiection of the Lo: Sey, it seemeth that Somerset, for the confirmation of his opinion, of all his learned authors cyteth only Ragnald munk of Chester, who sayth that the Bishop was libertinus vel a patre libertino natus, by wch it is manifest that the munk was doubtful what he was.

Nether doe these words prove that he was Wickham a loco & non parentibus; but, in the opinion of Somersett or of the Lo: Sey, these words consent wth those in the forecyted geneallogies, viz. that he was progenitorum libertate dotatus:

After the author of the former part of the forecyted geneallogies, had declared the founder's mother's name to be Sibbill, and that she was a gentlewoman well descended, he sayth pater vero eius Johannes nomine, progenitorum libertate dotatus, honestum moribus et gesturis se omnibus exhibebat: out of wch words our opposers doe infer that the founder's father was noe gentleman; but we cannot conceave how this consequence can be drawne out of them, except they will affirme that a gentleman ought not to inioy the libertie of his ancestors, nor show him self honest in his manners & behavior, for the words can be noe otherwise translated then thus:

And his father, by name John, endowed wth the libertie of his progenitors, did shew him self honest in all his manners and behavior. [Nota: non patris sed ꝑgenitorū libertate dotatus.]

Againe it is manyfest, or at the least may well be coniectured, by the founder's father's marriage wth a gentleman's eldest daughter, & by the marriage of his father's sister to John Achemore a gentleman also; and by the marriage of the founder's sisters & their daughters to Champnes, Perrott, Ringebone, Warner, Ayno, Mauile, & others of good rank & qualitie, that the father & aunt of the founder were not descended from soe poore and base a stock as the Lo: Sey (in some sorte to his owne dishonor) by misinterpreting or to much creditinge those false & childishly written geneallogies, endeavours to derive them.

And because the Lo: Sey doth acknowledg & confesse that the credit of these geneallogies seemed soe great to Dr Lewes & Dr Awbery, appoynted by the Lo. Treasurer Burleigh to heare this matter when it was first controverted betweene Humfry Wickham & Sr Richard Fyennes, that there vpon espetialy they reiected all the prooffes & presumptions of Humfry Wickham, as not compatible therewth, we desyer that the credit of these geneallogies may be examined:

[Geneallogies examined.] As it is said before, they are written upon the inside of the cover of an ould register book of Winchester Colledg; but when or by whome they were written it cannot be knowne; nor how long the one part was written after the other, for they are without date, & not written at one tyme, because written in divers handes, & therefore also not by one but by divers authors, and those nameles, some children as may be supposed of Winchester Schoole, who for want of lattine, or iudgment, or both, were not able to set downe truly those truthes wch they had heard of their founder's birth and kyndred, much lesse to descerne a nickname from a true name, or flyinge & false reportes (though never soe grosse and palpable) from the truth; but whatsoever they heard, they sett it downe accordinge to the best skill their childish capacitie did afford: secundum quosdam & secundum alios, not making, because not knowinge, any difference betweene oppidum & pagum, a cittie or walled towne, and a cuntrie towne or village; nor betweene amitam & materteram, an aunt by the father's side & an aunt by the mother's side; nor betweene fratres & uterinos, or leuiros, brothers, & brothers of half bloode, or brothers in lawe, ether by their owne marriage or by the marriage of their parentes; nor betweene patrem & vitricum, a father & a stepfather.

[De psapia:] For, say they, Willielmus Wicam enixus fuit apud oppidum de Wicam in comitatu Southampton, whereas that Wicam in Hampshier (as it is well knowne) is but pagus, a cuntrie village.

[Secundum quosdam:] They say also, Willielmus Stratton procreauit de Alicia Stratton tres filias, Aliciam, Julianam, et Allianoram, or Elianoram. And that Willielmus Boude duxit Aliciam in vxorem de qua habuit filiam nomine Sibillam, mother to the Founder: whereby it followeth that Julian & Elinore were the Founder's mother's sisters, & soe materteræ, aunts by the mother's side, to Sibbill, & magnæ materteræ, great aunts by the mother's side, to the Founder; yet, wthin 4 or 5 lines after, these childish geneallogies doe call Julian & Elinore the Founder's mother's aunts by the father's side, sayinge, Julianam amitam matris fundatoris duxit Richardus Botasle in vxorem, et Elianoram amitam matris fundatoris duxit in vxorem Richardus Kerswell.

[Wm Perrott eldest.] Also by these geneallogies William, beinge in them first named, should be ye eldest sonne, & Thomas, beinge last named, should be the youngest sonne of Wm & Alice Perrott. But it is evident by the Bishop's will, & the intayle of his lands, that Thomas was the eldest & William the youngest sonne.

Also in these geneallogies, next after the progenie of the Bishop's eldest sister Agnes, the daughters of John Achemore & Alice, the Bishop's father's sister, are registered to be the neerest in blood to the Bishop: And that the eldest of them, named Emma, was first espoused to John Warner, & then to Wm Carpenter; And that the second, named Margeria or Margeretta, was espoused first to Ringebone, then to Mauiell or Mauile, & then to Rockloe.

But by the Bishop's will & the intayle of his landes, it is apparent that the name of his kinswoman married to Warner was Jone, the name of his kinswoman married to Ringebone was Edith, & that Guie Ayno married an other kinswoman of his called Agnes. The said Edith, Jone, & Agnes beinge in truth the daughters of the Bishop's second sister, as by the ancient geneallogie produced by us is most evident, & by the said intayle may playnly be perceaved.

Nota:—We do not insist upon the Bishop's havinge of two sisters for any advantage to our cause, or for proffe of our kyndred, as if we were descended from one of his sisters: Nor any way to ꝑiudice the Lo. Seye's kindred, but only for the truth's sake, for we conceave there is none of the progenie of the second sister now livinge.

Also whereas in these geneallogies it is said that Richard Benet did wedd wth Emma the daughter of Julian Stratton & Richard Botasle, it is more probable by the intayle that Rich. Bennet did marry wth Emma the daughter of John Achemore & Alice the Bishop's father's sister, because the Bishop did intayle his lands to the heires of Bennet: And it is not likely that he did intayle them to his kindred by his mother's side.

Also in these geneallogies the sonne of Warner, by the Bishop's kinswoman, is named John, whereas by the will it appeares that his name was Thomas.

Also in these geneallogies two of the Bishop's kinsweomen, to witt, Margerie & Alice, are said to be espoused to Mauile: But by the intayle of the Bishop's lands, it is apparent that the name of one of the Bishop's kinsweomen married to Mauile was Isabell. And by his will it is evident that the other was Jone.

Also we doe fynde by the Bishop's will that Agnes espoused to Woodlocke, Edith espoused to Crasier, & Agnes espoused to Sannes, were his kinsweomen: But in respect he did not intayle his lands upon any of these or their issue, it seemes they were his kinsweomen by his mother's side.

But that the Bishop had any kinswoman called Matilda, or Zelota, or any kinswoman married to Carpenter or Rocklo, as in these geneallogies is sett forth, Or that John Bowlney did marry wth Jone daughter to Agnes & grandchild to Matild, doth not appeare by the Bishop's will, nor by the intayle of his lands, nor by them cannot be coniectured.

[John Philpott, Somerset.] But that Edward Bowlney did marry wth one Agnes Wickham, a kinswoman of the Bishop's, who dyed in the yeare 1539, doth appeare by the inscription & armes of two cheverons between three roses, ingraued in brasse upon her tombestone, in the south ile, betweene the boddie & upper parte of the Cathedral Church in Canterbury.

[Secundum alios.] Againe in the latter parte of these geneallogies it is thus said, Johannes Longe, pater fundatoris, habuit fratrem nomine Henricum Ahas, &c: Now by the difference of their surnames, it is apparent that Henry Ahas could not be absolute brother to John the Founder's father, were his name Wickham or Longe. Nether could they be brothers in lawe, by ether's marriage of the other's sister, if the former parte of these geneallogies be true; for it is there said that John Longe the Founder's father married wth Sibbill Boude, and that Alice, the only sister to the Founder's father, was married to John Achemore, & by him had 13 daughters, whereof there are only six named, & of them scarce two rightly, as allreaddie hath beene shewed.

If it shall be alleaged that John the Founder's father and Henry Ahas might be brothers by havinge the same mother, but not the same father, ether by Ahas his marriage of John Longe's father's widdow, & havinge of Henry by her, or els by Jo. Longe's father's marryinge of Ahas his widdow, & begettinge John uppon her; If it shall be admitted that John, the Founder's father, & Henry Ahas were such brothers, yet in a geneallogie they ought not to be written simply fratres, but uterini, or fratres semigermani: Nether could they be such brothers, if the Lo: Sey will heare admitt of the like argument as he urgeth against us in his 4th & 5th obiection.

For if Hen: Ahas & the Founder's father were brothers of the half bloode, it must follow that Fælicia Ahas of Romsey, mentioned in the same geneallogie to be grandchild to Henry Ahas, was kyn to the Founder, wch she was not, because the Founder in his will gave her a legacie of 5li, yet doth not there terme her kinswoman, as he did others of his kyndred to whome he gave legacies: And therefore the Founder's father & Hen. Ahas were not brothers of the half bloode.

We deny not but that John the Founder's father & Henry Ahas might be fratres collectanij, foster brothers, or fratres conuoti, sworne brothers, or leuiri, brothers by John's father's marriage wthi the relict or widdow of Ahas, or by Henry Ahas his marriage wth the relict of John's father. And were it soe, yet we cannot conceave how in the writinge of the geneallogie of one of these brothers, the other beinge not kin should have a place therein; or if for somme reasons he be admitted to have a place, it cannot be the place of fratris, but of leuiri, or of fratris conuoti, or collectanij, & soe wch way soever this geneallogie must needes be false.

In like sorte those children wch, many yeares after the first parte of these geneallogies was written, penned the latter partes secundum quosdam, & secundum alios (as may be conceaved by the difference of hands wherein they are written) Notwthstandinge in the former parte of these geneallogies, they did fynde that their Founder, William Wickham, was borne at the towne of Wickham, & that his mother's name was Sibbill, & his father's name John, wthout any addition of their surnames: And might thereby have easely perceaved or collected, that William Wickham the sonne of John, could not be the naturall sonne of any other John but John Wickham: And that John Longe could not be pater but vitricus Wickhami, not the father but the step-father of Wickham; or that the name Longe must needs be some nickname imposed upon him: w^th^out any consideration or examination of these matters say that secundum quosdam Johannes Longe duxit Sibillam in vxorem de qua p'creavit filium nomine Wilhelmum Episcopum: And that secundū alios Johannes Longe, pater fundatoris, habuit fratrem nomine Henricum Ahas, it beinge as true that the Founder's naturall father's true name was John Longe, as that he had a naturall brother of his whole bloode called Henry Ahas.

Thus much may suffice to be spoken of the agreement of these geneallogies wth the Bishop's will & the intayle of his lands, & of their truth & credit, upon wch espetialy Humfry Wickham's prooffes & ꝑsumptions were heretofore recited by Dr Lewes & Dr Awbrey.

Now that the truth of what we have spoaken concerninge these geneallogies may the better & more easely be understoode: And their disagreement wth the Bishop's will & the intayle of his landes playnly descerned, we have not only sett them downe verbatim, but also delineated them severally to the eye; first that which describes the ofspringe of Alice, sister to the Founder's father, then that secundum quosdam, & lastly that secundum alios.

De prosapia eiusdem & vbi et ex quibus originem duxit.

[The geneallogies in the register book.] Reuerendi in Christo domini Willielmi Wikeham nuper Episcopi Wintoñ originem literis traditurus, ex verbis beatissimi Petri Apostolorum principis sumo exordium, qui beati Centurionis fidem admirans, in veritate inquit comperi quia non est personarum acceptor Deus, sed in omni gente qui timet Deum, et operatur iustitiam, acceptus est ei: In omni itaq; ætate, in omni ordine, in omni gradu, nouit Dominus qui sunt eius, et miseretur cui voluerit, et misericordiam præstat, in quem sibi placuerit, attingens a fine vsq; ad finem fortiter, Et disponens omnia suaviter; Neq; enim sui ipsius natura, vel paupertas præstat, vel adimunt diuitiæ diuinam gratiam. Fuit igitur de quo loqui disposui Wiłłmus Wikham Christianæ professionis hæres apud oppidum de Wikham in comitatu Southampton fælici momento enixus. Et sic a loco nomen assumpsit et nomen cum loco Elogio perpetuo decorauit. Cuius ortus primordia, ex parte matris nomine Sibillæ, generosa prosapia natalibus legibus insigniuit: pater vero eius Johannes nomine, progenitorū libertate dotatus, honestum moribus et gesturis se omnibus exhibebat. O quam fælices non opibus sed virtutibus, O quam generosa chastitas cum claritate!

Alicia quæ fuit soror Johannis Long, patris Wiłłmi Wikeham Episcopi Wintoñ et fundatoris istius Collegij, desponsata fuit Johanni Achemore, ex quibus processerunt xiij filiæ, quarum vna vocatur Emma, mater Johannis Warner et Wiłłmi Carpenter.

Altera vocabatur Margerita, mater Edithæ Ringebone, et Isabellæ Mauile, et Johannis Rocklo.

Altera vocabatur Alicia, mater Roberti Mauile de Strata Hide, Wintoñ.

Altera vocabatur Matilda, ex qua processit Agnes adhuc viuens in West Stratton, ex qua processit Johanna desponsata Johanni Bolney in comitatu Sussex.

Altera vocabatur Joanna, mater Zelotæ, quæ morabatur apud Westmene.

Agnes Champnes soror Domini Wilhelmi Wikeham fundatoris nostri fuit mater Aliciæ Perrott, quæ Alicia fuit mater Thomæ Wikeham militis.

Itē secundum quosdam Wiłłmus Stratton procreauit de Alicia Stratton iuxta Shurborne, quatuor filios, Richardum, Stephanum, Robertum, et Johannem; qui obierunt sine liberis, ac etiam tres filias, Aliciam, Julianam, et Ellianoram.

Wiłłmus Boude duxit Aliciam in vxorem, ex qua procreavit filiam nomine Sibillam, quam Johannes Longe duxit in vxorem, de qua habuit filium nomine Wilhelmum Episcopum, et filiam nomine Agnetem, quæ Agnes habuit filiam nomine Aliciam, quam Wiłłmus Perrott duxit in vxorem, ex qua procreavit tres filios, Wilhelmum, Johannem, et Thomam nunc mortuos: Qui Thomas vocabatur Thomas Wikeham miles, et duxit in vxorem filiam Wiłłmi Wilkesis armigeri, de qua procreavit filios et filias.

Julianam, amitam matris fundatoris, Richardus Botasle duxit in vxorem; de qua habuit filiam nomine Emmam, quam Richardus Bennet duxit in vxorem, de qua habuit filium nomine Richardum.

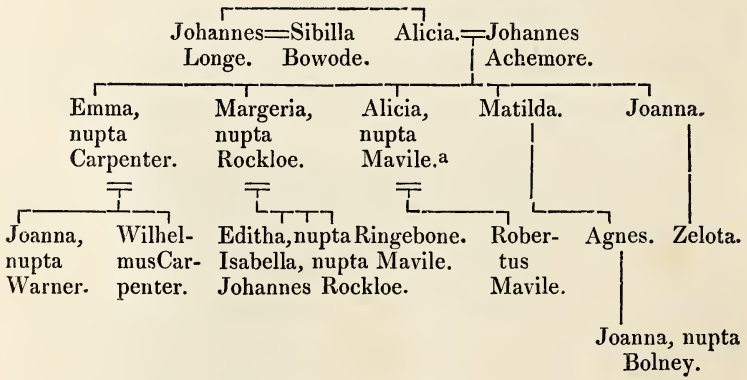
Elianoram, amitam matris fundatoris, duxit in vxorem Richardus Kerswell de Stockbridg; de qua habuit filiam, nomine Elizabetham, quam Rogerus Conige duxit in vxorem, de qua habuit filiam nomine Joannam.

Item, secundum alios, Johannes Longe pater fundatoris habuit fratrem nomine Henricum Ahas; Qui Henricus Ahas habuit tres filios, Wilhelmum, Richardum, et Radulphum.

Radulphus iste habuit filium nomine Willmum, et tres filias, Fæliciam Abatissam [Ahas?] de Romsey.—

The geneallogie of Alice, ye Bishop's father's sister, delineated as if "nuptæ" were inserted betweene Joannæ & Warner, Edithæ & Ringborne, Isabellæ & Mauile: wth wch addition, although in some thinges it be a little more agreeable to ye intayle of the Founder's lands, yet ye falsehoode thereof doth still remayne in others.

[Nether may this word "nuptæ" be soe inserted without wrestinge of the author's meaninge, for had he soe intended it, he should have soe expressed it.]



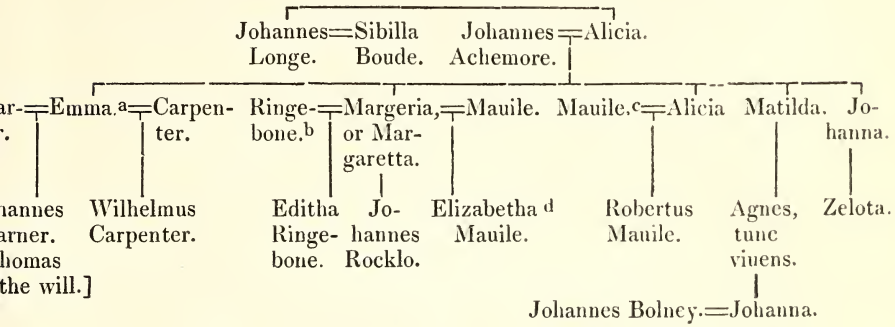
It doth not appeare by ye Bishop's will, or by the intayle of his lands, that he had any kinswoman married ether to Carpenter or Rokloe.

Of 13 daughters, wch in this geneallogie John Achemore is said to have begotten upon Alice ye Bishop's father's sister, here

[a] Wm Maville married wth 2 kinswomen of the Bishop, as appeares by ye Bishop's will & the intayle of his landes, but nether of their names was Alice: For the first was Isabell, grandchild to Alice, the Bishop's father's sister, and upon her issue, after ye issue of his sister, ye Bishop did intayle his landes. The second was Jane, daughter to ye Bishop's mother's aunt, and to her ye Bishop in his will did geve a legacie: But did not intayle his landes upon her issue. For he did not intayle his landes to any of his kindred by his mother's side.

Had Wm Mavile's second wife's name beene Alice, Yet it is altogether improbable that she should be the daughter of John & Alice Achemore, For soe he should have married wth his first wife's aunt.

are only 5 named, and of them only two rightly, viz. Margerie & Emma; and then the issue of these two is here quite mistaken, for Edith and Jane marred to Ringebone & Warner are heere said to be y^e daughters of this Margerie & Emma, whereas by the intayle of y^e Bishop's lands & our ould geneallogie, it is evident, they were y^e daughters of y^e Bishop's younger sister.



Thomas Warner married wth Jone, one of the Bishop's second sister's daughters, & not wth Emma Achemore, & had issue Thomas & not John, as by the intayle of the Bishop's lands, his will, & our ancient geneallogie is most manyfest.

Nether did Wm Ringebone marry wth Margery or Margeret Achemore but wth Edith, one other daughter of the Bishop's second sister, & by her had issue William & not Edith, as by the intayle of the Bishop' lands, his will, & our ancient geneallogie is also evident.

It may be well coniectured by the ould geneallogie by us produced, and the intayle of the Bishop's landes, that the Bishop had noe neece called Matilda nor cosen-german called Agnes. But it is apparent that he had a neece called Agnes marryed to Guie Ayno, whose mother the Bishop's second sister might be called Matilda, for in the ould geneallogie the Bishop's second sister's name is not expressed. And by the Bishop's will it is very probable (if not certayne) that at the time of the makinge thereof, there was noe such Agnes livinge that had any such issue livinge as Jone married to Bolney, because in the will there is noe legacie geven to such Agnes or to her issue.

[a] Johanna by the intayle.

[b] Both by the intayle and will and our ould geneallogie, Ringbone married with Edith, and by her had W^m.

[c] Mauile by the intaile & will married wth Isabell & Jone.

[d] Isabella.

Clarenceux kinge of Armes, at the earnest request of Sr Richard Fyennes, might certifie under his hand, that these geneallogies were written at the ende of the register book of Winchester Colledg.

And Somersett Herald might report to Dr Lewes & Dr Awbery that he had read somme authors, wch did agree wth those geneallogies that the Bishop was called de Wickham from the place of his birth, & that he was progenitorum libertate dotatus; & we denye it not.

But nether Clarenceux nor Somersett could iustify these geneallogies to be true, or agreeable wth the Bishop's will & the intayle of his lands.

And it is most probable that such authors as agree wth these geneallogies took their errors upon trust from these geneallogies, never examininge nor comparinge them wth the Bishop's will or the intayle of his landes, nor wth the pardons he sued forth, nor wth the licenses he took to build his colledges.

a Non amitæ matris fundatoris, sed materteræ.

b It is more probable that Bennet did marrie wth Emma the daughter of Achmore, because ye Bishop intayled his landes to his father's kindred.

c John Bennet, both by the intayle & will.

d William is first named in this geneallogie: But the intayle & will shew him to be ye youngest brother.

Secundum alios.

If John Longe & Henry Ahas were brothers by ether of these wayes, It should have beene said Johannes Longe habuit leuirum nomine Henricum Ahas.

Or thus.

If John Longe & Henry Ahas were brothers by ether of these wayes, the author should have said Johannes Longe habuit vterinum nomine Henricum Ahas.

This geneallogie of the Bishop's kyndred, both by his father & mother, is not only agreeable wth the ancient geneallogie by us produced, & wth the Bishop's will & the intayle of his landes, but also wth the geneallogies in the register book of Winchester Colledg, soe far forth as they may be coniectured to be true or agreeable wth the Bishop's will or the intayle of his landes, & doth confirme the Lo: Sey's kindred to the Bishop. And for the difference of this from the geneallogies in the register book we geve these reasons folloinge.

First, in respect that in the geneallogies in the register book the Bishop is said to have a kinswoman called Jone, grandchild to Ellinor his grandmother's sister: And that by ye intayle of his landes it is evident that Wm Mauiell or Mauile did marry a kinswoman of his called Isabell, upon whose issue the Bishop did intayle his landes: And that it likewise appeares by the Bishop's will, that Wm Mauiell or Mauile did also marry a kinswoman of his called Jone, upon whose issue the Bishop did not intayle his landes: It may well be coniectured that Isabell, the first wife of Wm Mauile, was the Bishop's kinswoman by his father's side, And that Jone, grandchild to Ellinor, beinge the Bishop's kinswoman by his mother's side, was the second wife of the said Wm Mauile.

[Isabell ye wife of Maviell beinge dead is not mentioned in ye will.] Secondly, for that the Bishop in his will doth geve legacies to his kinswomen, viz. to Agnes the wife of Woodlock, Jone the wife of Mauile, Edith the wife of Crasier, & Agnes the wife of Sannes; But did not intayle his landes upon any of them, or upon the issue of any of them: It is evident they were his kindred by his mother's side: And may well be coniectured that Agnes & Jone, the wives of Woodlock & Mauile, were the grand children of the Bishop's great aunt Elinore, And that Edith & Agnes, the wifes of Crasier & Sannes, were the grand children of his great aunt Julian, And that Ellinor was the eldest sister to Julian, for that in the geneallogie in the register book aforesaid, it is said that Jone was the daughter to Ellinor, And because Agnes & Jone, the wives of Woodlock and Mauile, are named in the will before Edith & Agnes the wives of Crasier & Sannes.

Thirdly, by the Bishop's will, & the intayle of his landes, & our ancient geneallogie, it is apparent that the name of the Bishop's kinswoman married to Warner was Jone & not Emma. And that the name of his kinswoman married to Ringebone was Edith, & not Margaret nor Margery. And that they were the daughters of the Bishop's second sister, & not of his aunt Achemore. And that Warner, by the said Jone, had issue Thomas & not John. And that Ringebone, by the said Edith, had issue W^m^ & not Edith.

And because it doth not appeare by the Bishop's will, or by the intayle of his landes, that he had any kinswoman married to Carpenter, Rocklo, or Bolney; or any kinswoman named Alice besides his sister's daughter, marryed to Perrott; or any kinswoman called Matilda or Zelota: It is most certayne that Alice, by Achemore, had noe such numerous offspringe as in the geneallogie in the register book is sett forth.

But because it is said in that geneallogie, that Margery or Margrett the daughter of John & Alice Achemore, was the mother of Isabell Mauile, and that by the intayle of the Bishop's lands it appears that the Bishop had a kinswoman called Isabell espoused to Mauile, And that the Bishop did intayle his landes upon her issue, next after the issue of his owne sisters, It is very probable, if not evident, that Achemore's eldest daughter by Alice, ye Bishop's aunt by his father's side, was called Margery or Margaret, & that she was mother to Isabell, wch was wife to Wm Mauile.

Fowerthly, because Julian the wife of Botasle, & ye Bishop's great aunt by his mother's side, is termed in the geneallogies in the register book amitam matris fundatoris, and said to have a daughter called Emma marryed to Rich: Bennet, by whome she had issue Richard; & that Alice the Bishop's father's sister had also a daughter by Achemore called Emma, married to Warner: And because it appears by the said geneallogies that Julian was matertera matris fundatoris & not amita: And that by the in-tayle, and our ancient geneallogie, it is evident that Warner did marry wth Jone ye Founder's second sister's daughter, & not wth Emma Achemore, and that the Bishop's kinswoman married to Bennet, had issue John & not Richard: there is small or noe credit to be geven to these geneallogies.

Yet because the Bishop did intayle his landes unto his kinsman John Bennet & his issue, next after the issue of his kinswoman Isabell, married to Mauile, It may be coniectured that the said John Bennet was the sonne of Emma Achemore, rather then of Emma Botasle, for that Emma Achemore was not married to Warner, And for that in all likelyhoode the Bishop did intayle his landes only to his kindred by his father's side, as the Lo: Sey averres in his next obiection.

And because by the Bishop's will, & the intayle of his lands, it cannot be coniectured that Achemore had any more children then two, we in this geneallogie have sett downe noe more, & for the reasons aforesaid we admit that their names might be Margery & Emma.

Ob: 3. The Lo: Sey's third obiection is, that, if the Bishop had beene kin to the Wickhams of Swaclive, then should his landes, after the issue of his sister, have gone to the next of his kindred by his father's side, & consequently to somme of the Wickhams. But it appears by the deede of intayle, wherein the land is intayled to half a score or more, & then to remayne to the right heires of the Bishop, that there is not ꝑvision at all made, that his land soe intayled, should in any case come to any of ye Wickhams, sauinge only to them wch were the children of William & Alice Perrott.

Ans: 3. We confesse that the Bishop's lands were, after the issue of his sisters, to goe to ye next of his kindred by his father's side: But it is noe true consequence, that immediatly after the issue of his sisters, they should go to the Wickhams; for by the intayle, next after the issue of his sisters, he setled his lands to the issue of his father's sister: And then for want of heires of them, to his next heires; wch were the Wickhams, lords of Swaclive, allthough not named in the intayle, Because noe man in an intayle, after soe many reversions, can certainly know what the name of his right heire shall be, in respect that heires female alter their names to the names of their husbands.

To expresse this more at large, we say that, by comparinge the intayle of ye Bishop's landes wth the ancient geneallogie by us produced, It is evident that Agnes ye Bishop's eldest sister had a daughter called Alice married to Wm Perrott, by whome she had 3 sonnes, Thomas, John, & Wm Perrott.

And the Bishop, desyrous to have his lands to continew in his owne name, & to his neerest kinsmen in bloode, intayled them unto the said Thomas, John, & William Wickham, & to their issue male, that soe they might inherit his name as well as his landes.

[The effect of ye intayle.] For want of issue male of the said Thomas, John, & Wm Wickham, the sonnes of Perrott, the Bishop intayled his landes to the heires generall of the said Thomas, & for want of such heires of Thomas, to the heires generall of John, & for want of such heires of John to the heires generall of William; & for want of such heires of the said Wm Wickham, then to Wm Ringebone & Edith his wife, & to the heires male of the boddie of the said Edith, beinge the Bishop's second sister's eldest daughter; & for want of the heires male of the said Edith, then to Thomas Warner & Jone his wife & to the heires males of Jone, she being likewise daughter to the Bishop's second sister. And for want of issue male of the boddie of Jone, then to Guie Ayno and Agnes his wife, & to the heires male of Agnes, she beinge the third daughter of the Bishop's second sister. And for want of such issue male of Agnes, then to the next of his kindred by his father's side, viz. to Wm Mauile & Isabell his wife, & to the heires males of the said Isabell. And for want of such issue male of Isabell, to John Bennet & his heires male (the said Isabell beinge the daughter of Alice Achemore, the Bishop's aunt by his father's side, & the said John Bennet beinge also descended frõ ye said Alice); and for want of issue male of the said John Bennet, to the heires generall of Edith aforesaid; & for want of heires of Edith, to the heires of Jone aforesaid; & for waut of heires of Jone, to the heires of Agnes aforesaid; & for want of heires of Agnes, to the heires of Isabell aforesaid; & for want of heires of Isabell, to the heires of ye aforesaid John Bennet; & for want of heires of the aforesaid John Bennet, to the right heires of the Bishop, not naming who they were: But certayne it is, that they were (as the Lo: Sey himself affirmes) the next of the Bishop's kindred by his father's side, wch were the Wickhams, the Bishop's genuine name from his father beinge Wickham, as by his alteringe the names of his neerest kinsmen from Perrott to Wickham, is manifest enough, were there noe other prooffes thereof, as there are many.

For by the register book & records of New Colledg it is manyfest, that, besides the children of Perrott & their issue (wch was only one, viz. Thomas the sonne of Thomas), there were many other Wickhams wch were of the Founder's bloode, as in our answer to the first obiection is sett forth. And for want of issue of the ꝑticular ꝑsons named in ye intayle, the lands intayled were to come unto the heires of somme of those Wickhams, beinge the next in bloode to the Bishop by his father's side, save only such as were named in the said intayle, & the knowledg thereof (as Humfry Wickham hath left it to posteritie) was the only cause that Sr Richard Fyennes, before the said intayle was cutt offe, beinge like to dye wthout issue, & desyringe to convey those lands to somme of his neerer kyndred, did denye the said Humfry Wickham's sonne (then standinge to be child of Winchester Colledg) to be of the bloode of the founder. That soe those to whome he should convey those landes, might have somme colorable plea to wthstand the said Humfry Wickham's title & plea unto the said landes, by vertue of the said intayle.

If the Lo: Sey shall affirme, that the Longes were the right heires of the Bishop & not the Wickhams, because in those childish geneallogies John Longe is said to be ye Founder's father,

The same argument wch he urgeth against us in his 4: & 5: obiections, may be far more strongly inforced against himself—for, beside that there is noe provision made in the intayle of the Bishop's landes that the landes should come to any of the Longes, it doth not any where appeare, nether by the Bishop's will nor the records of his Colledg, that any of the Longes were of his bloode: Notwthstandinge divers of them were admitted of New Colledg, as in our Answer to the Lo: Sey's 4 & 5: obiections shall be sett forth.

Ob: 4, 5. The 4th & 5th reasons alleaged against us by ye Lo: Sey are in effect the same: viz. ye Bishop in his will gevinge legacies to John Wickham of Crondall & John Wickham of Barton, doth not there calle them kinsmen. And makinge [n] Had ye Perrott Wickhams had issue male the landes had not descended to a daughter.

Thomas Wickham the sonne of Perrott, & one Nicholas Wickham two of his executors, he expresseth the said Thomas to be his kinsman, but not Nicholas.

5. Soe also in a letter of attorney ye Bishop, makinge mention of Thomas Wickham of Swaclive & Thomas Wickham the sonne of Perrott, he geves the title of kinsman only to Tho: Wickham the sonne of Perrott, And therefore the Lo: Sey concludes that nether Thomas Wickham of Swaclive, nor John Wickham of Crondale, nor John Wickham of Barton, nor Nicholas Wickham, were any kyn to the Bishop.

Ans: 4, 5. First, it is cleere that the sonnes of W^m^ & Alice Perrott, accordinge to their father's name, were Perrottes; But, beinge by their mother descended from the Wickhams, viz. from the Bishop's eldest sister, & soe neerer in bloode to the Bishop then any of his kindred whose true surname was Wickham: The Bishop, to continew his landes in his owne name and yet not to disinherit his kinsmen neerest in bloode, chainged their names from Perrott to Wickham: And in the intayle of his landes, & in his last will, calles Thomas Perrott by the name of Thomas Wickham his kinsman, expressinge thereby that he was his kinsman by the Wickhams not by the Perrotts.

Secondly, to manyfest that Thomas Wickham, the sonne of Perrott, was his neerest kinsman, he calles him his heire.

Thirdly, to p̃vent that noe other Thomas of bloode & kindred, whose true surname was Wickham, should clayme the first interest in his landes, by vertue of the said intayle, or to be one of the executors of his last will: By obiectinge that the Bishop had intayled his landes to his kinsman Thomas Wickham, & not to his kinsman Thomas Perrott, & that the Bishop's kinsman Thomas Wickham, & not his kinsman Thomas Perrott, was to be one of his executors: The Bishop, both in the intayle & in his will, naminge his kinsman Thomas Wickham to be his heir & one of his executors, to expresse wch Thomas Wickham he ment, describes him to be the sonne of W^m^ & Alice Perrott.

A reason also why the Bishop in the letter of attorney geves the adiunct of kinsman unto Thomas Wickham the sonne of W^m^ & Alice Perrott, & not to Tho: Wickham of Swaclive, and likewise why the Bishop in his will geves the title of kinsman unto Tho: Wickham the sonne of Perrott, & not unto Nicholas Wickham, nor to ether of the John Wickhams named in the will, might be because the said Thomas Wickham the sonne of Perrott was his kinsman in a neerer degree then the rest: and not because the rest were not his kinsmen.

Another reason why John Wickham of Bireton and John Wickham of Crondall were not in the Bishop's will styled his kinsmen, might be because they were clergie men, & therefore in those daies could have noe issue, nether was Fælix Aas therein stiled his kinswoman, for shee also was a votarie.

For if, because in the intayle of the Bishop's landes Thomas, John, & Wm Wickham, the sonnes of Perrott, are only styled the Bishop's kinsmen, & that Edith Ringebone, Jone Warner, Agnes Ayno, Isabell Mauile, & John Bennet are not likewise therein styled his kindred, we should draw this conclusion, that therefore the said Edith, Jone, Agnes, Isabell, & John were noe kin to the Bishop, we conceave the Lo: Sey himself would not think it a true consequent of the ꝑmisses, The Bishop in his will havinge declared somme of these to be his kindred.

Nether must we admitt that, because in the intayle of the Bishop's landes & in his last will Thomas Wickham & his brothers the sonnes of Perrott are only named ye Bishop's kinsmen, & not any of the other Wickhams mentioned in the said will, that therefore none of the other Wickhams there mentioned wthout the adiunct of kinsman, were of the same bloode wth the Bishop; for in likelyhoode (if not all) somme of them were the very same Wickhams wch were admitted into New Colledg as his kinsmen.

Nota. But if the Lo: Sey could proue, or if it should be granted, that these two Johns and Nicholas Wickham named in the Founder's will and Tho. Wickham of Swaclive named in the letter of attorney, wthout the adiunct of kinsmen, were none of those wch were admitted into New Colledg as of the Founder's bloode, but others of an other family wch were not his kinsmen, Yet their not beinge his kinsmen doth not disprove our kindred: It beinge evident by the register book of the Colledges, that there were two famelies of the Wickhams, whereof the one was kin, the other noe kin to ye Bishop. And that there are somme of ether famely dwellinge in Swaclive, and that we can prove our selves to be descended from the same famely wth those wch were admitted as his kinsmen.

Nota. Nether if the Lo: Sey could prove, or that it should be granted, that the Bishop's father's name was Longe or Perrott, & that the Bishop took the name of Wickham only from the place of his birth, & not from his father, And that in that respect only, he also made the Perrotts to take up that name (as the Lo: Sey allegeth) It could not ꝑiudice our clayme to be of the Bishop's bloode & kindred, in respect that Nicholas, Richard, Thomas, John, & Percevall Wickham, (not descended from the sonnes of Wm & Alice Perrott,) were of the Bishop's bloode & kindred, & of our famely, wch upon our proffe that the said Percevall was of our famely must be granted; or els that the Bishop was kin unto two severall famelyes of the Wickhams wch were no kin to each other: as in our Answ. to the first Obiection.

That the Founder took the name of Wickham only from the place of his birth is altogether improbable:

[Not Wickham a loco et non a parentibus.] First in respect that, if the Founder's father's name were not Wickham, it cannot be made to appear how Nicholas, Richard, Thomas, John, & Percevall Wickham aforesaid could be of the Founder's bloode, for it is evident that the kindred came not by his mother's side, she being the daughter of Wm Boude & Alice Stratton.

Secondly it is generaly knowne that in ancient times it was a usiall thinge to write de before the surnames of men, Wm de Wickham beinge then accoumpted as much as to say William the sonne of Wickham. And for prooffe thereof we can produce divers ancient deeds wherein our predecessors were written sometime Wickham & sometimes de Wickham; and therefore, although the Founder were borne at Wickham, & sometime written de Wickham, it was not soe much in respect that he was borne at Wickham, as that he was the sonne of Wickham; for the Bishop in matters of greatest weight & moment, as in his pardon, & in the licences he took to build his Colledges, did cause himself to be written Wm Wickham & not de Wickham, & we conceave that noe man knew his name better then himself.

If the Bishop took his name Wickham from the village where he was borne, & not from his father, every man that was borne in that village might as well as the Bishop take unto himself that name, & every Wm borne there might write himself Wm de Wickham as well as the Bishop.

If it be alleaged that in those daies some clergie men only did take unto themselves the name of the place where they were borne, as Wm de Wainfleete; we answer that our Bishop was called Wm Wickham or de Wickham longe before he was a clergieman, viz. when he was the overseer of the kinges buildings at Windsore.

It is most usiall for bastardes only to be called by the name of the place where they are borne, for that ether their father's name is not knowne at all, or that their mother, beinge a common whore, doth assigne them many fathers. But the Bishop's mother was noe such leaud woman. And it is confessed that his father's christian name was knowne to be John, and therefore at that time, men were not, or need not to have beene ignorant of his surname; Nether was the Bishop ashamed of his father or of his name, for he erected a chappell for the buriall of his parentes at Tichfeild, neere the towne of Wickham in Hampshire. (Godwine's Catalo.)

And it may well be coniectured that, had the Bishop soe well affected the village of Wickham where he was born, that he did choose to be called by its name rather then by his owne father's name, he would have built the chappell for his parentes' buriall there. Or that, doinge soe many good & charitable works as he did, and beinge of that abilitie and authority he was, he would certaynly have endowed that towne wth somme lands, & made it a corporat towne, or have built a free schoole there, out of wch the schollers to supply his Colledg in Oxford should have beene chosen. Or have granted to such as should have beene borne at that towne of Wickham, somme previledg or prioritie of election into his schoole at Winchester, & his Colledg in Oxford, or the like.

[Not Perrott nor Longe.] That the Bishop's father's name was nether Perrott nor Longe is evident, for that he sued not for his pardon by the name of Wm Perrott or Wm Longe, but by the name of Wm Wickham or de Wickham, wch was all one, because in these times it was usiall to write de before the surnames of men. And certaynly the Bishop was not ignorant that a misnomer in a pardon made it voyde.

Nether did the Bishop beare the armes of the Perrotts or of the Longes; and the grandchildren to the Bishop's eldest sister beinge Perrotts & the next heires, he altered their names from Perrott to Wickham, wch certaynly he would never have doone had his owne name beene Perrott,—Yea had not his owne name beene Wickham.

If the Bishop's father were called Longe, certaynly he was his father-in-law, or els he was by somme soe nicknamed in respect of his talenes or lenght of stature, and that he was soe nicknamed hath by somme historians beene affirmed, as Bishop Godwine in his catalogue of our English Bishops reporteth.

For if the Bishop's naturall father's true surname had beene Longe, it could not be but that the Bishop should have had somme kindred of that name; but it doth noe where appeare that he had any; there beinge noe mention made of any of that name in the intayle of the Bishop's landes, nor any legacie geven by the Bishop in his will to any of that name, as his kinsman or otherwise.

And divers of the Longes beinge fellowes of New Colledg, there is not one of them recorded to be the Founder's kinsman.

In the Prothocall or register book of New Colledg, fol. 21, columna 2a, Wm Longe was admitted fellow, not naminge him cosen to the Founder, wch was wthin 20 yeares after the Founder's death. The same leafe, columna 4ta, Wm Longe went away, wch was of the Countie of Somerset.

Fol. 22, Wm Longe of Hampshire (wch was the countie where the Bishop was borne,) died, columna 1a.

Fol. 170, Wm Longe de Overton, in com. Southampton, admitted fellow, did sweare, amongst other thinges, to observe the orders appoynted by the reverend father Wm Wickham, Founder of the Colledg, &c. And afterward that he should ꝑfer the kinsmen of the founder.

Nether doth it any where appeare that the Bishop ever had any kinsman named Perrott, save only the sonnes of his eldest sister's daughter Alice, & Wm Perrott, to whom when he intayled his landes, he chainged their names from Perrott to Wickham.

[That the Bishop's father's name was Wickham.] Now in honor of the Lo. Sey, & to that worthie prelate Bishop Wickham, from whome (besides the benefit of his Colledges) the Lo: Sey & his ꝑdecessors have receaved a very large & magnificent patrymony, we will shew that the Bishop's father was a gentleman, though not of any great wealth, & that his name was John Wickham, notwthstandinge in respect of his talenes he might be nicknamed John Longe, as aforesaid.

If the Bishop's surname from his father had not beene knowne to be Wickham, the author of the former parte of the geneal-logies, so much insisted on by the Lo. Sey, should have said, fuit igitur Wil'mus Episcopus de quo loqui disposui, wthout any surname; or, had his father's name beene knowne to be Perrott or Longe, he should have said fuit igitur Wil'mus Perottus or Wil'mus Longus, de quo loqui disposui, apud oppidum de Wickham enixus, et sic nomen Wickham or de Wickham a loco assumpsit, et nomen loci elogio perpetuo decorauit: But the author, knowinge that ye Bishop's true, propper, & genuine surname was Wickham from his father, sayth fuit igitur Wilhelmus Wickham, de quo loqui disposui, apud oppidum de Wickham enixus, et sic nomen a loco assumpsit, et nomen cum loco elogio perpetuo decorauit: All wch words beinge rightly expounded do signifie noe more but this, viz:

That Wm Wickham was borne in a towne or village of his owne name, & soe graced his name & the towne wth the perpetuall reporte of his praise.

The meaninge of the author beinge only to expresse in the best & most rethoricall manner he could, that the Bishop's name was Wickham de Wickham, viz. Wickham frõ his father, & de Wickham from the place of his birth. And that it was a grace for Wm Wickham to be borne in a village of his owne name, & a grace to the village to have soe excellent a man to be borne there.

[Martin's booke.] Att Oxford, in the Universiti librarie, & also at New Colledg, we finde a book called Vita Wickhami, written by an obscure author (for there are only two letters sett for his name) & printed about the year 1597, beinge about 39 yeares since, and at the least 27 yeares after Sr Richard Fyennes did first denye Humfry Wickham's children to be of the same bloode wth the Bishop.

This book, as we are informed, was composed, printed, & geven unto New Colledg by one Martyn, who, as we coniecture, ether was the Lo. Seyes kinsman, or did pen, print, & geve this book to New Colledg, by the information, advise, & counsell, of somme of the Lo: Seyes predecessors or kindred, or at the least did it all to please that kindred, or to insinuat him self into their or somme of their favors.

The reasons moving us for to coniecture are:

For that there were a very smale number of the said books printed.

Also for that he doth exemplifye the Bishop's geneallogie written as he sayth by Heresius & approved by the Kinges Heralds, expressinge therein (cheifly, if not only) the pedegree of Sr Rich. Fyennes, & not of Ringebone, Warner, or Bennet, or any other of the Bishop's kindred specifyed in his will or in the intayle of his landes.

Then, in respect he indeavors to make good the reasons urged heretofore by Sr Richard Fyennes against Humfry Wickham's claime of kindred to the Bishop, not only by a false assertion that John Wickham of Swaclive, wch was admitted probationer 1403, was of the Knight's famely; but also by wrongfull & deceiptfull layinge & controwlinge of Dr Harpsfeild (a man of far greater learninge & iudgment then him self) for placinge that John soe admitted probationer, & Richard Wickham of Hampshire admitted childe of Winchester 1401, amongst the Founder's kinsmen. Whereas Harpsfeild doth not place that John nor that Richard amongst the Founder's kinsmen, but an other John & an other Richard, wch we confesse were of the Knight's famely: To witt, John, wch in the Founder's life time was admitted in election as his kinsman to be Warden of New Colledg, and Richard wch was mayntayned by the Founder in Harte hall as his kinsman before ye erection of the Colledg, & (as we conceave) admitted fellow upon the first admission of fellows into New Colledg.

Againe, whereas Nicholas Wickham, wch was the first Warden of New Colledg, & Thomas Wickham, wch was admitted fellow as of the Founder's bloode 1403, the Bishop being then alive, are by Dr Harpsfeild placed wth the last mentioned John & Rich: Wickham amongst the Founder's kinsmen, this Martyn, not able to fynd any colorable cavill against them, passeth them over wth silence, least the mentioninge of them should make the truth appeare.

Lastly, this Martyn sayth, that the Bishop in his will doth cale Fælicia Abas his kinswoman, wch according to our copey of the will is false.

Now not wthstandinge Martin's full intention was to confirme Sr Rich. Fyennes his kindred, & to strengthen his arguments urged against Humfry Wickham's claime: yet in the first chapter of his book, the said Martin affirmeth that the Bishop was borne in Pago sui nominis, & therefore his name was Wickham, for it is granted by all that he was borne at Wickham in Hampshire: And Martin by his quotations in the margent sheweth he had this truth.

Ex archiuis Collegij Winton, &c.
Ex Thoma Chandelero in vita Wickhami } Chandeler was Deane of Wells.
Ex Thoma Vasseo, or Walseo in vita eiusdem

Allthough in respect of the reasons aforesaid, the testimony of Martin ought not to be of any force against us, yet for us it is of great validitie; because, if by chance (the truth inforcinge him there unto) he did sett downe any thinge wch might advantage Humfry Wickham's cause, it was contrary to his intent & purpose.

Therefore this testimony of Martin's, agreeinge in this poynt wth what is written in the former parte of the geneallogies in the ende of ye register book, & confirmed by his quotations in the margent, doth playnly prove yt the Bishop's name was Wickham; for that otherwise, beinge borne at Wickham, he would be borne in Pago sui nominis.

[Camden's Brit: Godwines Catalo:] To this we add the testimony of Mr Wm Camden & Bishop Godwine, who reporte that when William Wickham was made overseer of the Kinges buildinges at Windsor, he caused these wordes, Hoc fecit Wickham, or this made Wickham, to be ingraven in a wall of the said buildinges; whereof when some complayned to ye Kinge, as a thinge derrogatinge from his honor, that an other should seeme to beare ye charge of his buildinges; and the Kinge in displeasure reprehendinge him for it, he answered, that by these words he did not ascribe the honor of the buildinge to him self, but his owne honor & ꝑferment to that buildinge, the words noe way importinge that Wickham made the tower, but that the tower made Wickham.

[Godwines Catalo.] Also the epitaph ingraven upon the Bishop's tombe in ye cathedral church at Winchester, wch was not sett upon the tombe wthout the approbation & allowance of ye Bishop's executors, (who doubtless well knew the Bishop's name,) doth playnly shew that his name was Wickham, for it beginnes thus, Wilhelmus dictus Wicamus iacet hic nece victus. Longus would have stoode in the verse as well as Wicamus.

Againe the argument alleaged before in our Answer to the Lo: Sey's 3 Obiect: against our claime is not heere to be omitted: viz. that the usiall & only reason why men make their adopted heires to chainge their names, is to have their landes continew unto their owne name, & not to the name of the towne where they were borne. And therefore the Bishop causinge the Perrottes to take the name of Wickham, is a stronge prooffe that the Bishop's name was Wickham as well a patre as a loco, for as Martin truly sayth he was borne in Pago sui nominis.

Moreover, the pardon granted by Kinge Edw. the 3: to Wm Wickham Bishop of Winchester, is a strong evidence that the Bishop's name from his father was Wickham, in respect that any misnomen in a pardon makes it voyde. And the Bishop for many yeares together havinge beene sifted & quæstioned for his estate & life, could not be soe ignorant, nor would not be so careles, as to take a pardon in the name of the towne where he was borne, & not in his owne paternall name.

Furthermore it appeares by the records & register book of the Bishop's Colledges, that Nicholas, Richard, Thomas, John, & Percevall Wickham were of the same bloode wth the Bishop: but there is noe proffe nor probabilitie that they were of his bloode by his mother's side, for she was the daughter to Boude & grandchild to Stratton, & therefore it may well be p̃sumed that the Bishop's name was Wickham from his father.

> Johannes Pitseus, writinge the life of Nicholas Harpsfeild sayth, Nicholaus Harpsfeildius, natione Anglus, iuris vtriusq; Doctor Oxoniensis, adolescens in celebri schola Wiccamica literas humaniores didicit, deinde ad Oxoniense collegium etiam Wiccamicum missus, decurso Philosophiæ studio, operam dedit iuris prudentiæ, susceptisq; sup̃mis in ea facultate insignibus, successuq; temporis vocatur Cantuariam, factus est ibi Archidiaconus; erat vir grauis et prudens, moribus candidissimis, integerimæ vitæ multiplicisq; doctrinæ, &c.

This Dr Harpsfeild Histor: suæ Eccles: Anglicanæ, decima quarta sect: pag: 550, cap: 20, de Gulielmo Wichamo Wintoniensi Episco: deq, duobus illis Collegijs quæ Wintoniæ et Oxonij construxit, sayth:

Cum Gulielmus Edingtonius viuere desijsset, Wintonienses Monachi, rege causam illius accurate solicitante, Gulielmum Wicamum in Episcopum sibi legunt; natus fuit ad annum Domini milesimum trecentessimum vigessimum quartum in Diœcesi Wintoniensi, Johanne Longo vt quidam, vt alij Johanne Perotto et Sibilla parentibus, Pago Wichamica, vnde quidã Gulielmum de Wicham eum appellant: Sed mihi multa occurrunt, cur non eam in eorum sententiam, vsq, genuinum atq, gentile fuisse illi Wichami nomen existimem: Ita enim se in testamento suo, ita in ijs statutis, quæ Collegijs suis præscripsit, et alibi passim appellat, id est Gulielmum Wichamum, non de Wicham. Ita eum Diplomata regia, quibus Collegia ædificandi potestas tributa est, ita et publica regni statuta eum nominant: Primus præterea Oxoniensis Collegij præfectus fuit Nicholaus Wichamus eius consanguineus; optati præterea sunt in id Collegium, Johannes, Richardus, et Thomas Wichami vt eius necessarij, quibus ex statutorum præscriptione potior quædam, quam alijs qui in id Collegium optantur, conditio et prærogatiua defertur: Imperante vero Johanne fuit Radulphus Wicamus et Henrico Robertus Wicamus equestris ordinis homo, ex quorum stirpe, familia, et gente prodijt noster Wicamus, et si ut sunt rerum vicissitudines, parentes ipsius exiguis fuerant rerum copijs prædiati, At, hæc ideo mihi dicuntur, vt illam ab illis maculam abstergam qua quidam illos aspergunt, quasi seruilis fuissent conditionis. [Genealogia illa hodie extat.]

In English thus:

Upon the death of Wm Edington, the Munks of Winchester, the Kinge sollicitinge the busines wth great care, chose for their Bishop Wm Wicham; he was borne in the yeare of our Lord 1342, in the Diocesse of Winchester; his father was John Longe as somme calle him, as others John Perrott, his mother was Sibill; ye place of his birth was a village called Wicham, whence somme calle him Wm of Wicham: but many reasons present themselves to me for wch I may not be of their opinion, & wch make me think that Wicham was the right name of his ancestors; for soe he calles him self in his will, soe in those statutes wch he made for his Colledges, & often in other places, that is Wm

Wicham not of Wicham. Soe the Kinges grantes whereby he had power geven him to build Colledges, & soe the statutes of the realme calle him: besides, the first Warden of his Colledg in Oxford, was Nicholas Wicham, his kinsman by bloode; Moreover there were chosen into the same Colledg John, Richard, & Thomas Wicham as his kinsmen, who, by vertue of the statutes, were admitted to a better estate & progative then others chosen into the same Colledg; besides, in the raigne of Kinge John there was one Ralf Wicham, & in the time of Kinge Henry one Robert Wicam, knight, out of whose stock, famely, & kindred came our Wicham. Though, according to the chainges of humane affares, his parentes had but small meanes. And these thinges I rather mention, that I may take from them that blott where wth somme have stayned them, as if they had beene of servile condition. [That geneallogie at this daie is extant.]

[The ould geneallogie.] This testimonie of Dr Harpsfeild, being an excellent scholler, a New Colledg man, and noe kin to the Founder, & written before the controversie betweene Humfry Wickham and Sr Richard Fyennes, is of it self sufficient to prove the Bishop's name to be Wicham, & that he was descended from our famely: Yet in confirmation of this we produce a geneallogie of greate antiquitie, far more agreeable to the Bishop's will, & the intayle of his landes, then the geneallogies written on the cover of the register book of Winchester Colledg, & therefore of more credit, whereby it appeares that the Bishop's father's name was John Wicam.

And in respect not only the Bishop's father, his sisters, & their progenie are delineated in this geneallogie, but also the succession & kindred of divers other gentlemen of good rank & qualitie, livinge longe since & not in these later times, we conceave it doth only proue the antiquitie thereof, but also cleere it from all suspition, that it should ever be drawne purposely to credit our cause.

The second Robert Wicham, in the pedegree drawne by Robert Cook, Clarenceux, had two brothers Thomas & Richard, wch Richard (as by an ancient court roll then shewed did appeare) was of the bloode of the Bishop.

[See ye deede of intayle of Swaclive.] And by a deede made 33o Edw. 3i the mannor of Swaclive was geven to Katherine, the wife of Robert Wicam for life, the remaynder to the said Thomas of Wicam for life, the remaynder to the said Richard of Wicam in tayle, the remaynder unto the said Thomas of Wicam in tayle, the remaynder unto Wm of Wicam, cosen to the said Tho: & Rich: & to the heires of the boddie of the said William, the remaynder unto the right heires of the said Thomas.

[The Bishop was borne 1324; this intayle was made 1359; the Bishop made Preist 1361; and consecrat Bishop 1366. Here also consider of their ꝑsentinge him to ye Parsonage of Swaclive, their assentinge to ye impropriatinge thereof, and their conveyance of it & of ye gifte of ye Vicarage unto him.] This William Wickham named in the last mentioned deede cosen to Thomas & Rich: of Wicham, was he that was after Bishop of Winchester, as by the last mentioned deede & court roll aforesaid may well be coniectured. And by the age of said Wm Wicham, beinge borne in the 18th yeare of Edward the Second, in the yeare of our Lord 1324, & receaved into the service of Edward the Third in the yeare 1344, and about the time of the date of the said deede made overseer of the Kinges buildinges at Windsor: and by his presentation to Swaclive by the Wickhams & their selling him the parsonage & ꝑpetuall donation of ye vicarage.

And allthough it cannot be shewed in what degree the said Wm of Wickham was to the said Thomas & Richard, yet it is apparent that it was in a very neere degree, for that otherwise they would not have intayled the mannor of Swaclive upon him, it beinge the most ancient state of the Wickhams.

[Armes.] Lastly, that the Founder was a gentleman borne & a Wickham his coate of Armes doth witnes, wch are the same the Wickhams of Swaclive now geve, & did geve before the Bishop was borne, & wch therefore but by descent the Bishop could not have geven.

That the armes wch the Founder gave doe properly belonge unto the Wickhams lordes of Swaclive, Hugh Cotgrave, Richmond Herald, at one time, viz. anno 1569, and Robert Cook, Clarencevx Kinge of Armes, & Roger Dormer at another time, viz. anno 1571; and afterward Wm Camden, Clarenceux, assigninge the bull's head for the Crest, thereunto have under their handes iustifyed & confirmed. And now of late they have beene confirmed unto them by the officers of armes under the seale of their office.

If these armes had beene geven the Founder in regard of his owne worth, he beinge a clergie man, & soe in those daies single, they had dyed wth him. And should not at any time have beene blazoned wth the difference of a younger brother, nor ought not to have beene quartered wth any other coãte.

But this coate of 2 chevrons betweene 3 roses was longe since seene by one John Vnderhill, blazoned in St Martin's Church in Oxford, with the difference of a mullet, & crested sometime wth a miter & sometime wth a bull's head, & then seemed to him to be of greate antiquitie; and Wm Camden, Clarenceux, hath allowed us to beare the bull's head for our Crest.

And we doubt not if the Lo: Sey shall be questioned to this effect, and answer upon his honor, he will confesse that John Vnderhill aforesaid, sometime fellow of New Colledg, beinge examined as a witnes in the Chancery, in a suite betweene Humfry Wickham complaynant, against Thomas Stempe & others defts, did there depose to the effect aforesaid.

And as it doth appeare unto us by a little note found of late amongst Humfry Wickam's writinges, the same coate, wth the same difference of a mullet, was then also seene in the church of Thame in the countie of Oxford, of great antiquitie. And there upon the sixt daie of September 1636, Wm Wickham of Abingdon, & John his sonne, & one Wm Lane, & others, went into the said church to search for the said coate, & there in the middle windowe on the north side of the boddie or middle ile of the said church found it blazond wth the difference of a mullet whole & undefaced.

And we finde that Humfry Wicham did testifie unto the Lo: Burleigh that he the said Humfry had also seene in St Martin's Church in Oxford aforesaid, the Bishop's armes of great antiquitie, blazond wth the difference of a younger brother.

And that the said Humfry, at the funerall of Sr Rich: Fyennes, had seene the said Sr Richardes coate armor offered up by Somersett, herald of armes, quartered wth the Bishop's armes.

[The Lo: Sey dwells at Broughton. The 12th of Sep: 1637 me self & Thomas Harper did see this coate in Broughton Church.] And as we are credably informed on thursdaie the 12 of Jannuarie 1635, in a litle windowe on the north side of

Broughton Church next to the belfry, & neere to the rooffe of ye Church, the Bishop's armes were seene quartered, but what the coate was wherewth they were quartered the parties could not well descerne, but by their description, it was after this manner: a feild Az. charged wth a bird Arg. spread in this manner.[a]

Upon such prooffes as these, when Sr Richard Fyennes denyed Humfry Wickham to beare this coate of 2 cheverons betweene three roses, & claymed it for the Perrottes, it was allowed to Humfry Wickham by the Heraldes aforesaid, wth the approbation of the Duke of Norfolk, then Earle Marshall; and now to question it againe is to question the credit of ye Heralds & Court of Honor.

And in æquitie we ought not to be forced to prove these thinges againe, in respect these armes were but in glasse, & that somme of them are, & the rest might have beene, broaken & defaced, & the men wch could & did then testifie them are now dead.

Yet at this present, besides the coate wth the difference of the third house, to be seene in Thame Church as aforesaid, there is to be seene in the east window of the chancel at Swaclive (beinge the ancient seate of the Wickhams) in severall peeces of glasse, dismembered & misplaced, the greatest parte of an armes wch beareth Argent, 2 cheverons Sables betweene 3 roses Gules.

[Anno 1637. The 12th of Sept: 1637, Wm Wickham & Tho Harper did see this coate in Welsborne Church.] And in the east ende window of the south side of the Church of Wellesborne in Warwick shire, in Aprill 1636, these armes thus impaled[b] were seene by Thom: Harper & John Wilson, & testefied by Bartholemew Dobson, minister there.

And one Midleton lyeth buried in the chancell there who dyed the 4th of August 1431.[c]

Thomas Harper is servant to Humfry Wickham of Swaclive, & John Wilson is a weaver in Warwick.

The crosse in the Midleton's armes is not soe much longer one way then the other, as is there decyphered, & over the crosse there is a lambeaux wth 3 labells Argent, & the 2 quarters that bear Or, are after this manner[d] diapred Or.

[a] Here the arms are drawn, viz. 4ly the Bishop's coat and a bird displayed.

[b] Here the coat is drawn, viz. the Bishop's coat impaling Quarterly Gules and Or, in the first quarter a cross flory Or, Midleton. It is engraved in Dugdale's Warwickshire, the cross flory surmounted by a label.

[c] The Epitaph is not in Dugdale.

Also at this present, in the top of the cloyster of the Cathedrall Church in Canterbury, at the very corner, where the west & north sides ioyne together, these armes of two cheverons betweene 3 roses are to be seene carved in stone,[e] not placed there in any respect to the Bishop, he beinge dead longe before the buildinge of those cloisters.

[Witnes John Philpott, Somerset.] And in the said Cathedrall Church, neere to the south doore of the crosse ile, betweene the boddie of the church & the quier, these armes of two cheverons betweene 3 roses, where wthin these 2 yeares, viz. 1634 (and we thinke still are) to be seene ingraven in brasse upon the 4 corners of the gravestone of one Agnes, wife of Wm Faunt & Edward Bolney, who was there buried anno Dñi 1539, & in somme of the scutchions these armes are quartered wth her husband's armes.

Now the Bolneys are allowed to be the Founder's kinsmen, wch we conceave they cannot prove but only by the marriage wth this Agnes, except they clayme it by the childish geneallogies at the ende of the register book of Winchester Colledg, wch sayth that Bolney of Sussex married wth Jone the daughter of Agnes, whose mother was Matild, & whose grandmother was Alice the Bishop's father's sister.

If it be alleaged out of Somersett's letter that a cheveron was the armes of the Companie of Carpenters, & that the Founder, before he was Bishop, in respect he was a carpenter or had good skill in architecture, did use a seale of one cheveron betweene 3 roses, & that afterward he did use a seale wth 2 cheverons betwene 3 roses, wch in his opinion was geven to the Bishop for his skill in architecture.

If the cheveron were given in armes to ye Carpenters since the Bishop gave that coate, then was it not geven to the Bishop for his skill in architecture.

If this coate had beene geven to the Bishop, it had dyed wth him, & ought not to have beene quartered wth the coate armor of Sr Rich: Fyennes & offered up at his funerall by Somersett him self: nether should it have beene quartered wth the Midleton's armes as in Wellesborne Church in Warwickshire, nor wth Bolney's or Faunt's armes, as in the Cathedrall Church in Canterbury, nether should it have beene blazoned wth the difference of a younger brother, as it was in the churches of Thame & of St Martin in Oxford, crested sometime wth a bull's head, & sometime wth a miter.

Thomas Wickham, lord of Swaclive, married the daughter & heire of Wm Doyly, & by her did geve one cheveron betweene 3 fowerleaved grasses like roses; and haply the Founder might use this seale, beinge ignorant at the first what was his paternall coate, & afterward upon better knowledg he might alter his seale.

Also, if Somerset in his letter to the Lo: Burleigh affirme that in the books belonginge to the office of armes, it doth appeare that the propper coate of the Wickhams was far different from the Bishop's, & that the Lo: Sey urge it against us:

Let the difference be showed in the books, & then let it be proved to be the coate of the Wickhams lords of Swaclive, for we denye not but that there might be an other famely of the Wickhams, wch might geve a coate of armes different from the Bishop's & ours.

It seemes by one book in the office of armes, that the coate of one famely of the Wickhams is a feild Ermine, bordered Gules, garnished wth 9 or more mullets Or; and the Lord Sey, to prove this to be the coate of the Wickhams of Swaclive, hath sometime alleaged that this very coate of greate antiquitie is to be seene in divers windowes of the Church of Swaclive: and in that very ile of ye Church where the Wickhams lords of Swaclive have usially beene buried.

We confesse that in the windowes of Swaclive Church and chancell there are 4 severall coates wch seeme to be of great antiquitie, each of wch is bordered Gules, & garnished wth 6 mulletts Or, peirced Sables, wch we suppose might be geven by somme of the Wickhams of Swaclive in respect of some matches wth the heires of other houses.

But there are not any armes in Swaclive Church that beare Ermins bordered Gules, nor any wch hath the border Gules garnished wth aboue 6 mulletts Or.

Yet we conceave that Robert Wickham, the sonne of Sr Robert Wickham, by his match wth the daughter and heire of Sr

Wm of the Lee, did or might geve a coate pouldred Ermins, but not as his paternall coate.

If, because Percivall Wickham in his admission is not said to be of Swalecliffe, as he is in the book of swearinge, it shall be objected that the booke of swearinge is not waranted by the booke of admission, we answer that in the admission of the Founder's kinsmen it is usiall not to sett downe the place of their birth, because they are all admitted ubicunque sint oriundi: and for John Sands was admitted 1412; Jo: Aas 1413; Bartholomew Bolney 1415; John Mavile 1427; Thomas Spore 1424; Thomas Gilbert 1462; and one Rich. Fyennes 1465, all Founder's kinsmen: but when they be sworne the notary is bound by his oath to note ꝑticularly the place of their byrth, ut si opus fuerit redegatur in publicum.

Notes added on a fly-leaf by William Wickham:

The 12th daie of September 1637, Wm Wickham of Abingdon & Thomas Harper of Swalecliffe did see the armes wch Bishop Wickham did geve quartered wth an other coate of armes in a window in Broughton Church, where the Lo: Sey dwelleth; and in a window in Wellesborne Church in Warwickshire we did see them impaled wth an other coate wch wee were tould was the Midleton's armes, & in both these churches these armes doe seeme to be of great antiquitie.

The 13th of September 1637, Thomas Harper aforesaid asked Thomas Wickham, now of Swalecliffe, if he were any kyn to Humfry now Lord of Swalecliffe, and the said Thomas reply'd that he did not know nor ever heard that he or his ꝑdecessors ever were, or did at any tyme repute them selves to be kyn to the said Humfry or his ꝑdecessors, till of late that one of the Lo: Seyes sonnes did say that it was likely that he the said Thomas & the said Humfry were of the same bloode and kyndred; because their ꝑdecessors lived soe neere together & were of one & the same name, & that if he the said Thomas Wickham should deny his kyndred to the said Humfry, the said Thomas Wickham's children were never likely to be chosen into New Colledge.

CATALOGUE OF THE COLLECTIONS FOR THE HISTORY OF THE COUNTY OF DERBY, FORMED BY SAMUEL PEGGE, LL.D. RECTOR OF WHITTINGTON.

Amongst the miscellaneous manuscripts in the Library of the College of Arms are eight folio volumes, containing Collections formed with a view to a History of the County of Derby.

The Collector, the Rev. Samuel Pegge, LL.D. and F.S.A. born at Chesterfield 5th November 1704. was inducted to the Rectory of Whittington 11th November 1751, and died there on the 14th of February 1796. His publications on various subjects of antiquarian research are numerous and valuable. His son, Samuel Pegge, Esq. born in 1731, Gentleman of his Majesty's Privy Chamber, and one of the Esquires of the King's Household, is also well known to the antiquarian world as the author of the work entitled "Curialia." He died 22d May 1800, having presented, as is believed, his father's Derbyshire Collections to his friend the late John Nichols, Esq. the Historian of Leicestershire, who in 1809 disposed of them to the Members of the College of Arms.

Until recently they were in a confused and ill-arranged condition, when the Rev. Joseph Hunter, the Historian of South Yorkshire, a gentleman well acquainted with the County of Derby, kindly undertook the examination of them, and by a very judicious arrangement under the several heads of "Parochial matter," "Biography," and "Miscellaneous," has rendered the MSS. more available to all persons interested in the History of this County. Mr. Hunter's short summary of the principal contents of the different volumes, now prefixed to each, will show what the Topographer has to expect from them, and especially the several parishes to which the Collections more particularly refer.

It may be remarked that the following parishes are wanting: Castleton, Glossop, Hathersage, Hope, and Tideswell. As these are all in the immediate neighbourhood of Whittington, there can be no doubt that Dr. Pegge must have formed considerable collections for them; and as it is to be regretted that the collection should be imperfect, it is hoped this notice may lead to the discovery of what he left respecting them.

Memoirs of Dr. Pegge, written by his son, will be found in the Gentleman's Magazine for 1796, and in the sixth volume of Nichols's "Literary Anecdotes of the Eighteenth Century."

The only portions of his Derbyshire Collections that were published by himself or his son, are a Memoir on the Roman roads in the County, 1784; History of Bolsover and Peak Castles, 1785; Account of Beauchief Abbey, 1801.

Pedigrees of various Derbyshire families in the handwriting of Samuel Pegge, Esq. the Doctor's son.

A small quarto volume, entitled "Woolley's History of Derbyshire," accompanies Dr. Pegge's collection.

Prefixed to it is a letter addressed to Mr George Rogers, Mercht at Mile-end, near London, signed "Wm Woolley." At the end of the same volume will be found some extracts from Inquisitions post mortem of persons connected with the County of Derby, apparently in the handwriting of Samuel Pegge, followed by some other miscellaneous matters. This volume was obtained by the College at the same time as the other MSS.

There is also in the Library of the College a folio volume (of 286 pages) of Derbyshire Church Notes taken about the year 1710, by Francis Bassano, which was presented to the College by Samuel Lysons, Esq. and his brother the Rev. Daniel Lysons, in 1817. It will be found to contain a curious and interesting collection of Church notes: many of the monuments therein described have long since disappeared.

More than fifty volumes of MSS. chiefly consisting of collections relative to Derbyshire, were bequeathed to the British Museum in 1827 by Adam Wolley, of Matlock, co. Derby, Esq. and form the Additional MSS. 6666 to 6718.

Nos. 6666 to 6675 are miscellaneous collections of documents, pedigrees, &c. intitled "Analecta," vols. A to K.

The volumes 6676 to 6686 inclusive, are "Mineralia," consisting of legal briefs, cases, bills, and other law papers, relating to the Lead Mines in the county.

Nos. 6687 to 6696, are "Derbyshire Collectanea," marked A to K, and containing various legal and ecclesiastical documents, charters, wills, abstracts of title deeds, and miscellaneous papers. Volume G. (6693) consists wholly of matter relating to the property and family of Coningsby, of co. Hereford.

No. 6697 and 6698 are of similar miscellaneous contents.

No. 6699 is an Index to Mr. Wolley's series of original charters relating to Derbyshire (originally bound up in twelve folio volumes) now deposited with his other collections in the British Museum.

No. 6700 is "Breviarium Recordorum Regiorum in Capellâ Rotulorum et in Turri Londinensi remanentium, de maneriis, terris, et tenementis in com. Derb. collect. per Nathan Ringros, Gen." with additions by Mr. Wolley.

6701 consists of Church notes made by John Reynolds, jun. of Plaistow (see vol. I. of the present work, p. 155.)

6702 is an old and decayed volume of collections, supposed to have been made by Robert Columbell of Darley hall, who died in 1605.

6703, miscellaneous public tracts.

6704 contains copies of deeds, &c. made by Henry and Richard Wigley, from the reign of Elizabeth to Charles I.

6705 to 6707 are three quarto volumes, containing Derbyshire collections, made by Mr. Reynolds above mentioned.

6708 is a small volume by the same person, on Roman Coins found in Derbyshire.

6709 is a small volume by the Rev. Will. Pennifather, Rector of Draycott, Staffordshire, in the reign of Elizabeth and James I. chiefly relating to proceedings in the Ecclesiastical Court, respecting the tithes of Draycott; to which Mr. Wolley has added several modern opinions on points of law.

No. 6710 contains abstracts of Inquisitions post mortem for Derbyshire, from 2 Hen. VII. to 44 Eliz. with indexes of places and names.

No. 6711 contains transcripts of the Cartæ Antiquæ in the Tower during the reigns of Richard I., John, and Henry III., with an index.

No. 6712 is a similar volume of extracts from the Charter, Patent, and Clause Rolls from 1 to 31 Hen. III.

No. 6713 is a large folio volume, containing a Treatise on the Customs of the Cornish Stannaries, composed in 1586, by Mr. Hoblyn, Town Clerk of Bodmin, and other matters relating thereto.

No. 6714 relates to the priories of Tutbury, Brewood, Stafford, and Deulacres, co. Stafford, and Dale and Repton, co. Derby. It belonged to Mr. Astle in 1766.

No. 6715 is a collection of printed Particulars of estates, &c. chiefly in Derbyshire.

The other three volumes do not particularly relate to Derbyshire. Nos. 6716 and 6718 consist of miscellaneous monastic treatises; 6717 is a transcript of the Year Books of Edw. III. Hen. V. and VI.

The Derbyshire collections formed by the late Mr. Thomas Blore are still in the possession of his son, Edward Blore, Esq. F.S.A.

Those of Mr. Daniel Dakeyne, jun. of Holt-House in Darley, are in the possession of Mrs. Dakeyne, at Chesterfield, his widow.

Thomas Birds, Esq. of Eyam, lately deceased, left a considerable collection of original deeds and other papers relating to this County.

Mr. William Bateman, of Middleton Hall, near Bakewell (the only son of Thomas Bateman, Esq. late High Sheriff of the County) died in June 1835, leaving a large and valuable collection of materials, both printed and manuscript, for the History of Derbyshire.

DOCUMENTS RELATIVE TO THE FAMILIES OF BRYAN, FITZPAIN, PONYNGES, AND OTHERS, THE COHEIRS OF SIR GUY BRYAN, K.G.

In Sir Harris Nicolas's biographical notices of the deponents in the "Scrope and Grosvenor Roll," vol. ii. p. 245, will be found a memoir of Sir Guy Bryan, one of the most distinguished characters in the reign of Edward III. He was summoned to Parliament in 1350, elected K.G. in 1370, and died in 1390, at the age, most extraordinary in that warlike time, of ninety years. It is noticed in the same article, p. 250, that there has been considerable discrepancy and uncertainty in the published accounts of his marriages and issue. The following documents, some of which have been there referred to, contribute to throw considerable light on a subject which is still attended with partial obscurity.

The three seals remain. The first is two inches in diameter, and represents a shield bearing quarterly, Three bars surmounted by a bendlet, Ponynges, and Three lions passant surmounted by a bendlet, Fitzpayne; on the sinister point of the shield is placed a helmet with mantling, and bearing for a crest a large griffon's head with wings displayed. On one side of the helmet is the badge of a crowned key (see pp. 60, 68, of this volume), on the other a unicorn, statant. Legend, Sigillum Roberti Ponynges militis. This is engraved in the Gentleman's Magazine, vol. xcv. ii. 297. The second seal is from a ring, and represents, on a helmet, a boar's head, gorged with a coronet, the crest of Cheyne. The third, of the same small size, shows the face of an animal, probably intended for a camel, in allusion to the owner's name.

Deed of partition of the estates of Sir Guy de Bryan, in the year 1488, from the original in the possession of John Gage, Esq.

This Writyngꝭ quatr̃partited endented made the Sextentħ day of the monetħ of Decembr̃, in the yere of the reigne of Kyngꝭ Harry the vij^th the fourtħ, Witnessetħ that where diuͥse variaunces and contrauͥsies have beñ hadde ⁊ moved betwene Harry Erle of Northumbrelond on the oone ꝑtie, Thomas Erle of Ormond of the second ꝑtie, Edward Ponyngꝭ knygħt on the third ꝑtie, ⁊

[a] An abstract of this will has been published in vol. II. of the present work, p. 65; and also in "Wills and Inventories," published by the Surtees Society, 1835, p. 99.

Thomas Seymoᵘ knygħt on the fourth ꝑtie, of ⁊ for the title, clayme and possessioñ of suche castellꝭ, manꝰs, londꝭ, tenementꝭ ⁊ hereditamentꝭ whiche were sumtyme of ſ Guy de Brieñ knygħt. For asmoche as the seid Erle of Northumƀlond claymed the seid castellꝭ, manꝰs, londs, ⁊ teñtꝭ. ꝑte therof by reasoñ that he is heire genꝰaƚƚ and enheritable to the seid ſ Guy of alle his possessions fee symple, ⁊ also by divꝰse yiftꝭ in taiƚƚ made aswełł to the seid ſ Guy ⁊ oþʳ his auncestreȝ as to Roƀt late lord Ponyngꝭ ⁊ to the heireȝ genꝰaƚƚ of their bodies begoteñ. And also the seid Edward Ponyngs claymingyng (sic) divꝰse ꝑtꝭ thereof, by reason of estatꝭ tailled made to Roƀt son of the seid Roƀt late lord Ponyngꝭ, and to the heireȝ of his body comyngꝭ, whose son ⁊ heyr̃ the said Edward is. And the seid Thomas Seymoᵘ also claymed the seid castellꝭ, manꝰs, londꝭ, ⁊ teñtꝭ as heir̃ genꝰaƚƚ to the seid ſ Guy. And also by reasoñ of a wille by him alleged to be the last wille of Elizabetħ Loveƚƚ thañ cosyne ⁊ heire to the seid ſ Guy, ⁊ also by divꝰse recovꝰeeȝ of certeyñ ꝑceƚƚꝭ of the same hadde by ſ John Erlee auncestr̃ to the seid ſ Thomas, whose heire he is. And the seid Erle of Ormond claymed alle the seid castellꝭ, manꝰs, londꝭ, ⁊ teñtꝭ as brother ⁊ heire to James late Erle of Wilteshir̃ by reasoñ of divꝰse fynes rered to th'use of the seid Erle of Wilteſ̃ by Dame Avise Countesse of Wilteshire, thañ right heire to the seid ſ Guy de Bryeñ. For appesyngꝭ of whiche variauncꝭ ⁊ contravꝰsieȝ, by mediacioñ of divꝰse their̃ good lovers ⁊ frendꝭ, they have hadde divꝰs ⁊ oftentymes amyable ⁊ frendly coĩcacions. And by the advice of their counseillꝭ lerned. the same titles and maters have beñ ripely comyned and examined at many divꝰse metyngꝭ within the space of two yerꝭ and more. And at the lastꝭ by the grace of God in the monetħ of Novembr̃ the iiijᵗʰ yere of the reigne of Kyngꝭ Harry the vijᵗʰ, Hit is agreed, covenanted, ⁊ deꝰmyned bitwene the seid partieȝ. that the seid Erle of Northumbrelond is and owetħ to be takeñ and reputed as heire genꝰaƚƚ to the seid ſ Guy de Brieñ. Nevꝰtheless for grete divꝰse ⁊ reasonable consideracions movyngꝭ alle the said ꝑtieȝ and their counseillꝭ, hit is agreed and accorded bitwene theym that alle the seid castellꝭ, manꝰs, londꝭ, ⁊ tenementꝭ shalbe devided and distributed in fourme ensuyngꝭ. That is to sey, that the seid ſ Thomas shall have to him and to his heireȝ the manꝰs of Wroxhaƚƚ, Ramshᵃm, Maꝑton, ⁊ Childefrome, in the countie of Dorset, wᵗ the advousons of the churches of Wroxhaƚƚ and Ramshᵃm, and of the chapeƚƚ of Childe-frome, and alle the londe and tenemente the whiche were of the seid ſ Guy in Wroxhall, Ramsham, Mapton, ⁊ Childefrome, in the same countie, all whiche were of the same ſ Guy. And that the seid Erle of Ormond shall have to him and to his heirez in fee symple nowe forthwyth the Ile of Londay, and the maner and lordship of Northam withe appᵗᵉ tenancе in the countie of Devonshire, the man⁹e of Nether Kentiscomble in the countie of Dorset, and alle the londe and tenemente which were of the seid ſ Guy in the seid Ile, and in Northam, in the same county of Devonshire, and in Nether Kentescombe in the same countie of Dors, And the reu⁹sions of the man⁹s of Kyngesdoñ, Som⁹ton Erle, and Som⁹toñ Randolf, with the advousons of the churches of Kyngesdoñ, and Som⁹toñ Randolff in the countie of Som⁹s, And the rev⁹sions of the man⁹s of Poyntknolle, Swynetoller, and Hasilbere, in the county of Dors, with the advousons of the churches of Hasilbere and Poyntknolle, and the reu⁹sion of alle such londe and tent̃e as were of the seid ſ Guy in Som⁹toñ Erle and Som⁹toñ Randolff, in the seid countie of Soms, and in Poyntknolle, Swynetoller, and Hasilbere in the seid countie of Dors immediatly aftir the deth of Alianore Countesse of Wiltes, the whiche holdeth the same man⁹s, londs, tenemente, ⁊ advousons t⁹me of her liff. Alle whiche so appoynted to the same Erle of Ormond, were of the seid ſ Guy. And that the seid Erle of Ormond shalbe made sure of xxx li. of rent charge goynge oute of the maner of Stokecursy, Wyke, and Staple in the seid Countie of Som⁹set. To have to him for t⁹me of lyff of the seid Countesse as shalbe devised by his Counseill. And the seid Edward shall have to him, and to the heirez of the body of the said Robt son of the foreseid Robt late lord Ponynge, the man⁹s of Chellesfeld, Esthall, Faukham, and Asshe, with their appᵗᵉ tenancе, in the countie of Kente, the maner of Shokerwyke and Batheneston, with the rente, s̃vicez, and ꝑquisite of the Courte of and in the maner of Dunhede in the countie of Som⁹set, and alle other londe ⁊ ten̄te the whiche were of the seid ſ Guy in Chellesfeld, Esthall, Faukham, Asshe, Shokerwike, and Batheneston aforeseid. excepte londe and tenemente of the same to the yerly value of xxti marc̃. the whiche the seid Erle of Northumbrelond shall have made sure to him and to his heirez by the seid Edward. as the Counseill of the said Erle of Northumbrelond shall devise. in recompence of londe and tenemente to the yerly value of xxti marc̃ by hym upoñ thies agremente deliu⁹ed for the seid Edward to the seid Erle of Ormond and to his heireȝ. And the seid Erle of Northumbrelond shall have alle the residue not bifore appoynted of alle the castellꝭ, manꝰs, londꝭ, tenementꝭ, and other hereditamentꝭ, the which were of the seid ſ Guy. And that euꝰy of the seid parties and their heireȝ be made sure of the porcioñ assigned to him as is above seid, by the advice of his Counseill ⁊ at his costꝭ ⁊ chargꝭ, and endevoir him to do that in him is, to the ꝑfite execucioñ of the seid agrementꝭ. And that euꝰy of the seid ꝑteiȝ do and ꝑfoͤme that to him shalbe advised by the seid Counseillꝭ for suertie of the seid porcions. And that the same residue so appoynted to the seid Erle of Northumbrelond be full recompence to him and to his heireȝ of alle suche right, title, ⁊ inꝰesse as he hath or claymeth in the foreseid manꝰs, londꝭ, teñtꝭ, reuꝰsions, and advousons seuꝰally appoynted to the seid Erle of Ormond, Edward Ponyngꝭ knyght, and ſ Thomas Seymoͤ. And the seid manꝰs, londꝭ, and teñtꝭ appoynted to the seid ſ Thomas be full recõpence to the same ſ Thomas Seymoͤ ⁊ his heires of and for alle suche right, title, and inꝰesse as he hath or claymeth in alle the seid othir castellꝭ, lordships, manꝰs, londꝭ, and teñtꝭ aboveseid seuꝰally assigned to the seid Erle of Northumbrelond, Erle of Ormond, and ſ Edward, or in any othir londꝭ or teñtꝭ the whiche were of the seid ſ Guy. And the seid Ile, manꝰs, lordships, londꝭ, teñts, rentꝭ, reuꝰsions, ⁊ advousons above appoynted to the seid Erle of Ormond be full recompence to the same Erle of Ormond and his heires for alle suche right, title, and inꝰesse as he hath or claymeth in alle the foreseid other manꝰs, londꝭ, ⁊ teñtꝭ assigned or appoynted seuꝰally to the seid Erle of Northumbrelond, Edward, and ſ Thomas Seymour̃, or in any other londꝭ or teñtꝭ the whiche were of the seid ſ Guy. And the seid manꝰs, londꝭ, ⁊ teñtꝭ above appoynted to the seid Edward, be full recõpence to him and to his heireȝ of and for alle suche right, title, and inꝰesse, as he hath or claymeth in alle the othir p̃misses. And the seid Erle of Northumbrelond graunteth to the seid Erle of Ormond that he shall make sure the same Erle of Ormond of the manꝰe of Lyde in the countie of Somꝰs̃. To have to him and to his heires, as shalbe devised by the counseill of the same Erle of Ormond at his costꝭ and chargꝭ. And ouꝰ this hit is graunted and agreed bitwene the seid ꝑties thatꝭ euꝰy of them shall have to the use of him and of his seid heires alle the evidencꝭ, chartres, ⁊ mynumentꝭ conc̃nyngꝭ the castellꝭ, man⁹s, londꝭ, tenementꝭ, advousons, and hereditamentꝭ to him assigned̄ and appoynted̄ as is aboveseid, or any ꝑcell̄ therof, by the deliu̅aunce of alle suche of the seid other ꝑties as have or any other to the use of any of them or their knowlege hath̄ any of the same evidencꝭ, chartreȝ, and mynumentꝭ. And that if any of the same chartres ⁊ mynumentꝭ conc̃ne aswell̄ any ꝑte of the p̃misseȝ as any other londꝭ or teñtꝭ of any othir of the seid ꝑtieȝ, the whiche by this agrement shall̄ not have the same evidencꝭ, that thañ eu̅y of the seid ꝑties whos oþʳ londꝭ or tenementꝭ the same evidencꝭ, chartres, or mynumentꝭ conc̃neth̄ shall̄ have copies or vidim⁹ therof at their pleasur̃, costꝭ, and chargꝭ. And that the seid Erle of Ormond shall̄ have alle the evidencꝭ, chartres, ⁊ minumentꝭ touching only the seid Ile. And if any of the seid evidencꝭ conc̃ne two or mo of the seid porcions assigned and appoynted̄ as is aboveseid, or any ꝑte of two or mo of the same porcions, that thañ the seid ꝑtieȝ to whome man⁹s, londꝭ, or teñtꝭ of grettest value conteyned in the same evidencꝭ is assigned, have alle suche evidencꝭ, and the seid oþʳ ꝑties copies or vidim⁹ therof. To the copy before us are appended the Seals of

thus written on the labels, but evidently by the draughtsman, and there are no sign-manuals. The names show it to have been the first of the four parts of the indenture, destined for the Earl of Northumberland. The seal of the Earl of Ormond seems to represent a bird's nest placed in a tripod. The second seal is wholly flattened; and the third is so much defaced and broken, that it can only be perceived that it once represented a shield of arms. The deed is indorsed: "Irro^r in dors' claus' Cancellar' d'ni Regis infrascr' mense et anno infrascr'."

[e] Here again the genealogist was wrong: it was William who died without issue, and Guy who had issue Philippa and Elizabeth (see p. 253). Philippa married first Sir John Devereux; and secondly, about July 1398, Henry third Lord Scrope of Masham, K. G. but died s. p. Nov. 19, 1406. Elizabeth was married to Sir Robert Lovel, by whom she had Maud, her daughter and heiress, married first (not secondly, as in Scrope and Grosvener Roll, vol. ii. p. 253) to Sir Richard Stafford, by whom she was mother of Avicia their heiress, afterwards Countess of Wiltshire; and secondly to John Earl of Arundel, K. G. who died May 12, 1435, by whom she had issue Humphrey Earl of Arundel, who died in 1437, æt. 9. The will of Maud Countess of Arundel is dated May 11, 1436, and proved Oct. 25 that year.

[b] "Daughter of Thomas Sherland, of Wellshall, in Suffolk, and Anne, dau. of Judge Yelverton, by Mary, daughter of Mr. Catesby of Whileston, Northamptonshire," ob. 24 Apr. 1631, æt. 30. Her effigy is in Iver church, rising in a shroud from her coffin. See the epitaph in Topographer, vol. ii. p. 74, where the date is misprinted 1613. In the Visitation of Buckinghamshire 1634, (Coll. Arm.) she is called dau. of Edward (read Thomas) Sherland, of Willeshall, co. Suffolk, and heir to her brother; and is stated to have had issue, Edward, Christopher, Elizabeth, Mary, and Anne. Sir William married secondly ....., dau. of ....., Crofts, widow of Sir William Smith of Essex, and had issue Ursula.

[c] Styled "one of the Cup-bearers to her Majesty," — Henrietta-Maria — in his wife's epitaph. Lysons (Buckinghamshire, p. 587) erroneously calls him Sir George.

[d] Sir Edward Salter was knighted by James the First at Ampthill, July 21, 1621. He was one of the Masters in Chancery, and carver to Prince Charles. Visit. Bucks, 1634.

Elizabeth, dau. of John Lawrence of St. Clement's Danes, London, bur. 13 Nov. 1664.

Sir John Lawrence, of Iver, and of Chelsea, near London, Knt. and Bart. was the son and heir of Thomas Lawrence, of London, citizen and goldsmith, who, according to the Buckinghamshire Visitation of 1634, was "descended from Lawrence of Lancashire." Thomas Lawrence died October 28, 1593, æt. 54, leaving a widow and five surviving of eleven children. The whole family are represented kneeling in a mural monument at Chelsea church, which is engraved in Faulkner's History of that parish, 1829, vol. i. p. 221. It is surmounted by the arms of Lawrence, Arg. a cross ragulee Gu. those of the Merchants Adventurers, and those of the Goldsmiths' Company. His wife was Martha, daughter of Sir Anthony Cage of London. Of his daughters, Mary was the wife of William Jackson, Esq. (Visit. 1634); and Sarah, of Richard Colvile of Newton in the isle of Ely. The latter died 17 Apr. 1631, æt. 40, leaving eight sons and two daus. and was buried in Chelsea church (see her epitaph in Faulkner, i. 221). "Jane Lawrance, gentlwoman, buried at Chelsea, Aug. 31, 1633," was probably another sister.

[e] "Youngest sonne," and a Turkey merchant; he died 14 Oct. 1661, æt. 30, and was buried at Chelsea. See his poetical epitaph in Faulkner's History of that parish, i. 223.

Sir John Lawrence, of Chelsea, and of Delaford in Iver, was knighted at Royston, Jan. 26, 1609-10; and created a Baronet Oct. 9, 1628. He died Nov. 13, 1638, æt. 50, and was buried the next day in Chelsea church. On his monument the Lawrence coat is differenced with a chief Azure, charged with three leopard's heads, evidently taken from the arms of the Goldsmiths (see the epitaph in Faulkner, i. 222). He married Grissell, dau. and coh. of Gervase Gibbon of Benenden, Kent, who survived him, and was buried at Chelsea, March 22, 1675. They had issue seven sons and four daughters. Six of these are named above from the Iver register. Grace was baptised and buried at Hackney in 1613. Those who are mentioned in the Visitation of 1634, and were probably then surviving, are John, Robert, Sampson, Henry; Anne, Frances, Grisell. The last was married to Isaac Lawrence, of Chelsea, and of Sherdington, co. Glouc. and had issue. This Isaac Lawrence was baptised at Badgeworth, co. Glouc. 30 March 1614, and buried there March 31, 1684; Grisell became his administratrix, Apr. 19, 1684.

Sir John Lawrence,[f] the second Baronet, married Mary, second daughter of Sir Thomas Hampson, of Taplow, co. Bucks. Bart. probably the same Lady Lawrence who was buried at Chelsea, Oct. 11, 1664; by whom he had issue Mary, who died 13 Dec. 1649, æt. 3, and was buried at Taplow; and his son and heir, Thomas. Sir John was living in 1676, when his son is styled "Esquire" in the Chelsea register.

Sir Thomas Lawrence, the third Baronet, was buried at Chelsea, Apr. 25, 1714. He married Anne,[g] daughter of ——— English,[h] and had issue Anne, baptised at Chelsea, May 4, 1675, and John, baptised there Nov. 5, 1676. "Anne, Lady Lawrence" was buried at Chelsea, Nov. 2, 1723.

John Lawrence of Chelsea, Esq. heir apparent of Sir Thomas Lawrence, Bart. and Anne his wife, sold an estate at Chelsea to Lord Cheyne, March 26, 1706 (Faulkner, i. 262). His wife, Elizabeth, was buried at Chelsea, Aug. 7, 1701.

Ann, dau. of Mr. Robert Bowyer,[i] bap. 1 Feb. 1631.

[f] This Sir John Lawrence, about the year 1644, restored the inscription on Sir Thomas More's monument in Chelsea church, causing it to be recut on a handsome table of black marble. In Faulkner, 1829, vol. ii. 132, he is incorrectly identified with Sir John Lawrence, Lord Mayor of London during the plague in 1665, whose coat of arms was differenced by a canton Ermines.

[g] Faulkner, i. 262.

[h] Mrs. E. English, Lady Lawrence's mother, was buried at Chelsea, in 1710.

[i] Robert Bowyer founded a free-school at Iver; his endowment of which produces 21*l.* per annum.

CHARTER RELATIVE TO A GARDEN NEAR THE GAOL OF LONDON, AND SEVEN ACRES AT EDMONTON, CIRCA 1180.

This early charter (temp. Richard Bishop of Winchester 1173—1189) was copied by Richard St. George into the book now the MS. Harl. 6148, f. 140, with the following memorandum: "Ista Charta cum sigillo jam in custodia Oliveri Sti Johannis." On the opposite page are some imperfect notes from very ancient charters, relative to Patrisey in Surrey, which were in possession of the same party.

It is not perfectly certain where the City Gaol was; but in all probability it was Newgate, that being the City prison in the reign of King John. (Stow's Survey.)

FUNERAL CERTIFICATES, TEMP. ELIZABETH.

There are few genealogical documents more interesting than the Heralds' Certificates of Funerals; and, as far as they extend, they are of equal importance with the Visitations. They commence in 1567, pursuant to an order of the Earl Marshal made in that year, and continue to the close of the following century; after which period they gradually fell into disuse. See Grimaldi's Origines Genealogicæ, p. 255; where, at p. 261, 262, are published those of Fulke Grevill, Lord Brooke, 1628, and Archbishop Accepted Frewen, 1664.

From the circumstance of their having been chiefly preserved among the official records of the College of Arms, their merits have scarcely been appreciated except by the professional herald; the following are therefore given as specimens of a series of records, the whole of which are well deserving of publication.

The present are extracted from a small parcel of originals, "found in Mr. Clarencieux Lee's studye at his death," and now in the possession of J. B. Nichols, Esq. F.S.A.

To the records of these Certificates in the College of Arms, the armorial bearings of the deceased are generally attached.

SEPULCHRAL MEMORIALS OF THE SACKVILLE FAMILY, AT WITHYAM, SUSSEX.

The Church of Withyam was almost entirely rebuilt in the reign of Charles the Second, in consequence of the structure having been destroyed by one of those violent storms from which the churches in the hilly districts of Kent and Sussex have frequently suffered. This catastrophe happened on the 16th of June 1663; and the following curious notice relating to it, occurs in Baxter's "Certainty of the World of Spirits Fully Evinced," 1691: "The Church where the present Lord Chamberlain, Earl of Dorset and Middlesex, his ancestors' monuments were, was torn by lightning that came in at the steeple, melted the bells, and went up to the chancel, and there tore the monuments to pieces. I saw pieces of the monuments which had some of the golden letters, which a truly worthy lady brought home, that went from Tunbridge Waters to see the Church."

Whether there now exists any particular account of these ancient monuments I am not aware; but it appears from Collins's Peerage that some of them were to the memory of:

Humfry Sakevyle, Esq. died 24 Jan. 1488; with a figure on brass plate, engraved in Collins's Peerage, 4to. 1727, p. 391.

Richard Sakevile, Esq. died 18 July 1524, & Isabell his wife, dau. of John Dyggs, of Barham in Kent, Esq. also engraved ibid. p. 393.

Cecily (Baker) Countess of Dorset, 1615, "a handsome tomb."

Richard second Earl of Dorset, 1608-9, "a noble monument."

The father of Humfrey, Edward, was here buried 1459.

Sir Richard Sackville, in 8 Eliz. desired burial at Withyam.

The great Lord Treasurer Buckhurst, the first Earl of Dorset, directed in his will "that my bodie be buried in the church of Withiam in Sussex, namelie within the isle and chapel there appropriate to the Sackvilles my ancestors, and with and amongst the rest of my progenitors there interred." Collins states, on the authority of Wood's Athenæ Oxon. that his remains were deposited in Westminster Abbey; but it will be seen in the next page, that his coffin is now at Withyam. The fact is, that the principal ceremonies of his obsequies were solemnised at Westminster, where Dr. Abbot, afterwards Archbishop of Canterbury, preached the funeral sermon; but the body was conveyed to the cemetery of his ancestors.

Robert, second Earl of Dorset, willed "that two or three hundred pounds, as his executors think best, be bestowed on a tomb, to be erected in his chapel in the church of Withiam, and his own figure, with the figure of the Lady Margaret his wife, to be placed thereon, as also his children, as well those that were dead, as those who were living."

Richard Earl of Dorset, by his will dated 20 March 1624, directs his body to be buried at Withyam, and a monument to be erected there for him and his Countess Anne Clifford, as his executors, Lord William Howard his uncle and Sir George Rivers, should think fit; they to bestow on the same about 1000*l.* He leaves 30*l.* to the poor of Hartfield, 30*l* to the poor of Withyam, and leaves Sir Edw. Sackville his brother residuary legatee. He devises an annual payment of 330*l.* to issue out of his manors of Buckhurst, Muncklow, al's Withyham, Kendal, and Fiskridge, towards the support of Sackville college in East Grensted.

Not a vestige now remains of the monuments which existed before the fire; but the Sackville vault appears to have escaped uninjured, if we may judge from the vast assemblage of old coffins still remaining in a perfect state of preservation. Their inscriptions will in a great degree supply the deficiency of monumental epitaphs. The following copies of them were taken partly by the Rev. Sackville Stephens Bale, LL.B. the vicar,[a] in 1784, for Sir Thomas Burrell (see Burrell MSS. Brit. Mus. 5697, f. 637); and partly by J. G. N. on the 24th July 1835.

From the coffins being placed upon one another, it is possible a few have still escaped examination. The earliest are generally in capital letters, raised on the lead.

Above the vault, on the north side of the chancel, is now a spacious monumental chapel. It has a large east window, of handsome tracery. The ceiling is flat, with deeply sunk pannels, resembling that of the chapel at Tunbridge Wells. In the centre is a flying figure in relief, of Fame, with the date A. D. MDCLXXX. and at the west end the Dorset arms, impaling [Argent] on a pale [Azure] three fleurs-de-lis [of the First]. Cranfield.

I. In the centre of the Chapel is a magnificent tomb, consisting of a table monument, on which the figure of a youth is reclining, whilst on either side of the tomb are his father and mother, intently gazing upon him, and kneeling in easy postures as if they were just come to the spot for that purpose. The youth reclines on his right arm, his left hand holding a skull, resting on his thigh. His mother kneels, contemplating his countenance, her head resting on her right hand, and her left hand placed with drapery on the tomb; she has full hair, plaited on the head, a long close boddice, and full skirts. The father, on the north side of the tomb, kneels with his left leg on a cushion, his left hand on his breast, his right at his side holding a truncheon; he has long hair, and is attired in armour, with a very large scarf, and a sword.

At the west end of the tomb are these lines in capitals:

Stand not amaz'd (Reader) to see us shead
From drowned eyes vaine offerings to the dead;
For he whose sacred ashes here doth lye
Was the great hopes of all our Familly.
To blaze whose vertues is but to detract
From them, for in them none can be exact.
So grave and hopefull was his youth,
So deare a freind to piety and truth,
He scarce knew sin, but what curst nature gave,
And yet grim death hath snatch'd him to his grave.
He never to his parents was unkeind
But in his early leaving them behind;
And nowe hath left us, and for e'er is gon,
What Mother would not weep for such a Son?
May this faire monument then never fade,
Or be by blasting time or age decay'd;
Then the succeeding times to all may tell
Here lieth one that liv'd and dyed well.
Here lyes the thirteenth child and seaventh son,
Who in his thirteenth yeare his race had run.

THOMAS SACKVILLE.

At the east end this:

This Monument was design'd to be Erect^{ed} before the decease of ye Rt. Hon. Richard Earl of Dorset, father of the Youth, who departed this life ye 27th of August in the year of our Lord God 1677.

And in ye 55th year of his age, And ye Rt. Hon. Fransces Countess Dowager of Dorset, Relict of the said Father,
And Mother of the said Youth,
Erected the same to perpetuate ye memory of her husband and Son in the year of our Lord 1678.

On the north side of the tomb is a bas-relief representing six other children of the same family:

1, a man kneeling on his left knee, in a wig, long cravat, and peer's robes. This is Charles sixth Earl of Dorset.

2, a man kneeling on both knees, with a breastplate, scarf, and sword. The Hon. Edward Sackville, who died 1678, æt. 37.

3, a naked infant, with a palm branch and skull. Hon. Lionel Sackville, died in 1646 (see p. 297.)

4, a man, kneeling on one knee, in a wig and civil dress, with a sword. Hon. Richard Sackville, who died 1712, æt. 63 (see p. 300).

5, a child with a palm branch. Another Lionel, who died in 1659, aged 30 months (see p. 298.)

6, an infant boy on a cushion, with a palm branch and skull. Cranfield, who died Jan. 1, 1660-1, aged 14 days.

On the south side:

7, a boy, partly naked, with palm branch and skull. The Hon. Thomas Sackville, the same who is represented in full size above, and whose long coffin-plate is printed in p. 299.

8, a lady, with a fan, kneeling on both knees. Mary wife of Roger Lord Broghill, afterwards the second Earl of Orrery.

9, a lady, with a palm branch and skull. Anne Countess of Home, died in 1672, æt. 22 (see p 299.)

10, a lady kneeling, hands raised in prayer. Frances, wife of George Lane, Viscount Lanesborough (see p. 300).

11, 12, two little girls kneeling, with palm branches, and holding a skull between them. Lady Elizabeth, who died in 1643, æt. 2, and Lady Anne, who died in 1649, æt. 3 (see p. 297.)

In the window of the chapel is a carving of the Sackville arms, taken from the monument, with this motto, TOUS IOURS LOYALL.

II. A mural monument by Nollekins, representing in bas-relief three naked boys, with a medallion of the Duke, three-quarters face, which they are encircling with a garland:

John-Frederick Duke and Earl of Dorset, Earl of Middlesex, Baron of Buckhurst, and Baron of Cranfield, Knight of the Most Noble Order of the Garter, Lord Lieutenant & Custos Rotulorum of the County of Kent and of the City of Canterbury, Vice Admiral of the coasts of the said County, and Steward of Stratford-upon-Avon. He was Ambassador to the Court of France, and Steward of His Majesty's Household. He died in the year 1799, on the 19th day of July, in the 55th year of his age, and was buried near this place; to whose memory this is offered with the utmost gratitude, affection, and honour by his widow Arabella Diana.

Nollekins F. 1802.

Arms, within a garter, Quarterly Or and Gules, a bend Vaire, Sackville; on an inescutcheon, Argent, on a chevron Az. betw. three roses Gu. stalked and leaved Vert, as many fleurs-de-lis of the Field, a crescent for difference, Cope. Supporters, two leopards Argent, spotted Sable. Crest, over a modern ducal coronet, On a coronet a star.

Motto, AUT NUNQUAM TENTES AUT PERFICE.

III. A mural monument, by Flaxman, represents in alto-relievo a female (the Duchess Arabella-Diana) in plain full drapery, seated in front of an urn; her head resting on her right hand, and her left on her knee. Above is a medallion of the deceased, front faced.

Under this marble are deposited the remains of George John Frederick, Duke of Dorset, who was killed by a fall from his horse in the vicinity of Dublin, on the 14th day of February, A.D. 1815, havivg just attained the age of 21 years. In the highest rank he was humble, amidst the temptations of youth his morals were exemplary; his reason strengthened by early culture, his mind enlightened by knowledge, his manners formed by benevolence, his virtues founded on religion, rendered him the delight of his friends, the hope of his country. His premature death was by two Nations deplored as a publick calamity; but to those who loved him, his virtues supply a consolatory sorrow, but not as without hope; for, through the mercy of their Redeemer, the spirits of just men made perfect shall meet to part no more.

Flaxman, R.A. Sculptor.

IV. A mural monument by Chantrey, represents in alto-relievo two females, of the size of life, kneeling before an urn, (the Countess of Plymouth and Countess De la Warr); the one behind places her hand before her face, but not so close as to conceal her features:

To the memory of Arabella Diana Duchess of Dorset; the hours of her last illness were few, and her death sudden; but her sorrowing daughters had the consolation of knowing that she was not unprepared to meet it, for in her was all the piety of a Christian, extensive charity to the indigent, and constancy in exercising the duties which adorn and render happy domestic life. She died August the 1st, 1825, in the 58th year of her age.

There are five hatchments:

1. Sackville, Duke of Dorset, impaling, Gules, on a chevron betw. three boar's heads couped Argent, three trees Vert, Colyear.
2. Duke of Dorset, and Cope on an inescucheon.
3. Earl Whitworth and the same Duchess.
4. Sackville only (the young Duke).
5. Viscount Sackville, with an inescucheon, Azure, three salmons naiant in pale Argent. Sambrooke.

There are no monuments in the church,—only one inscription on a square piece of white marble in the chancel pavement:

Nic. Pennington, A.M.
Rec^r of this Parish, ob. Dec.
19, 1722, aged 43.
From Wigan, Lancashire.

The date 1666 appears on the font, and 1672 on the dial over the door of the porch. The tower is large, but not lofty; this and the western portion of the north wall are probably parts of the old church.

A view of Withyam Church and parsonage will be found in Amsinck's "Tunbridge Wells, and its neighbourhood," 4to. 1810.

Of the old mansion of Buckhurst in this parish, the seat of the Sackvilles, before the purchase of Knowle, the only ancient feature now conspicuous is a tower of the entrance gateway. On this the coat of Sackville is three times carved, and the crest is a ram's head couped affrontée. Around the coats, with architectural labels, are carved quatrefoils, roses, fleurs-de-lis, and a bunch of hops. The initials I. A. point out the builder, John Sackville, Esq. grandfather of the Lord Treasurer, and his second wife Anne Torrell.[a] A view of this Tower will also be found in Amsinck's work above mentioned.

[a] Great pedigree at Knole; where his first wife is styled Margaret Boleyne, and not Anne, as in Collins's Peerage. She was, however, the mother of his children; and, as she was aunt to Queen Anne Boleyne, the Lord Treasurer was thus second cousin to his Royal Mistress.

[y] Sir William Haward, or Hayward, of Tandridge, was probably father of this lady and of Northamptonia below. See Hist. of Surrey, ii. 379.

[z] John Massingberd, Esq. merchant of London, died 23 Nov. 1653, leaving Cecilia his wife with two daughters, Elizabeth, wife of George Earl Berkeley, and Mary of Robert Earl of Lindsey. The latter is incorrectly called "widow of George, only son of Lord Berkeley," in Collins's Peerage, by Brydges, vol. ii. p. 20, thus confounding the two sisters.

[a] Lady Elizabeth, eldest daughter of George, who succeeded as Baron Berkeley 1658, and was created Earl of Berkeley in 1679, was married to William Smith, of the Inner Temple, Esq. and died about 1681.

[b] Instituted Rector in 1639-40. His son John born 12, bap. 22 April 1658;

Mrs. Jane Locke, wife of Thomas Locke, late of Merton, Esqr, bur. the last of Jun. 1660.

Susan Fines, wife of John Fines, Esqr, of the parish of Frayle in Hantsh^{r}, bur. 4 Sept. 1661.

A pedigree of Howland, from deeds, is printed in the History of Surrey, vol. iii. p. 387, but the historians neglected the much fuller one in the Visitations (see MS. Harl. 1433, f. 58.) Sir Giles was brother to Richard Bp. of Peterborough, consecrated 16 Mar. 1584, ob. June 1600.

Mary, dau. of Giles Howland, bur. 19 Apr. 1603.

George Fitzwilliam [a] and Elizabeth Howland, mar. 7 Sept. 1603.

Dame Elizabeth Howland,[b] bur. 30 Apr. 1605.

Sr Giles Howland, K^{t}, bur. 11 Jul. 1608.

O God! Thy will be done!
To the memory of Anne, the wife of Richd Cheslyn, of Langley Priory, Esqr.
She was the second daughter of Thomas Barber, of Derby, Esqr.
An excellent heart and amiable manners insured her the esteem of an extensive acquaintance;
but her delicate form of body, and extreme sensibility of mind, tended to shorten her life, and she died beloved by all who knew her,
and greatly bewailed by her husband and children, on the 10th day of August 1823, in her 54th year.

Accept, blest shade, the tributary tear
That mourns thy exit from a world like this;
Forgive the wish that would have kept thee here,
And stay'd thy progress to the seat of bliss.
Tho' thou art free from mortal care,
Thy spirit fled to realms above;
Still shalt thou be to mem'ry dear,
And ever claim thy husband's love.

EXTRACTS FROM THE REGISTERS OF HAMMERSMITH, CO. MIDDLESEX.

Lysons, in his Environs of London, vol. ii. pp. 413—420, has given several extracts from the Parish Register of Fulham [a] for the "Hammersmith side." The earliest Register of Fulham commences with marriages in the year 1674, and with baptisms and burials in 1675; it is therefore deserving of attention that some Hammersmith registers are in existence of a rather earlier date. They are the books in which original entries were made by the Curates and Chapel Clerks or Sextons of Hammersmith Chapel, copies of the entries being transmitted to Fulham. Having been always deemed private property, they were purchased by the late Minister, the Rev. Thomas Stephen Atwood, M.A. from the representatives of the Bland family, for a long period the Chapel Clerks or Sextons, and they are now the property of his son, the Rev. Francis Thomas Atwood, M.A. who was first his father's Curate, then his successor as Minister, and is now the Vicar of Hammersmith.

Being only intended for private reference, the earliest of these books, which were the work of the Rev. John Wade, Minister from 1662 to 1707, are of an unusual character. They are written with great neatness, but are in substance the books of his receipts, interspersed with notes, in short hand, of his sermons and other memoranda. The greatest space, perhaps, is occupied by lists of the renters of pews, with the sums paid by each person. At the end of each quarter, is added a list of the presents or gratuities [b] which he received in addition to the "pewage money." Many of these were from occasional lodgers in the village. In the first book, besides other names of quality, which will be quoted hereafter, occur those of Sir Thomas Bonfoy, Sir Edward Carteret, Sir William Courtney, Sir John Thorowgood, Colonel Trussel, and Captain Growden

In 1670 Sir John Pye made Mr. Wade a present of "Synopsis Criticorum," which he valued at 1*l.* 10*s.*

The frequent occurrence of French names shows that many of the refugees from France had settled here, and in the following entry is found a mention of their "church":

"February 8th 1702-3. Bernard Hulin and Louise Tritot, was married in the Frinch Church at Hammersmith, by Mr. Bernard Riehon, minister."

The names, among others, are found of Azire (starch-maker), Centlivre, Duchesnay, Pigou (woollen-draper), Ribouleau, &c.

Among the burials—

1701-2. Eliza Dranow Allin, a French maid.

1702, Nov. 24. David Lacasto, a poor Frenchman.

1705, May 21. Charlatta Eliza, dau. of Mr. John Harmand debourdieu, A french minister, and Esther.

The following names may be noticed for their curiosity:

Iszephroniah Odier, d. of Wm. & Iszephroniah, bur. 9 Feb. 1682-3.

Pamphilus Scanderbergh Pigou, son of John & Mary, bap. 5 Aug. 1687 (6*s.* 6*d.*) bur. 21 Apr. 1688 (4*s.* 6*d.*)

SPONSALIA.

BY JOHN SOUTHERDEN BURN, ESQ. AUTHOR OF THE "HISTORY OF PARISH REGISTERS," "FLEET MARRIAGES," &c.

This term sometimes signified "Love Gifts and Tokens;" sometimes the portion of goods given in consideration of marriage; and at other times the feast or banquet prepared for the celebration of the marriage. It often was used for the ring, the very "arrabo," or assured pledge of a perfect promise. On other occasions the term was applied to certain contracts entered into by persons engaging to become man and wife at a future day, and it is in this latter sense that the term is introduced as a title to these remarks.

Swinburne's "Treatise of Spousals," published in 1686, observes, that the custom of spousals was then in a great measure gone out of use; and the Marriage Act of 1753 enacted that no suit or proceeding should be had in any Ecclesiastical Court in order to compel a celebration of any marriage "in facie Ecclesiæ," by reason of any contract of matrimony, whether "per verba de præsenti," or "per verba de futuro."

The marriage ceremony of the Church of England still retains both these last-mentioned contracts,—thus when the Priest says, "Wilt thou have this woman to thy wedded wife?" he replies, "I will," this is a contract de futuro. And when the man says, "I, M, take (or, do now take) thee, N, to my wedded wife," this is a contract per verba de præsenti, and the marriage is then complete.

Espousals might be entered into by either sex at the age of 7 years, and marriage might be contracted by the woman at 12, and by the man at 14.[a]

In an ancient manuscript (No. 1042 in the Archiepiscopal Library at Lambeth Palace) the methods of contracting espousals are thus described:

"Contrahunt^a^ sponsalia iiij modis—Aliqu^a^ ꝑmissione, aliqu^a^ datis arris sponsalitiis interveniente anuli subarracõe, aliqu^a^ interveniente juramto. Nuda promissione cum dicit vir, Accipiam te ī meā uxorem, et illa respondet, Accipiā te in meū maritū. Vel alia verba equipollencia, et ista ſt vera sponsalia q̃ndo sit ꝑ v̄ba de futuro cont^a^huntur."

The Espousals confirmed by an oath were called "Jurata Sponsalia," or "Sworn Spousals."

Public espousals were, upon pain of excommunication, to be in an open place, and before divers witnesses in public (Lind. 271). It does not, however, appear to have been necessary to the validity of these contracts, that they should be made at Church.[b] "Espousals in facie Ecclesiæ are but pro honestate publicanda, if there hath been formerly a contract ꝑ verba de præsenti between the parties." (Noy, Attorn. 1632.) But the word Espousals as used in this latter quotation, in connection with "in facie Ecclesiæ," denotes actual marriage.

Where persons who had contracted Espousals de futuro, refused to perform their promise, "the Judge was not to proceed to the significavit into Chancery for an excommunicato capiendo, but rather to absolve[c] that cursed party which contemned the

[a] Nuptias præcedere solent Sponsalia, quæ sunt mentio et repromissio futurarum nuptiarum. Jure canonico et hodierno dividuntur Sponsalia in ea quæ fiunt de præsenti, et de futuro. Illa fiunt consensu præsenti: hæc promissione in futurum. Sponsalia illa de præsenti secundum jus Romanum sunt ipsum matrimonium: cujus forma in solo consensu consistet. Licet Canones et Constitutiones Græcorum nonnullique mores benedictionem sacerdotum quoque requirant. (Inst. Just. tit. "de Nuptiis.")

[b] In an Almanack for 1665, certain days (January 2, 4, &c.) are pointed out as "good to marry, or contract a wife (for then women will be fond and loving)."

[c] By the custom of the Jews, in case of misconduct in a betrothed woman, she was to be divorced, though the parties had not come together, and a bill for that purpose was necessary to the avoiding of the incomplete contract, though the terms were different from the common divorce. (Nuptiæ Sacræ, p. 29, Maimonides de Div.)

Zonaras mentions that they who had certain intercourse with their Spouses, although they afterwards married them, were punished together as fornicators. (Zonar. in Canones.)

censures of the Church, albeit there might be no cause of favour, but for fear of further mischief by compelling them to go together, which did hate one another; yet was not this froward party thus to be dismissed, but was to suffer penance for the breach of his promise." (Swinburne.)

"By the Civil Law whatsoever was given ex sponsalitia largitate betwixt them that are promised, have a condition (for the most part silent) that it may be had again if marriage ensue not. Si Sponsus dederit aliquid, et aliquo casu impediantur nuptiæ, donatio penitus rescinditur nisi osculum intervenit; but if he had a kiss for his money, he loseth one half of that which he gave. But with the woman it is otherwise, for, kissing or not kissing, whatsoever she gave, she may ask and have it againe.[a] This is but for gloves, rings, bracelets, and other small wares; and in re-having, a woman hath greater favour in greater guifts than a man hath." Spon. Crud. 9, fo. 13.

The form of Espousals at Church, in England,[b] has not been handed down in any of its ancient Ecclesiastical Service Books. The service, however, is preserved in some of the French and Italian Rituals. The ceremony was generally performed by the Priest demanding of the parties, if they had entered into a contract with any other person, or made a vow of chastity or religion, whether they had acted for each other, or for any child they might have had, in the capacity of Godfather or Godmother,

[a] In a recent case at Exeter, Oct. 24, 1835, the Magistrates decided upon this rule, obliging a faithless swain to return a damsel's watch, and the latter to return half the value of a broach.

[b] In Nichols's "Progresses, &c. of King James the First," vol. iii. pp. 514, 515, will be found two accounts (one by Camden) of the ceremonial of the Affiancing of the Princess Elizabeth in 1612. It took place in the Banquetting House at Whitehall, before dinner; Sir Thomas Lake, as Secretary of State, read the words from the book of Common Prayer, in French, "I Frederick take thee Elizabeth," &c. after which the Archbishop gave his Benediction: "The God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, bless these Espousals, and make them prosperous to these Kingdoms, and to his Church." This appears to have been the whole of the office, and the service was probably not longer in ordinary cases. In the Contract for the Princess's marriage, executed the same day (Dec. 27), is a clause, "Quòd Matrimonium verum et legitimum contrahatur inter eos in Angliâ ante initium mensis Maii, et interim Sponsalia legitima de presenti." "It would be no difficulty," remarks Mr. Anstis, Garter, (Leland's Collectanea, 1774, vol. v. p. 329,) "to show the antient custom of such Espousals by the daughter of the Crown of England as distinct acts from the office of Matrimony, and that they frequently were performed some months or years before the marriage was actually celebrated."

or whether they had committed incontinence with any near relation of the other party; but the latter questions might be dispensed with at the discretion of the Priest. Then this oath was administered:

"You swear by God and his holy Saints herein, and by all the Saints in Paradise, that you will take this woman, whose name is N, to wife, within 40 days, if Holy Church will permit." The Priest then joined their hands and said, "And thus you affiance yourselves," to which the parties answered, "Yes, Sir," and the ceremony concluded with a suitable exhortation on the nature and design of marriage, and an injunction to live piously and chastely, until that event should take place. They were not permitted (not at least by the Church) to reside in the same house, but were nevertheless regarded as man and wife, independently of the usual privileges. (Douce.)

In the Euchologion sive Rituale Græcorum, p. 380, is the form of contracting Espousals in the Greek Church, intituled,

videlicet in nuptiarum subarrhatione." [d]

Part of the Service is as follows:

"Post divinam missam, stante in sacrario sacerdote, conjugio copulandi præ sacris foribus consistunt.

"Vir quidem à dextris; mulier autem à sinistris. Sunt vero repositi in dextra sanctæ mensæ parte, duo ipsorum annuli: aureus & argenteus. Ex iis argenteus dextrorsum respicit: aureus sinistrorsum, juxta se invicem.

"Tum Sacerdos recens-nuptorum tertio capita signat, tradiditque illis cereos accensos: & in Templum illos inducit. Et cruciformiter thus adolet, & dicitur à Diacono 'Benedicite,' &c.

"Diaconus. Pro servo Dei N, et ancilla Dei N, sibi nunc invicem desponsatis, & salute eorum: Dominum precemur.

"Chorus. Domine, miserere.

"Acceptis deinde annulis Sacerdos, donat primùm viro

[d] Subarrare, Arrhabone uxorem sibi desponsare.
Auctor Græcismi—
Pars arrabo venit pretii dum res bona venit
Quam sponsus subarrat, prius arrabone subarrat—
Virginem illam aureo suo annulo subarravit.
(Noviomensis in Vita S. Godobertæ, n. 3.)
(Monum. Sacræ Antiq, p. 85.)

aureum: tum argenteum mulieri. Et dicit viro: 'Subarrhatur servus Dei N propter ancillam Dei N, in nomine Patris,' &c.

"Deinde dicit mulieri: 'Subarrhatur ancilla Dei N propter servum Dei N, in nomine Patris,' &c.

"Cumque ter ad unum-quemque hoc dixerit, crucem super eorum capita facit annulis, & utrumque dextris eorum digitis immittit. Deinde recens nuptorum annulos commutat assistens Paranymphus."

The supposed heathen origin of the marriage ring[e] had well nigh caused the abolition of it during the Commonwealth. Dr. Butler in his Hudibras, says—

> "Others were for abolishing
> This tool of matrimony, a ring,
> With which th' unsanctify'd Bridegroom
> Is marry'd only to a thumb

[e] But a distinction was made in this respect between Espousals and Matrimony. Sanchez says, "Aliqui hoc temperant, quando annulus in medio digito annulari ponitur: quia ibi est quædam vena, quæ in cor ipsum protenditur: et ideo in signum mutuæ dilectionis in eo imponitur." &c. "Dicendum tamen est id requiri, ut præsumitur matrimonium; quando verò non ponitur in medio digito, presumi sponsalia. Quia cum sponsalia non sint ipsa conjunctio, sed conjunctionis promissio, non oportet annulum in medio digito poni, ut cordium conjunctio significetur. Quarta Conclusio quando habito tractatu inter amicos de matrim. contrahendo, misit sponsus arras, vel jocalia, nihil aliud exprimens, & sponsa acceptavit, sunt sponsalia. Quia hoc est sufficiens signum mutuæ promissionis, quando sponso de tractatu constitit. (Enriquez, l. 11 de Matrim. c. 13, n. 6, addens item esse si pecunias nomine sponsalitiorum mittat.)" Sanchez, liber 1 de Sponsalibus, Disputatio 22. Edit. 1626.

A MS. No. 428, in the Lambeth Library, intituled, "Anon. Tractatus de Matrimonio & Sponsalibus," treats "De Anuli subarratione que vulgo di. Desponsatio."

Despondeo--Fere adhibetur in causa nuptiarum, cum puellam pater in uxorem alicui promittit: & vicissim cum adolescentis pater acceptat conditionem prcpositam, & pro filio spondet, puellam ab eo ductum iri.—In Gentilis de Nuptiis (p. 96) a distinction is shewn between Sponsalia and Desponsalia: "Parentes aute' filiis stipulaba'tur uxores: & filias despondebant, item filios. Unde & Sponsi sponsaeq' appellatio nata est. quonia' & futurus maritus spondebatur, & uxor futura. Et (ut ait Brissonius elegantissimus) non solum à puellæ patre nuptum dari, sed & a viri patre ductum iri interponi sponsio consueverat. Ex veteri more spondebat etiam petitoris pater. unde sponsus & sponsa dicitur: etiam Donatus. Atque is addit, differentia' esse inter verbum spondendi & despondendi, quod spondeat puellæ pater, despondeat proprie adolescentis, & hoc est, filio stipuletur, ut Ego capio—& ut apud Plautum sic est, "Dii me perdant, si illam uxorem duxero mihi umquam, quam despondit pater." Et apud Ciceronem, "Crassi filiam Caio filio despondisset." (Cic. 1 de Orat.) Quæ desponsa erat, sponsa cui desponsa erat sponsus: qui spoponderat filiam, despondisse dicebatur. (Varro 5 de ling. Lat.) Et itaque aliam distinctionem improbat vulgi, quòd despondere id sit, quod ipsi parentes spondent de nuptiis filiorum."

That us'd to break up ground and dig);
The Bride to nothing but her will,
That nulls the after-marriage still."

A rush ring was supposed to possess some peculiar charm or qualification for a regular marriage. Richard Poore, Bishop of Salisbury, in his Constitutions anni 1217, forbids the putting of rush rings, or any the like matter, on women's fingers, in order to the debauching them more readily, and he insinuates the reason for the prohibition, that there were some people weak enough to believe that what was thus done in jest, was a real marriage.

Another part of the ceremony of Espousals was a kiss; thus, in the "Twelfth night":

"A contract of eternal Bond of Love, Attested by the Holy close of Lips."

In this part of the ceremony, the Priest very probably joined; it is quite certain that he did so on the solemnization of matrimony, since in the articles of Visitation in the Diocese of London in 1554 is the following, "Item, whether there be any that refuseth to kysse the Prieste at the solempnisation of matrimony, or use any such lyke ceremonies heretofore used & observed in the Churche."

In case one of the parties to Espousals was desirous, upon attaining full age, of annulling the contract, the dissent was "to be made and published before the Bishop of the diocese, where the disliking party dwelleth, or before his Chancellor, or in their absence before the parochial pastor or minister, and other honest witnesses." (Swinb. p. 44.)

In later times Espousals in the Church were often prohibited in France, because instances frequently occurred, where the parties, relying on the testimony of the Priest,[f] scrupled not to

[f] The following caution is in "A Werke for Householders," (1537). "It is a great jeopardy to make any such (private and secrete) contractes, specially among themselfe secretely alone without recordes, which must be two at the lest."

One of the interrogatories for the doctrine and manners of mynisters in the reign of Elizabeth, is the following:

"28. Whether they have exhorted yung folke to absteyn from privy contracts, & not to marry without the consent of such their parents and fryends as have authority over them, or no."

An ancient Canon forbids private contracting of marriage, and charges the contractors not to use words of the present tense (that they might not be construed into matrimony itself).

live together as man and wife, which gave rise to much scandal and disorder. Excesses were likewise often committed by the celebration of Espousals in taverns and ale-houses, and some of the Synodal Decrees expressly enjoin that the parties shall not get drunk on these occasions.

It has not been usual to keep a register [g] of Espousals contracted in facie Ecclesiæ; but one entry of them has been discovered, in the Register of Boughton Monchelsea in Kent. It is to the following effect:

Michaelis.

"1630. Sponsalia inter Gulielm' Maddox et Elizabeth' Grimestone in debitâ iuris formâ transacta 10 die Januarii."

This marriage was solemnized with the forms of the Church, three years afterwards,[h] as appears by the following entry in the same Register:

Michaelis.

"1633. Nuptiæ inter Gulielmū Maddox et Elizabethā Grimeston vltimo Octobris."

[g] In a Roman Ritual printed at Antwerp in 1617, p. 347, are instructions to the clergy as to the purposes for which Register Books should be kept, and the forms to be used; it contains the following directions:

Formulæ scribendæ in Libris habendis, apud Parochos, ut infra notatur.

Liber Baptizatorum, &c.

Liber Confirmatorum habeatur in Ecclesiis, in quibus confertur Chrisma.

Liber Matrimoniorum.
Liber status Animarum.
Liber Defunctorum habeatur etiam in omnibus Ecclesiis in quibus defuncti sepeliuntur.
} Hi tres habeantur a quolibet parocho.

Advertat in primis parochus, ut in Libris tam Baptizatorum & Confirmatorum, quam Matrimoniorum & Defunctorum, exprimat semper non solùm nomen personarum quæ ibi nominantur, sed etiam familiam.

[h] In this instance a lapse of three years seems to have taken place between the Espousals and the Nuptials. The Eastern Emperor Leo, surnamed Philosophus, (in order to prevent the mischiefs arising from Espousals to be concluded by marriage at a distant period) commanded that the Espousals and Wedding should be performed both upon one day. Alexius Comnenus endeavoured to restore the old custom. (Alex. Com. Novel. de Spons. l. 2.)

EPITAPHS, PENNONS, AND ARMS, FORMERLY IN CARSHALTON CHURCH, SURREY.

The following are the unpublished portions of the particulars found in Nicholas Charles's collection of Church Notes preserved in the British Museum, MS. Lansdowne 874, fol. 133; and of those in the Visitation, MS. Harl. 5830, which have the following heading: "In the parish Church of Carshalton in the county of Surry, taken the 5th of Aprill' 1623."

Pray for the soule of Katharine Bearcroft, late wife of Robert Bearcroft, gentleman, which deceased the 20 day of Septemb. a° 1507. And for the soule of Elizabeth Burton, widow, sister to the sayd Katharine, late the wife of William Burton, gentleman, the which Eliz. died the 26 of January 1507.

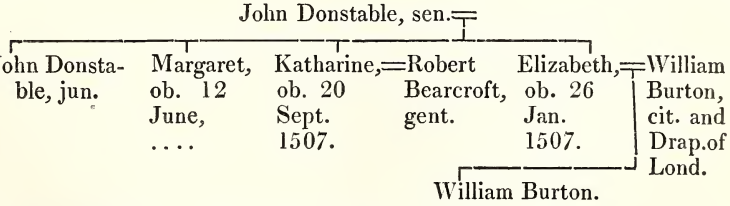
There is a pedigree of Burton of Carshalton, in the Visitation of Surrey; but those of the names here mentioned are not found in it. The connection between these parties is shewn by the following table:



The following epitaph is imperfectly quoted by Aubrey, from whose History of Surrey it is copied in that by Manning and Bray.[a]

[a] So also the epitaph of "Thomas Gainsford, chaplain," is copied from Aubrey, and said to be now lost; but the name was Walter, as Lysons correctly gives it, who particularly describes the figure as remaining, and that the inscription, though worn, was legible.

On a brass plate under the figure of a person habited like a monk:

Hic iacet Dominus Johannes Percebrigg hui⁹ ecclie vicarius, qui obijt ii die mensis Augusti anno Domini MCCCCIXIIII cuius anime propicietur Deus. Amen.

John Percebrigg was inducted Rector 10 July 1472.

Arms on the tomb of Joan Gainsford, wife of John Gainsford, Esq. of Carshalton, daughter and heir of Reginald Moresby, Esq. of Kent, 1492. ABSTRACT OF DOCUMENTS RELATIVE TO THE MANOR OF GUMLEY, CO. LEICESTER, AND TO FREESCHOOLS AT LITTLE HARROWDEN, PITCHLEY, AND IRTLINGBOROUGH, CO. NORTHAMPTON, AND HALLATON, CO. LEICESTER.

From the papers of the late Joseph Cradock, Esq. F S.A. of Gumley Hall.

The account given in Nichols's History of Leicestershire of the descent of the manor of Gumley to Mr. Cradock, will be found in the Additions to vol. iii. p. 534. It is there stated that the manor was first demised to the family of Horton in 1608-9, and that it descended in that family, until sold in 1741 by Mr. John Aldwinckle, who married Anne, daughter and coheir of John Horton, Esq. In the particulars of the estate advertised in 1736, (and given ibid.) two annuities of 20*l.* were acknowledged; but it is remarkable that the name of Mr. William Ailworth, by whom those annuities, with two others of the like amount, were charged upon the estate (as shown in the ensuing will) is never once mentioned.

Abstract of the will of William Ailworth, Gent.

Willm̃ Ailworth, of Gomonley, alʒ Gumly, in the county of Leic̃, Gent. to be buried in the church of Gumly. To Willm̃ Underwood of Artlingborough in the county of Northton Yeoman, my nephew and godson, & to his heirs for ever, all that my Mannour of Gomonly, alʒ Gumly, with the appertenances, &c. whatsoever in the countyes of Leicester and Northampton. To Susanna my wife ten pounds yearly. My Executor shall find, provide, & allowe to & for my said wife during her life in my dwelling house at Gumly aforsd, competent & sufficient meat, drink, lodging, washing, fire, candle, & other necessaries, as well in sicknes as in health, & convenient for a person of her age, degree, and calling; all which I devise unto her in lieu & recompense of such dower, &c. To every of the brothers & sisters of Willm̃ Underwood five pounds apeice. To my said wife the bed & furniture whereon she now lodgeth. Out of my mannour and lands in Gumly, yearly for ever, the sume of twenty pounds payable quarterly towards the maintenance of a Free School in Little Harrowden, in the county of North^{ton}, for the children of Little Harrowden, Great Harrowden, and Orlingborough. The like annuity of twenty pounds towards the maintenance of the like Free School in Pitchley, co. North^{ton}, for the children of Pitchley, Isham, & Broughton. The like annuity of twenty pounds towards the maintenance of the like Free School in Artlingborough, for the children there. The like annuity of twenty pounds towards the maintenance of a Free School in Halloughton in the county of Leicester, for the children of Halloughton.[a] My executor to convey my house & land in Little Harrowden for the habitation of the schoolmaster there. The master of every of the schools to be at the time of election a Graduate in one of the two Universities of Oxford or Cambridge, of a sober, peaceable, & discreet behaviour & conversation, conformable to the doctrine & discipline established in the Church of England, &c. My executor & his heirs shall for ever have the nomination and election of all the said Schoolmasters. The rest of my goods, &c. to Willm̃ Underwood, whom I make sole executor of this my last will, &c. 10 Aug. 1661.

Appointment by John Horton of Warkton in the county of Northampton, Gent. of the Rev. William Barton, of Pitchley, Clerk, to be Schoolmaster of the Free School of Pitchley. 29 Sept. 1740.

Letter from John Robinson, Esq. of Cransley, to Mr. Joseph Cradock:

"Sir, Mr. Barton of Pitchley being dead, Mr. Jackson has the Bishop's promise to succeed him, and, as that is so small without the School annexed, it has been long given with it: ye real Patron of which is the heire of one Underw^{d} of Irtlingborough; but as you are in possession of the estate which pays the Schoolmaster, the gentlemen in these parts think you sh^{d} have the chief concern in the appointment of the Schoolmaster," &c. &c.

[a] The school at Hallaton is briefly noticed in the History of Leicestershire, vol. ii. p. 600, but its endowment is not specified. Curtis, in his History of the County, 8vo. 1831, says it is endowed with 68 acres of land.

Letter from the Rev. W. Jackson, Curate at Walgrave in Northamptonshire, dated Leicester 31 March 1763, to the Rev. Mr. Pickering, begging his interest with his pupil young Mr. Cradock, and stating that the writer had already consulted Mr. Joseph Cradock of that town, and Mr. Bunney, the gentleman in trust for young Mr. Cradock.

Letter of Mr. Richard Hill, attorney at law, of Leicester, stating that he had shown Mr. Wm Ailworth's will to Mr. Pares, the attorney for Mr. Cradock, jun. who agreed with him that the presentation must be signed by Mr. Cradock, jun. by the advice and with the approbation of his guardians or trustees.

Notes by the late Mr. Cradock on his estate at Gumley:

The whole estate consists of above four hundred acres, the most valuable part of which is in woods (there being scarce any other wood in the neighbourhood). Mr. Cradock's father's calculation was, that the ash-beds paid 5*l.* per acre, and when Mr. Hanbury's plantation was purchased, the first surveyor in Leicestershire valued the ash-poles at 3*d.* per yard, which amounted to nine hundred pounds. Mr. Cradock keeps all the woods in his own hands, and 3 closes. The rest is let to four tenants; the old inclosure for 30 shillings pr acre, the new at 20.

A new house, which (with fitting up) has cost eight thousand pounds.

The estate, as it now stands, without being made the most of, will clear to any person five hundred pounds a-year.

The manor of Mowsley annexed, is only held for 21 years of the Duchy of Lancaster.

SUBSIDY ROLL OF THE WAPENTAKE OF STAINCROSS, IN THE WEST RIDING OF YORKSHIRE, IN 1663.

This document is valuable as furnishing the names of every resident of substance in an important district of Yorkshire at the period of its composition. The original is in the possession of C. G. Young, Esq. York Herald. The amount of the tax paid was 8*s.* in the £. on lands, and two-thirds of that amount on goods; and the original has another column in which the sum paid by each individual is expressed in Arabic numerals. As this is uniformly according to the rates mentioned, the column has been omitted, to save space; and the totals are added to the names of places.

LELAND'S UNPUBLISHED NOTES OF STAFFORDSHIRE FAMILIES, AND AN UNPUBLISHED FRAGMENT OF HIS ITINERARY.

In the Additional MS. 5937, Brit. Mus. (which contains the genealogical collections of James Strangeman and Sir Richard St. George, Clarenceux, in the reigns of Q. Eliz. and James I. similar to those in MSS. Lansd. 860, A. B.) at f. 203 is a transcript in the handwriting of Sir Henry St. George (grandson of Sir Richard, into whose possession the MS. subsequently came), thus headed, "Notes of some Familyes of Staffordshire, taken by Leland, being his owne hand writing, being loose in folio 27 of this Booke, which I have transcribed in this place, fearing they might be lost." The first 39 folios of the volume, as appears by the paging, and a list of Contents prefixed by Sir Hen. St. George, are now missing, and a recent possessor (Dr. Edmund Beauvoir?) has noted, "as far as fol. 40 is bound up separately." Of these 39 folios, the first 26 were in Leland's handwriting, and were transcribed in the year 1682, whilst the volume belonged to Sir Henry St. George, by the procurement of Dr. Robert Plot, and the copy deposited in the Bodleian library, marked NE. F. 11, 18, from which Hearne printed the whole, in the Appendix to his fourth volume of Leland's Itinerary, pp. 108—145, 8vo. Ox. 1711. It is, however, singular enough, that at the time this Transcript was made, the fears of Sir Henry St. George respecting the loss of the "Notes" of Leland (which are described in the Table of Contents as written on "a loose sheet of paper, folded in quarto"), must have been verified, for of these no copy exists in the Bodleian MS. and Sir Henry St. George's own transcript at the end of the volume must have been overlooked. They are therefore now printed for the first time.

Lord Stafford, at Stafford Castle.

As a not unfit companion to the above, may be here added a fragment of Leland's Itinerary written in his own hand, and consisting only of three pages, preserved in MS. Cott. Vesp. F. IX. f. 223. It is surprising that this should have escaped the notice of Hearne, since it was specified in Dr. Smith's Catalogue of the Cotton library, published in 1696, which Hearne must have consulted, since in his Preface to the seventh volume of the Itinerary, p. viii. he inserts a transcript of "Dr. London his reporte about Wickham, Bp. of Winchester," copied for him by a friend from Leland's autograph, in MS. Cott. Jul. C. vi. f. 103; and in his remarks on Godstow Nunnery in the Appendix to the second volume of the Itinerary, he quotes from the Monasticon the passage respecting Rosamund's tomb, which had there been printed "Ex fragmento Itin. Joh. Lelandi in bibl. Cottoniana." These notes, here for the first time printed, chiefly relate to Orwell in Cambridgeshire, Royston in Hertfordshire, and Godstow in Oxfordshire.

DESCENT AND KINDRED OF THE FAMILY OF WICKHAM.

Declaration of Thomas Harper relative to another family of Wickham residing at Swalcliffe.

Thomas Harper of Swalecliffe, in ye countie of Oxon, of the age of 39 yeares, or thereabout, maketh oath, that since the xviijth daie of December 1635, & before the xiijth of September 1637, he, the said Thomas Harper, hath often asked Thomas Wicam of Swalecliffe & his sister Anne Wicam severally & at severall tymes, whether he or she were any kyn to Richard Wicam Lord of Swalecliffe, or to his nephew Humfry Wicam, and that both ye said Thomas Wicam and his sister, untill about the xiijth of September last 1637, did assure this deponent that they never reputed them selves to be any kyn to ye said Richard or Humfry, nor ever heard that any of their ꝑdecessors did thinke them selves to be kyn to them or to their ancestors; and that about ye xiijth of September last this deponent, askinge againe the said Thomas Wicam yt if he were sure he were not any kyn to Humfry Wicam now Lord of Swalecliffe; the said Thomas Wicam answered in these, or ye like words, to this effect, viz. That he did not know that he was any kyn unto him, nor ever heard that his ꝑdecessors did ever accompt them selves to be ye same bloode wth ye said Humfry's ancestors, till of late that one of ye Lord Seyes sonnes did tell a kinsman of the said Thomas Wicam's at Sheningdon, that it was likely that he, ye said Thomas Wicam, & Humfry Wicam were of ye same bloode & kyndred, because their ꝑdecessors lived soe neere together & were of one & ye same name: And that if the said Thomas Wicam should deny his kindred to ye said Humfry, the said Thomas Wicam's children were likely never to have any benefitt by New Colledg.

Jur. 27o Januarii, 1637.

And over ye portall in ye same parlor, ye Founder's armes quartered wth other coats was then to be seene fayerly cutt in wood. And on ye foreside of ye house neere unto ye entrance into the hale, over a window toward ye topp of ye house, the Founder's armes quartered wth divers other coats were then to be seene fayerly cutt in stone.[a]

Inscription on the monument of William Wickham of Islington, uncle of William Wickham of Abingdon.

It appears from the pedigree that this William and his wife were buried at Islington. No notice, however, is taken in the Histories of Islington of such a monument in the old church. It was probably a brass, and destroyed like many others.

Here lyes ye bodies of Wm Wickham & Elizabeth his second wife; he was borne at Canterbury in Februarie 1553, and died in Aprill 1624, & she died in August in the same yeare, & in ye 67th yeare of her age.

At the four corners of the copy of this inscription are four shields: 1. Wickham, charged with a crescent for difference. 2. Wickham, impaling a fess, 3 ass's or hind's heads in chief. 3. The same as the preceding. 4. The impaled coat singly.

Declaration of Thomas Merriot, Vicar of Swalcliffe.

The coats of armes in Swalecliff Church, & Mary Wicam's acknowledgment that her husband never reputed himself to be kyn to ye Wicams Lordes of Swalecliff.

The xviijth of December anno Dñi 1635.

I, Thomas Merriott, Vicar of Swacliffe, do testefye that in the windowes of the parish church there are no other coats of armes to be founde, but these followinge: viz. in the uppermost windowe of the north ile of the Church, one coate wch beareth

[a] There was, a few years since, much painted glass in the Castle, the greater part of which has been recently removed by Lord Say and Sele to Belvidere in Kent. The arms of Wickham quarterly, with the bird displayed, do not now exist as mentioned in page 236. Both coats, however, appear on an old monument of one of the Say and Sele family. [Information of Incumbent.]

Argent wth a bende Azure, bordered about Gules with six mulletes Or; one other coate wth an Argent feild, & in it three thinges somewhat like to scolope shells Sable, wth a border Gules & mullets as aforesaid; and one other coate just like to these wth a plaine Argent feild & nothinge in it. In the windowe at the east ende of the same ile there is also the like border wth mulletts, but the scutchion wch was in the middest thereof is broken out. Also in the east window of the chancell of the said Church there is one coate of armes wth an Argent scutchion chequered at the upper corner thereof, toward the left hand, wth 4 squares only, Or & Azure. And also in the same window there are two peeces of glasse wch conteyne parte of a coate, wch since my cominge to be Vicar heare was whole, & did beare two cheverones Sable, betweene three roses in a feild Argent. But wch of all these coats is the more ancient I cannot conceave.

In witnesse hereof I sett my hand,

THOMAS MERRIOT.[b]

Memorandū, that, the daie & yeare above written, Mary Wickham of Swacliffe, the relict of one Edward Wickham, who was the sonne of one George Wickham of Swacliffe, whose predecessors had also for many descents continued in the same towne or parish of Swacliffe, beinge demanded or asked by William Wickham of Abingdon whether her husband or his father were any kin to Richard Wickham now Lord of Swaclif, answered that her husband was noe kin to the said Richard, nor he nor his father George Wickham did ever clayme to be of ye bloode or kindred of the said Richard, Lord of Swacliffe, & this was doone in the presence of us whose names are here under written.

THOMAS MERRIOT.
THOMAS HARPER.
THOMAS BURDEN × his marke.

These severall coats of armes are to be seene in the windowes of Swalecliffe Church & Chancell.

Here they are drawn as follows:

1. Argent, a bend Azure, on a border Gules six mullets Or.
2. Argent, three escallops Sable, on a border Gules six mullets Or.

[b] See Wood's Athenæ Oxon. He was Vicar 38 years.

3. Argent, a canton sinister checky Azure and Or, on a border Gules six mullets Or, pierced Sable.

4. Argent, on a border Gules six mullets Or, pierced Sable.

There is also one other border Gules, charged wth six mullets Or, peirced Sables, but the scutchion thereof is broaken out.

The present incumbent of Swacliffe informs me that there is now no painted glass in the church.

Glover's Letter to Lord Burleigh:

It may please your Lordshippe to understande, that, according unto your Lordshippes appoyntment, I have gyven myne attendance on Mr Docter Lewes and Mr Docter Awbrey at the sondry tymes of heeringe the controversy betweene Sir Richard Fynes Knight and Humfrey Wykham of Swaclif, Esquire, for the cause of consanguinity and kindred to William Wykham, sometyme Bisshoppe of Wynchester, and have seene the evidences and pedegrees, and all other their allegations and exhibites on either syde; of the summe wherof the sayd learned men, no doubt, do make pithy and learned relation unto your Lordshippe.

Yet because every smale appoyntment from your Lordshippe, is with me of no less force then the greatest commandements of others, I was not pleased with myself, nor cowld think that I had fully done my duty, untill I had lykewyse made relation unto your Lordshippe of so much of myn observation in the heeringe of that controversy as did concerne my profession and faculty.

And first, whereas Humfry Wykham the playntif, for the proof of his consanguinity to the Bishoppe of Winchester, was to derive himselfe ab uno stirpite with the sayde Bisshoppe, that was he not able to do upon shew of his pedegree. The which, notwithstanding, Sr Richard Fynes did, provinge himselfe lineally descended from the body of Agnes, sister to the said Bisshoppe; whereby his consanguinity to the sayd Bisshoppe is found to be in confesso and undoubted. And, therefore, that princypall helpe faylinge, the sayde Humfry, for the proof of his kynred, did ground his allegations and reasons chiefly upon these two arguments, Ab identitate nominis, et ab identitate armorum ; Ab identitate nominis, because the Bisshoppe was called Wykham, by which name he and all his auncestors have been called since the tyme of King Henry the third, and before; for disproof wherof, Sr Richard Fynes shewed a chapitre of the lyf of the sayd Bisshoppe, written in the statute book of Winchester College, entitled, De prosapia ejusdem patris et ubi et ex quibus originem duxit. Wherein the sayde Bisshoppe is sayde to be born in the towne of Wykham, in the countye of Southhampton, and to have had his name Wykham of that place. As also he shewed the genealogy of one Alice, the awnte to the sayde Bisshoppe written in the same statute booke, wherein it is sayd that his father's name was John Longe. The validity of which argument is, I doubt not, sufficiently expressed by those learned men in their relations unto your Lordshippe.

The second argument, ab identitate armorum, yf it wer as well proved as it was by the sayd Humfrey Wykham aptly alleadged, it would helpe muche to the proofe of his intent, because the text sayeth: sicut identitas cognominis inducit præsumtionem agnationis &c. ita etiam identitas armorum inducit præsumtionem agnationis aut cognationis; which is fortifyed by this reason, Quoniam sicut nomina inponuntur aut reperta sunt ad cognoscendos homines, ita etiam arma seu insignia, adinventa sunt ad cognoscendas familias et agnationes.

The sayd Humfrey [sayth] that those armes which the Bisshoppe used, were the armes of his family, and that they do stand, and are to be seene for such in the glass wynddowes of the parish Churche of Swacliff, wher he nowe dwelleth, and his auncestors haveing boren armes by prerogative of their race, wherof two in descent have been knightes; he knew, he sayed, no other armes for his name but those, wherunto Sr Richard Fynes did reply, and sayd, that ther ar also in the sayde parish Church of Swaclif other armes for the name of Wykham, videlt of Ermyn, a bordure Gules, replenished with molettes Gould. Which the sayd Humfrey would in no wyse graunt to be the proper coate for his name, but sayd that these wer the armes of the Conte de Tanquarvill, of which house (as he sayd) he is descended. Moreover, the sayd Humfrey claymed those armes which the sayd Bisshoppe used, as confirmed and allowed unto him by Mr Hervy the late Clarentieulx and by Mr Clarentieulx that now is, under their handes. And it may be, because the sayd Humfrey is an auncyent gentleman, and descended of knightes that were of his house, and lordes of the manour of Swaclif before King Edward the third's tyme, and before the sayd Bisshoppe was borne, that Mr Hervy and Mr Clarentieulx that now is, did think the sayde Bisshoppe to have ben descended owte of the howse of Swaclif, and that those armes which he used had ben the armes of the Wykhams of Swaclif. What other cause might move him to allow unto the sayd Humfrey those the sayd Bisshoppes armes, it is to me unknowne.

Touchinge this argument this I note: that the said Bisshoppe bare his armes diversly at two sundry tymes, as the seales thereof shewed by Sr Richard Fynes do testify. Before he was Bisshoppe, when as yet he was but Archdeacon of Lincolne, he sealed but with one cheveron in his armes betweene three roses; but after, when he was advanced to the Bisshopricke, he sealed with two cheverons between three roses: and so are generally known to this day to have been his without contradiction. The sayde Humfrey hath not yet made proof that any of his auncestors did use either the one or the other of those two coates. But that other coate of armes with the field Ermyn, which Sr Richard Fynes did put him mynde of, and which he refuseth for his owne, is to be seene in dyvers books in the office of armes, with the only inscription of the name Wykham, without any addition of place; and are ther found to be of as greate or greater antiquity then those the Bisshoppes armes. It hath ben demaunded of me by the sayd learned menne, whether the armes which the sayd Bisshoppe used, wer given unto him in respect of his dignity episcopall, or were boren by him before, as receyved from his auncestry and race. Whereunto I could not answere affirmatively, because I had never seene matter of the first allowance of them. But havinge read certeyne learned wryters' opinions of the sayde Bisshoppe, which do agree in this, that he was humilis conditionis, and that he was called Wykham a loco unde natus est, et non a parentibus: as it is also affirmed in the chapitre of his lyf before alleadged, wherin also his father called John, is sayd to be progenitorum libertate dotatus, and he himself, by Ranulph monk of Chester, beinge noted to be libertinus vel a patre libertino natus, I was moved to thinke (as I told them) that those armes came not to him by descent. And agayne, behouldinge the armes sometyme with one, and then after with two cheverons, Quæ quidem signa per carpentarios et domorum factores olim portabantur, as Nicholaus Upton wryteth; and comparinge them to the quality of the bearer, who is sayd to have had his chief preferment for his skill in architecture, erat enim regi Edwardo 3 in principio à fabricis, eo quod erat ingeniosus et architectura delectatus, as Doctor Caius maketh mention in his bookes de antiquitate Cantabrigiensis Academiæ; I was also induced to think per conjecturam heraldicam that the Bisshoppe himself was the first bearer of them.

I have, for your Lordshippes readye understandinge, made a draught of the severall pedegrees exhibited by either of the parties in the hearinge of this cause, which, together with the armes, as I fynde them in the office of armes, your Lordshippe shall receyve herewith.

And thus I beseeche God long to preserve your Lordshippe in health, honor, and prosperity, to the greate comfort of your Prince, contrey, freendes and wellwillers. From London the day of Marche, Anno 1572.

Your Lordshippes, as Yor ꝑvant most bounden,
R. Glover, Somersett.

To the right honõable the Lorde Burghley, High
Threasorer of Englande.

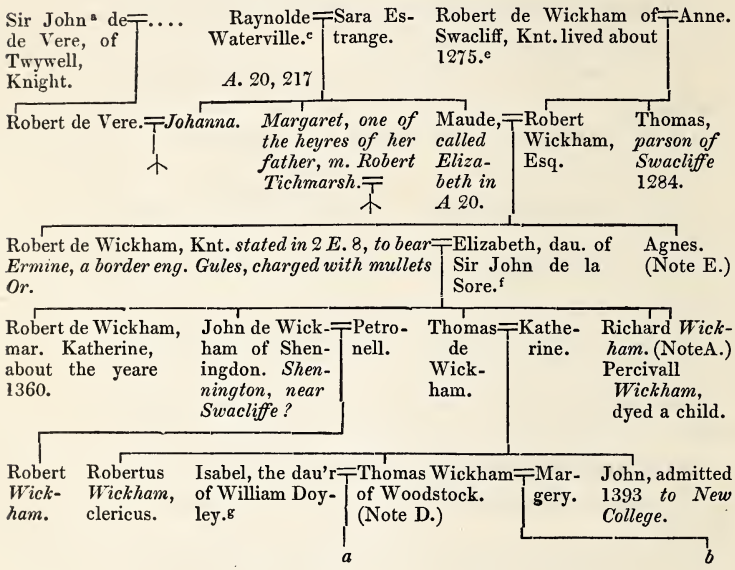
The following Pedigree and the references to deeds, are on one large sheet of paper, and answer to the description of a pedigree noticed in page 184, being "torne in the midest," viz. where the deed of 1359 is given. Those portions printed in Italics have been added.

PEDIGREE OF WICKHAM OF SWACLIFFE.



[a] Son or grandson of Alberic de Vere, who held Twywell temp. Hen. II.

[c] Reginald de Waterville, and "Strangia" or "Estranea" his wife, held Marham in the 25th of Hen. III. He was probably son of Hugh de Waterville. Thorp Waterville, co. Northampton, and Orton Waterville, co. Huntingdon, were a part of their possessions. They bore Gules, 3 fleurs-de-lys Or, a chief barry nebuly Argent and Azure.

[e] Took their name, no doubt, from Wickham, a hamlet near Swacliffe; so also John de Wickham and Hawise his wife, who held Wickham in Sussex, 6 Edw. III.

Robert de Wickham, arm. of co. Northampton, was summoned 25 E. I. to serve beyond seas.

Robert de W. of Oxon and Berks, was summoned to Berwick to serve against the Scots, 29 E. I.

Robert de W. was Lord of Sheningdon, co. Glouc. and of Swacliffe and Wickham, co. Oxon, 9 and 10 E. I.

[f] Will. le Sor held Backwell (called Backwell le Sore) co. Som. 47 H. III. The name was sometimes written Lizur, Lisures, or de Lisoriis. They bore Or, a chief Azure, and had considerable lands in Warwickshire, Somersetshire, Northamptonshire, &c. Vide Baker, vol. i. p. 9, and Collinson, p. 306, vol. ii. John Lizours held lands in Warwickshire, 44 E. III.

[g] He died in 1424, and was ancestor of the D'Oyleys of Chislehampton.

From hence the Baroness Wenman. Vide Baker's Northamptonshire, vol. i. p. 591.

[h] A Thomas Wickham (living in 1443, and deceased in 1448) and Agnes his wife, are mentioned in a deed relating to Thenford, co. Northampton. Vide Baker's Northamptonshire, i. p. 711. As the towns of Evenly and Shutford, mentioned in the will of Thomas Wickham (p. 374), are both in Northamptonshire, it is more than probable that they are the same person, and that there is an error in the date of the death. Amongst the Oxfordshire geatry, 12 Hen. VI. are, Thos. Wickham chev[r], Thos. Wykham de Swaleclyffe, Will. Wickham arm.

[i] There were Lidyatts of Shennington, near Swalecliffe, towards the end of the 16th century. No arms are given in the pedigree.

[k] The arms, as given in a pedigree done for William Wickham, Esq. son of the Dean of York, are, Or, a bend engrailed Vert, voided Azure.

[l] A Giles Poulton was of Densborough, co. Northampton, and died in 1560. He was father of Ferdinando Poulton, a lawyer of some repute. Arms, Argent, a fess Gules charged with 3 Plates between 3 mullets Gules.

[m] John Underhill, who was of New College, and made Bishop of Oxford by Elizabeth, was born at Oxford, and was probably related to this family. Richard Wickham in his will, proved 1636, mentions his kinsman Sir Edmund Undrell, Knt. Arms: Argent, a chevron Sable between 3 trefoils Vert.

[n] The Register of Swacliffe begins in 1560; and in the Church are several Marginal notes from the pedigree in E 8 14, Coll. Arm.

(A) This Richard was of the blood of the Bishop of Winchester, as appeareth by a Court Roll.

(B) This Percival Wickham abovenamed was sworne childe of Winchester in the 18th yeare of H. 6. as is to be proved by the Prothocall booke of Winchester.

(C) In the first yeare of Hen. 4. a°. 1403, John Wickham, brother to Percivall and cosen to the founder William Wickham Bishop of Winchester, was named in election to be warden of the New College in Oxford, as appeareth by the Prothocall booke, fol. 47.

(D) In the 13 yeare of Ric. 2, William Wickham, Bishop of Winchester, made this Thomas one of his attorneys to receive the profitts of his parsonage of Swacliffe.

A marginal note signed F. T. Windsor Herald, in the same pedigree.

(E) Rot. Claus. a°. 6 R. 2. m. 8 dorso.

A°. 5 R. 2. Agnes de Wickam filia quondam Rob'ti de Wickam mil: de Com: Oxon. ac soror Thomæ de W. grants to William de Wykeham Bishop of Winton, and others, all her right in certain lands in Swaleclive with the advowson of the church.

This pedigree in E 8, begins with Robert Wickham, "Lord of Swacliffe," and Maude Waterville, and terminates with Humphrey, "now," i. e. in 1571, "of Swacliffe." It also introduces, collaterally, the supposed descent of the second Bishop of Winchester, and both the coats are sketched in the margin. There is a loosely written pedigree in Vincent 56, p. 718, from the marriage with Waterville to that with Underhill; but scarcely worthy of notice, as it makes Margaret, the wife of Lord Say, the daughter of William the brother of Percival Wickham.

The marriage of the first Robert Wickham and Anne may be proved by an ould pedigree.

1274. Anno 3° Edw. I. Sr Reynolde Waterville did lett to the first Robert landes in Broughton.

1284. Anno 12° Edw. I. Robert & Thomas, sonnes and executors to Sr Robert, were scited to knowe what theire father, then dead, had given to the holy voyage.

monuments of the family. An inscription on the pulpit records that Anne Wykeham, wife of Richard W. gave the pulpit, pew, cushion, and cloth in 1639.

1289. Anno 18° Edw. 1. Sudburgh mannor was given by Roger de la Hide to Reynolde Waterville and Estrange his wife in fee; they had issue Maude, married to Robert Wickham: who, the 18th of Edw. 1. did lett lands for life in Sudburgh.

1290. Anno 19° Edw. 1. A deed was made betweene the 2 Robert Wickham and Sr John de Lazore as touching a marriage to be had betweene Robert the sonne of the second Robert and Elizabeth the daughter and heire of Sr John Lazore.

1291. Anno 20° Edw. 1. It appeareth by a deed that Elizabeth was endowed at the church doore of lande in Sudburgh by her husband the third Robert of the assent of his father, in the presence of her father at Sheningdon.

1291. Anno 20° Edw. 1. By a warrant of attorney made by Robert Vere, heire to Reynold Waterville, they had the 31° Edw. 1. Sheningdon, the 5th of Edw. 2. Marham, the 15th of Edward the second the 5th part of Backwell Sore, as heire to John Sore, and this Robert dyed at Bristowe 1° Edw. 3. as appeareth by a certificate from Bristowe 6° Edw. 3.

1332. That hee was a knight and had issue a 4th Robert, appeareth by a deede made by Elizabeth his wife to Robert her sonne of the mannor of Swackliff, and by one other deed rehersed in the advouson 6° Edw. 3.

1334. Anno 8° Edw. 3. Elizabeth presented John Ayloffe to the parsonage of Swacliff.

1359. Anno 33° Edw. 3. Henry Tichmersh, Vicar of Swaclif, gave the mannor to Katherine, Robert's wife, for life, remaynder to Thomas entayle, rem̃ to Richard entayle, rem̃ to William de Wickham, cosen to the said Thomas and Richard; and heere a vicar and the advouson omitted.

Also it appeareth by a Courte Roll that this Richard Wickham was of the bloode of the Bishopp.

1359. Ann° 33° Edw. 3. An Act was . . before the . . . of Lincolne at Sleford, for ..... Robert to his uncle Thomas ..... then Robert to keepe the Covenñts ..... Thomas for the mannor of Swacliff .... and the adv ..... mentioned, and thatt . . at this tyme ..... hee which was Bishopp.

1359. Anno 33° Edw. 3. April 10°. Robert the sonne of John gave all the right hee had or should have in Swacliff at ye death of John his father, Katherine his uncle Robert's wife, & Petronell his mother, to Thomas his uncle in fee.

1367. Anno 41° Edw. 3. The same Robert gave the same lande to his uncle Thomas and Katherine his wife entayle, the remñ to the right heires of Thomas.

1385. Anno 9° Rich. 2. The third Thomas, sonne & heire to Thomas, that was sonne to the 3 Robert, confirmed to the abbott of Kynesham the state of lands .... to hould in ....

1393. Anno 17° Rich. 2. The second John Wickham, cosen to the founder, was admitted into New Colledge.

1399. Anno 1° Hen. 4. Swacliff was given to Katherine the wyfe of Thomas, & Robert her sonne, remñ to Thomas Wickham entayle, remñ to Robert entayle, remñ to Elizabeth entayle, remñ to the right heires of Thomas.

1403. Anno 5° Hen. 4. John Wickham, master of arte, & [cosen] to the founder, was named in election to be Warden of New Colledge, in Oxford, as appeareth by the Prothocall Booke, fo. 47.

1410. Anno 12° Hen. 4. Robert Wickham & others gave Swacliff to Thomas and his heires begotten of the body of Isabell his wife, daughter of Willm Doyley.

1414. Anno 2° Hen. 5. John Oxheard released to Thomas the elder, Thomas the younger, & William his brother.

1429. Anno 8° Hen. 6. Thomas Wickham de Woodstock gave ye land wch should revert to him after the death of Robert his brother, clerke, unto John his sonne for life, remñ to Thomas his sonne, and to the heires of his body begotten of Isabell wife of the said Thomas.

1438. Anno 17° Hen. 6. An award betweene Thomas Wickham & Margery his mother, the second wife of Thomas of Woodstock, and John his brother.

1438. Anno 17° Hen. 6. Thomas, sonne of Thomas of Woodstock, graunted an annuitie to John his brother.

1439. Percevall Wickham was sworne childe to ye Colledge in Winchester, as is to be prooved by the Prothocall booke of the newe Colledge in Winton. 18° Hen. 6.

1453. Anno 32° Hen. 6. Thomas Wickham enfeoffed Willm Berningham, K^t. Willm Wickham, Esq. and others, of Swacliff & Shutford.

1465. Anno 5° Ed. 4. Thomas Wickham of Swaclif, Esq. willed that his feoffees should make state of his lands to Agnes his wife; rem̃ to John his sonne intayle, rem̃ to John, Percevall, Guye, and Edward his brethren entayle one after other, rem̃ to the right heires of Thomas.

1487. Anno 3° Hen. 7. Swaclif was given to Thomas Wickham, the sonne and heire of Thomas and Agnes, and to Anne his wife for life; rem̃ to the heires of the body of John: rem̃ to the right heires of John; whereby it is apparent that the eldest sonne of Thomas and Agnes was Thomas. But because hee dyed in the life time of his father w^thout issue, hee is not sett downe in this pedegree.

1438. Anno 17 Hen. 6. Thomas sonne of Thomas of Woodstock graunted an annuitie to John his brother.

1456. Anno 35 Hen. 6. Thomas Wickham of Swaclif, agreed with John Wickham, his father's brother, for an annuity for wch John sued his father, then being an old man.

The fourth Robert Wickham and William Wickham the Bishop & founder were about the same age.

1324. Anno 18° Edw. 2. William Wickham the Bishopp was borne.

1361. Anno 35° Edw. 3. William Wickham, that was afterward Bishopp, was made overseer of the workes at Winsor.

In the centre of this inscription is a shield bearing Wickham impaling, Checky, on a bend three lion's heads erased. At the four corners of the monument are four shields. 1. Wickham, charged with a crescent. 2. Checky, on a bend three lion's heads erased. 3. Ermine, a lion ramp. crowned, a border charged with bezants or plates. 4. Wickham impaling 3. I am informed that this plate still remains in the middle aile; but that the centre shield and that at the sinister base corner are gone.

[c] There are three errors in this pedigree as entered in the College books, one of which may be proved from Thorpe's Reg. Roff. First, the name of her father was not Robert, as will be seen by the inscription in that work, p. 881: "Hic jacet Maria Hovenden, filia Wilhelmi Hovenden, Cantuariæ nata, uxor Johannis Wickham, hujus ecclesiæ Rectoris, per quem sex habuit liberos, Margaretam, Richardum, Wilhelmum, Margeriam, Aliciam, et Elizabetham. Obiit 6° Junii anno 1587." Secondly she is stated to have remarried "Hallet of Canterbury," whereas, as will be seen from her husband's (Wickham's) monumental inscription at Rotherfield, she was his (W's) first wife. Another error has been committed by making the daughters, Sarah and Mary, the issue of the first wife; whereas the Rotherfield inscription, confirmed by the baptismal entries from the Burrell MSS. assigns them to the second. Dr. Robert Hovenden and his brother Christopher, the first Warden, the other a Fellow, of All Souls', were brothers to Mrs. Wickham. The father died in 1587.

Notes to the Pedigree.

[a] He was a tenant of lands at Walden. See the Duchy of Lancaster Records 16 Hen. VIII. Godwin styles him of Enfield, Guillim of Walden. The following is an extract from a letter of Mr. Gough to the Rev. E. Robson, dated Jan. 21, 1799, Enfield: "You judge rightly in supposing I gave Mr. Lysons what information, respecting Bp. Wickham, was in the power of one, whose curiosity after so eminent a native of this town, led him to every source of intelligence. But Mr. L's penetration found out more, and determined that the old mansion by the West side of the North Road in this parish, did not take its name, as commonly imagined, from the Bishop of Lincoln, but from the noble family of Lincoln. He ascertained from original records that the Bishop's father was tenant of a different house, the manor house of Honylands, or Pentriches, of which not an ancient trace remained within my memory; and that which supplied its place was completely taken away about five years since. This house the Bishop's father rented of the Crown in the reign of Henry VIII. Sir Giles Capel (whose name the manor now bears) past it to the Crown 1547. Queen Elizabeth sold it 1562; and through various hands it came to Mr. Boddam. The Bishop's grandmother was daughter of John Wrothe, whose family had been settled at Enfield from the reign of Rich. II. so that his father was probably under-tenant of some of them (see Lysons, vol. ii. pp. 302, 303, and 329). If John Wickham's will could be found in Doctors' Commons, or in the Bishop of London's Register (and it is worth a search) more of his profession and property might be ascertained. The period for this search should be between 1547 and 1590." There is no will in the Prerog. Court.

[b] William Parker was 5th son of John Parker of Norton Lees, by Ellen, daughter of Roger North. The Wroths were of Enfield in 1374, and John Tayler held the manor circa 1526.

[c] The Bishop is stated by Fuller and Wood to have been born at Enfield, although in an old MS. account of this Prelate and his son, sent by Mr. William Smith of Queen's Coll. Cambridge in 1699, to Dr. James, Master of Queen's, then at York, at the request of Tobias his grandson, and taken by Mr. Smith from the books at King's College, there is a marginal note as follows, "His father lived there," viz. at Enfield, "but this Wm. Wickham was not born there." This note the Provost (Dr. Roderick) said he knew to be in Wood's hand-writing, and that the book had been sent to Wood. He was a Fellow of Eton and of King's; a Prebendary of Windsor in 1571, and Dean of Lincoln in 1577. In 1584 he was consecrated Bishop of Lincoln, and preached at the burial of Mary Queen of Scots at Peterborough Aug. 1, 1587. (See Fuller's Church History and Gunton's Hist. of Peterborough.) Mr. Gough endeavoured, but in vain, to discover a copy of this sermon. He was translated to Winchester, March 25, 1595, died in the same year, and was buried at St. Saviour's Southwark, on the 13th June, according to an extract from the parish register, made Oct. 8, 1798, by the Rev. E. Robson, who compiled a MS. account of this Prelate for Mr. Wickham. This Register Book was given to the Church by Thomas Cure in 1570, who, Stowe says, was Saddler to Edward VI. and Elizabeth. The monumental inscription, printed in Stowe, and erected by Frances Matthew the Bishop's sister-in-law in 1600, is entirely destroyed. In Cooke's Grants, F. 13, the Arms allowed to the Bishop are entered as follows: Coat. Ermine, a border engrailed Gules, charged with eleven mullets Or pierced. No Crest. "William Wickham, Bishope of Lincolne, the son of John Wickham of Walden in Essex, which John was descended of Wickham of Swacliffe in com. Oxford."* Mr. Wickham has a portrait of the Bishop with his Arms, as above described, in the corner, impaling the Coat of the See. A writer in the Gent's Mag. vol. LXIX. p. 8, attributes it to Marc Garrard. A letter from Ayscough in the same Magazine and volume, p. 283, gives a full account of this Prelate, together with a letter of his to Archbishop Matthew, dated 1592, and one from his grandson William, dated 1673, to the Rev. T. Milner of Leeds. The originals are in the British Museum.

[d] She was buried, according to the register, on the 31st of May, and a marginal note in red ink states that "she lieth interred in the chancel of the Church, about the middle thereof, under a grey marble. The inscription which is set round is now almost defaced." This stone still exists, and the note in the register appears to have been written about the year 1748. (Inf. present Incumbent.)

Her mother, Agatha Barlow, was buried at Easton in Hants in 1595, and a copy of her monumental inscription is given in the Gent's Mag. vol. LXIX. p. 15.

[e] Beckwith's MSS. [penes Com. de Harrowby] & Brooke No. 1. Her mother was Margaret, daughter to Sir Wm. Babthorpe. Her sister Mary married Henry Fairfax, Rector of Bolton Percy, and second son of Thomas 1st Lord Fairfax. Her descent was truly described on her monument as illustrious.

[f] "Ordained Deacon, Sep. 25, 1614. Collated to ye Prebend of Fenton (in ye Church of York) Octob. 10, 1614, to the Rectory of Bolton Peircy June 20, 1617. Ordained Sep. 21, 1617. Collated to the Prebend of Beckingham in ye Church of Southwell March 22, 1620." MS. of his son Tobias. A marginal note in the extract from the King's College book, estimates the living of Bolton Percy at 250*l.* a-year, and that of Bedale at 500*l.*

[g] Monumental Inscription, Chauncey's Herts, p. 499; not in Clutterbuck.

[h] He was a Fellow of Trin. Hall, Cambridge in 1649. In Kennet's Chronicle are two letters from Lord Clarendon to Barwick, written in March 1660, enquiring about him as the "son of a good father." Precentor of York Sept. 22, 1660. His degree of Doctor was conferred by Royal Mandate in 1671, and on March 31, 1677 he was instituted Dean of York. The name of Tobias was derived from Tobias Matthew, Archbishop of York, whose wife Frances, was sister to Anthonina the Dean's grandmother. A MS. in the Dean's writing, notes the births of his twelve children. One, "a man child," still born, Dec. 29, 1674, at Bolton Percy. The death of his second daughter, Elizabeth, is thus recorded; "Elizabeth, my dearest child, 5 years and 2 months old, dyed the 30th of Nov. being ye anniversary of her father's birth-day, and was buried Dec. 2, 1672."

[i] She had several children by her husband. Her son Tobias Jenkyns was sometime M.P. for York, and left issue by his first wife, Mary, daughter of Charles 1st Duke of Bolton, an only child, who married Sir Henry Goodricke of Ribston, Bart. He had issue by a second wife a son William, bap. at Dunnington, near York, Oct. 3, 1708, and a daughter Anthonina, bap. June 18, 1710.

[k] In Kennet's Chronicle is a letter from the King to the Master and Fellows of Trinity Hall, dated Dec. 19, 1660, requiring them to elect him a Fellow in place of his brother Tobias, who wished to resign.

[l] Stephen Thompson, third brother to Sir Henry Thompson of Kilham, co. York, and æt. 30 in 1665, married Mary, daughter of Leonard Thompson, Alderman of York. According to C. 40, a daughter of Stephen Oglethorpe of Kellington, co. York, born about 1620, was married to "—— Wickham of York."

[m] The records of the Quarter Sessions for the West Riding, show this William to have been both of Ulskelf and Wakefield. He was sworn into office as Clerk of the Peace for the West Riding at Wetherby Sessions, Jan. 14, 1718, as "William Wickham, Esq. of Ulleskelfe, alias Uskelfe," and again at Skipton Sessions July 14, 1719, as "late of Uskelfe, but now of Wakefield." The will of 1733 describes him as of Ulskelf. An old pedigree in the possession of the Rt. Hon. W. Wickham, copied from E. 8, fol. 14, was done for him in 1718. The descents, with the different impalements of arms, are brought down to the children of Humphrey Wickham of Swacliffe and Martha Ward; and collaterally to himself and his issue, and to Henry Wickham his nephew, the Rector of Guiseley. The Jenkyns descent is also continued to Lady Goodricke, but not including the younger children of Tobias and Anthonina. A Dorothy, "wife of Lawyer Wickham," was buried in the Minster in Feb. 1716, but whether a first wife of this gentleman or not does not appear.

[n] Of Queen's College, Cambridge, took his degree of B.A. in 1712, and of M.A. in 1717.

[o] In the entry of his burial he is styled "Captain Henry Wickham," and there is great reason to believe, indeed it appears almost evident, that he was the Captain Henry Wickham of the Navy, who was so severely and unjustly punished by Court Martial in 1694. A pamphlet printed in 1695 in his defence, is entitled, "An Account of the loss of their Majesties' ship the Diamond, Commanded by Captain Henry Wickham, Sep. 20, 1693; captured by two French Ships off Cape Clear, on the Coast of Ireland." For this he was tried on board the Britannia at Spithead April 30, 1604; fined 1000*l.* and to suffer imprisonment for ten years. According to Charnock's Biog. Nav. vol. ii. p. 374, he was appointed second Lieutenant of the Crown June 1, 1688; to the command of the Antelope March 22, 1690; and Captain of the Diamond, 42 guns, in 1691, and sent to West Indies with Sir Francis Wheeler. He was released from imprisonment on the accession of Anne. The minutes of the Court Martial and the substance of the defence, sufficiently show that this was a sort of prelude to those Admiralty proceedings which, in 1754, sacrificed the gallant Byng to party vengeance. He is described in the administration as of St. Michael le Belfry's parish in York.

[p] He took his degree of B.A. in 1720, and of M.A. in 1724. The monumental inscription to his first wife is given in Whitaker's Leeds, p. 208.

[q] Their son, the Rev. James Scott, D.D. was a celebrated preacher, and held the Rectory of Simonburn, co. Northumberland. He also rendered himself conspicuous by the publication of some letters, under the signature of Anti-Sejanus, in 1765, in the Public Advertiser. There is a biographical notice of him in Gent. Mag. vol. LXXXIV. ii. p. 601. There are, however, two mistakes, first in calling the Dean of York John Wickham; secondly, in naming the Bishop of Chichester Barton instead of Barlow.

The reader will no doubt have decided with Glover that the Petitioner's Case was by no means proved, and that Wickham was so called "a loco unde natus est, et non a parentibus."

In consequence of a reference to Willement's Heraldic Notices of Canterbury Cathedral having been added by the Editor of this work (see p. 237) I am under the necessity of correcting what I conceive to be an error in Scarlet's MS. which Mr. Willement has printed in an Appendix. In the first place it might seem sufficient to show that there is no known coat of Clifford at all resembling the coat of Wickham, and that therefore the probability is, that the glazier or the copyist were in error if they intended the inscription to refer to the shield in question. There is, however, evidence in Scarlet's MS. to show clearly that the coat of Bishop Clifford was one of the known coats of that family. In the last page is the following inscription recording the death of his brother: "Hic jacet Robertus Clifford, ar. frater recolendæ memoriæ d'ni Richardi Clifford quondam Ep'i London, qui ob. 9 Marcii 1422 cujus a'i'æ pr. &c." [a] Accompanying this inscription are the following Arms on separate shields, viz. 1. Checky within a bordure, on a fess a mitre. 2. Checky, a fess. 3. Checky, on a fess a cross-crosslet. 4. A lion rampant. 5. Three eagles displayed, a fleur-de-lys for difference. 6. Quarterly Percy and Lucy. 7. Three eagles displayed. 8. Same, impaling a cross engrailed. Below is a sketch of a helmet, surmounted by an eagle or falcon (perhaps intended for a wyvern) rising, and noted as being "under his head."

I had before, in a note to page 367, intimated my conviction that the match of Faunt, Bolney, and Wickham could not be identified with the pedigree to which it has been attached. I now doubt the correctness of the assertion relating to the monument mentioned in p. 237, and for the following reason: In Scarlet's MS. notes of St. Andrew's Church, page 22, is the drawing of a shield (over which is written "Edward and Agnes") bearing the following Arms, viz. Or, in chief two mullets Gules, in base a crescent of the same, impaling, Sable, within a border Argent a chevron Argent between 3 etoiles Or. Below is the following inscription: "Pray for the soule of Edward Bolney, Esq. wch deceased the 2 day of January, the yeare of our Lord God 1527." [a] The female coat is noted as being "Stodard," perhaps meant for Stodder of Kent, but neither of these has a chevron. At any rate, either Scarlet drew the Arms incorrectly, or Phillpott was mistaken as to the monument in the Cathedral.

With respect to the monument mentioned at page 346, the names and dates correspond with those in the pedigree (page 367), but the female coat bears no resemblance to that of Sageswick, or that of Sedgewick.

The funeral certificate of Elizabeth Wickham (I. 22, 110) gives the coat of Wickham impaling, Gules, a fess Argent between 3 wolf's heads erased Argent, langued Azure, and styles her daughter and coheir of William Sageswicke, of the county of York, gent.

I subjoin a notice of the different MSS. in the Museum and in the College of Arms which refer to the name of Wickham :

EXPENSES OF ANCIENT FUNERAL HEARSES AT WESTMINSTER ABBEY.

On one of the fly-leaves of a Cartulary of Westminster Abbey, MS. Cott. Faust. A. III. are entered the following curious memoranda respecting the expenses of the funeral hearses of several sovereigns and persons of rank.

In Gough's Sepulchral Monuments, vol. i. pp. 170*—173*, will be found a full account from the Exchequer records of the expenses of making four hearses at the funeral of Anne the Queen of Richard the Second, to be erected in the churches of Westminster (the hearse below mentioned), St. Paul's cathedral, and the parish churches of St. Mary Overy and Wandsworth. King Richard likewise directed by his will four hearses at his funeral, two at the principal churches to which his body might be carried, a third at St. Paul's, and the fourth at Westminster; or, if he died at Westminster, then four hearses at such places as his executors might direct.

REGISTERS OF PRIVATE CHAPELS IN AND NEAR LONDON.

It is well known that prior to the Marriage Act in 1753, it was not necessary to the validity of a marriage that it should be accompanied by any religious ceremony, or be solemnized in a Church; although a form was enjoined for the more solemn celebration of matrimony (and persons departing from these regulations were liable to Ecclesiastical censure) yet other and more private modes of contracting marriage were acknowledged by the Common Law.

The consequence of this was, that nearly every Chapel in and about London, whether belonging to the Established Church or to the Dissenters, was in the habit of marrying persons, and sometimes of keeping registers of the marriages. The Marriage Act of 1753, however, rendered it necessary to the validity of a a marriage that it should be solemnized in some "Parish Church or Public Chapel where Banns of Matrimony had been usually published," [a] a stop was put to the marriages at Chapels, for banns were scarcely ever published but in Parish Churches. Indeed, so restrictive did the clause in the Act prove, that it was found that marriages could not be solemnized even in St. Paul's Cathedral, Westminster Abbey, the Temple Church, &c. &c. Whether this was Lord Hardwicke's intention on framing the Marriage Bill, need not now be discussed; but there seems no good reason for allowing a marriage by License to be solemnized in a Church and not in a Cathedral; and it seems absurd to require as special a License to be married in the Abbey Church of St. Peter's (or rather in Henry the Seventh's Chapel) as in a private house.

[a] John Waltham, Lord High Treasurer, who died in Sept. 1395. His brass figure, still existing, is engraved in G. P. Harding's "Antiquities in Westminster Abbey," pl. IV.

[b] Sir Bernard Brocas, Treasurer of the Chamber to Anne, the Queen of Richard II. above mentioned. He was beheaded on Tower Hill, in Jan. 1399-1400. Two plates of his effigy in the Abbey were published in Stothard's Monumental Effigies, though afterwards cancelled as being not the original, but either a modern copy or much renewed.

[c] Louis Robsart, Lord Bourchier, K.G. died in 1431. His curious monument, so rich in heraldry, is well engraved in Neale's Westminster Abbey: and also in Gough's Sepulchral Monuments, vol. ii. pl. xxxii.

The discontinuance of marriages at Chapels, and the passing of the ownership of the Chapels themselves from one to another, together with the lapse of time, and accidental circumstances, have occasioned the loss of many of the registers kept at these places of worship, and it is intended to give some account of those which are now known to exist, with the addition of information obtained from other sources, which has been obtained at very considerable labour and expense.

The affidavit made by one of the parties on obtaining the marriage License, is called in the Ecclesiastical Courts a "Matrimonial Allegation." The Allegations belonging to the Bishop of London are bound up in yearly volumes and deposited in the Muniment Room at St. Paul's, and to these books frequent reference will be made, since they afford particulars of the ages of the parties, and frequently some account of their parentage.

DUKE STREET CHAPEL.

This Chapel is situate at the south end of Duke Street, in the Parish of St. Margaret's, Westminster. It was founded by a Mr. Higgins and by private subscriptions in 1709. It is now the property of Lewis Wolfe, Esq. the lessee of the Crown.

The only existing register of this Chapel, consists of several sheets of foolscap paper, containing twelve entries of marriage. It is intituled:

"A Register of the Marriages in Duke Street Chapel, Westminster."

Ellis Young, Esqr. of St. George Hanover Sq: Wr. & Penelope Stapleton of the same, Spr. 10th May 1753. By the Bp. of St. Asaph.

James Marks of St. Martins in the Fields, Br. & Anne Payne of the same, Spr. 29th Septr. 1753.

With one or two exceptions the marriages are by "John Pettingal, Minister ibid." and it was by a grandson of this gentleman that this Register was given to Mr. Vincent, the Chapter Clerk of Westminster Abbey, who has recently deposited it with the Records of the Abbey.

In addition to the marriages contained in the Register, the following appear by the Matrimonial Allegations [a] to have been solemnized in this Chapel:

Thomas Mitchell, St. James's, Batchelor, 30, & Elizth Tanner, Watford, Herts, Sp. 22. 9 May 1716.

Wm Rhodes, Holb. Br. 24 & Ann Bray, same Sp. 21. 2 Novr 1723.

[a] It must not be taken for granted that every one of these marriages took place at this Chapel, but the probability is that they did. It might occasionally happen that the parties, although obtaining the License, were never married at all, or that they obtained the License to marry at one of two places, as was the case with Sir Anthony Wescomb, who was licensed to marry at this or Whitehall Chapel.

Wm Lamb, Hornsey, Br. 28, and Mary Lovegrove, St. Margts Westmr, Sp. 21. 31 July 1725.

THE ROLLS CHAPEL REGISTER.

The Register of this Chapel is preserved with the other Records of the Master of the Rolls at this Chapel. It is a short folio (vellum covered) commencing in 1736, but contains only entries of twenty marriages.[d] The Book is indorsed, "Rolls Register for Marriages," and on the second leaf is the following memorandum:

ST. JOHN'S CHAPEL, BEDFORD ROW.

This Chapel was built about 1720, and consecrated in Sept. 1723. The public journals of 1722 state it to have been then nearly finished, and that the Ministers were the Rev. Dr. Marshall, Jun. and the Rev. Dr. Rogers. The Proprietors in 1737 chose the Rev. Mr. Cradock, Dr. Barryon, and Mr. Jennour, to be presented to the Duke of Montague for their Morning Preacher, out of eleven candidates, and His Grace appointed Mr. Jennour.[f]

Enquiries have been made of the Trustees, but no Register has been found, and recourse has therefore been had to the Matrimonial Allegations, for the following matches at this Chapel:

ARUNDELLIANA.

1. It is evident from the Domesday Survey that Roger Arundel had obtained from William the Conqueror considerable grants of land, viz.

IN DORSETSHIRE:

Windelham	Bleneford	Brocheshale	Ragintone
Meleberie	Bessintone	Pouertone	Urde
Celberge	Pourestock	Orde	Herestone.

IN SOMERSETSHIRE:

Halse	Fitintone	Chedesford	Cedre
Hiwis	Tocheswelle	Sideham	Sutone
Wislagetone	Cudeworde	Hasewelle	Bechintone
Derstone	Scheligate	Cari	Berchelei
Sanford	Mildetune	Cerletune	Mersitone
Peri	Radingetune	Aixe	Penne
Newentone	Timbrecumbe	Opecedre	Eslide.

2. It is clear that in the time of King Henry II. the Arundels bore swallows in their escutcheon, as they do at present. For in the Philippeis[a] we read the following verses describing an Arundell encountering William de Barr:

Vidit Hirundelâ velocior alite quæ dat
Hoc Agnomen ei, fert cujus in ægide signum,
Se rapit agminibus mediis clypeoque nitenti
Quem sibi Guillelmus lævâ prætenderat ulnâ,
Immergit validam præacutæ cuspidis hastam.
P. 207-8 of Camden's Remains, 1637.

3. It is an unquestionable fact, that the knightly family of Arundell flourished in Cornwall long before Messrs. Lysons (in their History of that County) suppose them to have settled there. This is easily proved by reference to the Episcopal Registers of Exeter. When the family began to present to the Churches of St. Columb Major and to St. Mawgan, I cannot discover; but the following extract from the Register (and it is the earliest) of Bishop Bronescomb, disproves the assertion of Messrs. Lysons:

"In vigilia Assumptionis Beate Marie, A.D. 1266, ad presentationem Dñi Radulphi de Arundell, ad quem jus Patronatus Eccłe Sce Columbe pertinere dignoscebatur, Dñs Epus admisit Rogerum de Derteford."

Lanherne, the seat of the Arundell family in Cornwall, was held of the Bishop of Exeter by Military Service. This I learn from fol. 102 of Bishop Stapeldon's Register:

"Noverint universi per presentes nos Walterum permissione Divinâ Exoñ Epū concessisse & vendidisse Dño Thome Lercedeakne militi, Wardam corporis Joħis filii & heredis Joħis de Arundell pro C libris sterlingorum, quas nobis recognoscit se teneri coram Dñis Wiłło de Bereford & sociis suis Justiciariis Dñi Regis de Banco, que quidem warda nobis pertinuit eo q̃d dictus Joħes de Arundell totum Manerium de La Herne cū oĩbꝫ ꝑtinenciis suis de bone memorie Dño Thoma (Bytton) quondam Exoñ Epo predecessore nr̃o, tenuit per Servicium Militare. Ex fol. 116 ejusdem Registri:

Presentibus Dñis Petro de Honeton, Ricardo de Braylegh, Willo Russell, capellanis, Gilberto de la Thorne, Ricardo de Twyverton, clericis, Willo Hureward, Willo de la Walle, & aliis.

In fol. 131, vol. i. of the Register of Bishop Brantyngham, is a French document to the same purport as the preceding.

4. In the Exeter Cathedral Martyrologium I read: "Willus de Arundell, canonicus, obiit vi kal. Maii mccxlvi."

One Roger Arundell lived opposite the portico of St. Stephen's church, in the High Street, Exeter. From his tenement, certainly from the year 1247, an annual rent of 12*d.* was payable to St. John's Hospital.

Ralph Arundell, Rector of St. Columb Major, resigned his benefice in the hands of Bp. Grandisson, A.D. 1353. In consideration of his near relationship to the patron Sir John Arundell, the Bishop granted him a pension of 20*l.* per ann. from the said benefice.

This will was proved before Bp. Lacy at Chudleigh Palace on the 7 June 1433.

Qu. If this be not the Sir John Arundell who is said, on the authority of Knyghton (p. 1015), tempore Ricardi II. to have had no fewer than 52 complete suits of cloth of gold?

6. Ex folio 250, vol. ii. of Bp. Lacy's Register.

On the death of Margaret Beauchamp, Abbess of Canonsleigh Devon, the Prioress Jane Arundell was elected her successor, 10 March 1449, on which occasion she signified her consent in the form following:

"In the name of owre Lord, Amen.

I suster Johan Arundell, mynchyn of the Monastery of Synt Johan the Apostell & Evangeliste & Etheldrede the Virgyn, of Canonlegh, & the Order of Seynt Austyn, in the Diocesis of Excet', Order & Rule of the holy Fader Seynt Austyn, in the saide Monastery of Canonlegh expresse professyd, yn laful age ysette, electe yn Abbasse of the said Monastery, & ofte with instance & grete requeste yn the party of my susteryn & mynchyns of the saide Monastery requirid, that to the ecleccion of ham of me ymade, I scholde geve my consente, I the forsaide Johan, willyng not to withstande ne contradie the will of Almyghty Godde, to the worshipp of the Blessid Trinite, Fader, Sone, & Holy Gost, also to the worshipp of Seynt Johan Apostell & Evangeliste & Seynt Etheldrede the holy Virgyn, yn whos namys & worshipp owre Conventuall Churche above saide worthely & holily is halwid, beyng yet ynne the tyme of Laws, as I am enformed, to geve my consent a fore saide, to the forsaide Ecleccion by my Susteris above saide of Me made, I consente by this present wrytyng."

7. Dr. John Arundell, Bishop of Lichfield & Coventry, was translated to Exeter, and after governing this See nearly 1 year and 9 months, departed this life 15 March 1503-4. To his Register is a "Prologus," written by his Secretary, John Sixtinus, highly complimentary to his Lordship: "Cujus generose stirpis antiquam nobilitatem excellens doctrina maximeque virtutes adornant: cujus in Deum pietatem quotidianus Dei in suo Sacello cultus ostendit, tot suis capellanis ac domesticis filiis, cum symphoniacis pueris, Angelicam harmoniam in Dei ac Dive Virginis laudem bis quotidie canoris vocibus vocalique jubilo efficientibus: liberalitatem vero quotidiana dapsilitas, ampla familia, patens omnibus probis atque honestis domus, largaque ex Divi Pauli sententia hospitalitas, quotidianeque pre foribus edium elemosyne. Bene de se meritorum maxima munera gratitudinis autem ejus omnes judicant qui ei unquam inservierunt, beneficiatis (ut sic dicam) omnibus suis capellanis."

8. I have seen a letter dated Greenwich, 13 June 1585, signed by Francis (Earl of) Bedford and (Sir) Francis Walsyngham to the Mayor of Exeter, thanking him for having detained at Exeter John Arundell of Trevenack, Esq. who had attempted to go over the seas with a large sum of money. The money is adjudged to be sequestered to the Exchequer, and his person to be detained in safe custody until further orders. On 13th July Sir Francis Walsyngham alone signs a letter, directing the money to be restored to the Squire, and that he should be discharged forthwith.

9. On the East front of old Wardour Castle is the following inscription:

Gentis Arundeliæ Thomas Lanhernia proles
  Junior, hoc meruit primò sedere loco.
Ut sedit, cecidit: sine crimine plectitur ille
  Insons: insontem fata secuta probant.
Nam quæ Patris erant Matthæus filius emit,
  Empta auxit: studio Principis aucta manent.
Comprecor aucta diu maneant, augenda per ævum!
  Hæc dedit, eripuit, restituitque Deus.

Of these verses I have seen the following translation[a] in the handwriting of Henry the 8th Lord Arundell:

Here, branch of Arundell Lanhernian race,
Thomas first sat, and he deserved the place:—
He sat, and fell: Merit the fatal crime,
And Heav'n, to mark him faultless, bless'd his line.
Matthew his offspring, as the Father, Great,
And happier in his Prince, regain'd the seat.
Confirm'd, enlarg'd; long may its fortune stand!
His care who gave, resum'd, restor'd the land.

10. It is not generally known that Sir Matthew had a brother Charles, who quitted England in the summer of 1583, and died at Paris, 9 Dec. 1587. In a MS. of Father Robert Persons (who knew him well) he is mentioned thus:

"Mr. Charles Arondel, brother to Sir Matthew Arondel, after many years continued in the Court of England, after he saw things grow to that extremity, as no Catholick man migh be suffred to live with his conscience, he went into volontary banishment; and afterwards for his devotion, he went to visit the holy places at Rome; and from thence he passed to see the King of Spaine (Philip II.) & do his duty unto Him; for that He was his God Father, at the time of his being in England, & gave him the name of His Father Charles the Emperor; and now received him with great love & favour, & made him Knight; & besides other gifts, assigned him also fourscore French Crowns every month towards his maintenance. But Sir Charles returning afterwards to Paris, lived very little while, but gave up his Ghost most godly to his Creator."

XL.

CHARTERS RESPECTING THE GOSPATRIC AND OTHER NORTHERN FAMILIES, FROM THE NEWMINSTER CHARTULARY AND LORD WALLACE'S MUNIMENTS; COMMUNICATED BY THE REV. JOHN HODGSON, M.R.L.S., VICAR OF HARTBURN.

The first of these documents is from a copy of the long-lost Newminster Chartulary, which (probably at some law-suit) found its way from Naworth Castle into the hands of the late Edward Cook, Esq. of Blakemoor, in Northumberland, Recorder of Berwick-upon-Tweed, and an eminent antiquary, from whom it passed with other effects to William Burn, Esq. of Southwick, in the County of Durham, who has lately restored it to the Earl of Carlisle. The other four abstracts are from original charters in the possession of Lord Wallace at Featherstone Castle, in Northumberland.

1. Walter⁹ fili⁹ Yvõ õib3 ⁊c̃. salt̃ . Notū sit uob̃ ꝗ ego ⁊ hered̃ m. clam̃ ⁊ concedim⁹ Edgaro filio Cospat^ici cōitis cū Ali3 soror̃ m. ⁊ her̃ suis en f^aunkmariage totū ꝯrā quā paꝯ me⁹ Yvo ⁊ Agnes mater mea deder̃t ⁊ concesser̃t eis en f^aunkmariage scił3 .. man⁹ia Vlueneby ⁊ Thorneton^a iux^a Tese . ⁊ in Westmariland Chouocsalelehild ⁊ Euenewit . ⁊ in Cumberland Bleneklau . ⁊ in Cokedal Triwit ⁊ Cestern ⁊ Those ⁊ alꝯ Tosse ⁊ Flotweyton̄ cū nemor̃ ⁊ plano ⁊ p^ato ⁊ cū aq^a ⁊ molend̃ ⁊ cū õib3 reb3 lĩtime ꝑtinent̃ eiusdē ville ꝑ r̃tas d̃isas . Et Edgar⁹ ꝯcessit ex ꝑte sua ⁊ h̃ed̃ s. pro amor̃ face de ista ꝯra ꝗ ꝑtinent ad villare recte . ⁊ has pꝯd̃cas ꝯras q^as paꝯ me⁹ Yvo ⁊ mater m. Agnes eis concesser̃t ego hac c. m. cōf^rmo. hiis ⁊c.

This Edgar was a son of Gospatric second Earl of Dunbar, and in the Northumberland pipe rolls for 1179 and 1171, is surnamed Unnithing. He was the progenitor of the Kestron family in Coquedale, and with his son Alexander confirmed his father's grant of the Church of Edlingham, in Northumberland, to the Monks of Tinmouth; which Edlingham belonged to his brother Edward and his descendants for many generations. This Charter also illustrates Surtees's account of Ulnaby and Thornton-on-the-Tees (Hist. Durh. iii. 382, 383), besides throwing interesting light on parts of the History of Westmerland and Cumberland.

2. Carta de Secta Multura Molendini de Barton.

Omnib3 Rogerus filius Horm̃ de Pullowe . Novit uniusitas vr̃a me ꝯcessisse Ad̄ de Karletona ⁊ ħedib3 suis vel cuicūq; assignare voluit terciam ꝑtem ꝑcii decimi vasis ad multura ad molendinū suū de Bartona . videlicet de om̄ib3 bladis que crescunt in ꝑris ⁊ culturis quas q̃d̄m emi de d̄no Wiłło de Stikeland milite que jacent in Vserigh . Horm of Pullowe had his name from the delightfully situated village of Pooley at the foot of Ulliswater, and Sir Robert de Yavenwith from Yanwath, a village on the Eamont, which in the Charter, number 1, is called Evenewit; and by it appears to have been given by Walter son of Ivo to Edgar son of Earl Patric, in marriage with his sister Alice. The whole parish of Barton, except Yanwath, belonged to Ivo Tailbois, baron of Kendal, whose descendants took the name of Lancaster, and granted the other parts of it to one of their own name, from whom it passed by marriage and purchase to the Lowther family in the seventeenth century. Walter the son of Ivo was, I apprehend, the progenitor of the Greystocks, in the fourth step of descent from Lyulph, to whom Ranulph de Meschiens gave the barony of Greystock in the time of William the Conqueror; for that family were mesne tenants of Yanwath under the Cliffords, lords of the barony of Westmerland, in 1314; but as Edgar, the grantee from Walter the son of Ivo, had descendants, it seems difficult to account for this place reverting to Walter's descendants, while the Tees' side and Coquetdale estates, comprised with Yanwath in the grant, descended to the Tailbois family.

Dat̃ apud Karliõm.

Three labels and two seals remaining; on one a hand, on the other a garb.

The possessions conveyed by this deed were probably Blackall and other lands in the manor of Botchardley within and without Carlisle; and the history of which, though treated of in the Denton MS. in the possession of Miss Carlisle of Carlisle, is still very imperfectly told.

4. Sciant nos Joħes de Coupeland de Laysinbi ⁊ Emma uxor mea dedimus Thome fiƚ Ađ de Carleton tres solidat̃ reddit⁹ in Penrith. Dat̃ apud Penrith die Jovis ꝑx^a post festū Pascħ anno r. r. Edwardi ꝯcij vj.

This abstract is given as a link of the Carleton and Copeland pedigrees; but it has no reference we apprehend to John de Copeland, the celebrated Northumberland Esquire, who took David King of Scotland prisoner at the battle of Durham, in 1346.

5. Om̄ibꝫ Galfr̃ fili⁹ Baldewini de Carleto^a Nou̅tis me dedisse Henr̃ fiƚ Odardi de Carleto^a ⁊c. Hiis testibꝫ dño Roƀto de Yavenviht . đno Symoñ t̃c vicario de Penreht . ⁊.

This illustrates the pedigree of the Carletons of Carleton Hall, near Penrith,—brings to notice an inhabitant of the village of Yanwath mentioned in the first Charter—and gives a new name to the list of the Vicars of Penrith.

ADDENDA.

Vol. I. p. 283. Elizabeth Danet was afterwards the wife of Sir John Arundell, of Lanherne, co. Cornwall.

Vol. II. p. 58, line 4, for "a younger son of the third Earl" read Sir Ralph Percy, who died in 1464, a younger son of the second Earl.

P. 62. In further illustration of the pedigree of the immediate line of the Conspirator Percy, the following inscription is transcribed from a monument of white marble, adorned with skulls, cherubs, &c. in the Church of St. Margaret, Rochester, on the south side of the chancel:

"Sacred to the memory of Captain Francis Percy (a Descendant of that Most Noble and Antient Family of Alnwick Castle, in Northumberland) who served 47 years in the Royal Navy.

"In the year 1700 he was blown up in the Carlisle, & was providentially one of the seven that were saved out of 200 men.

"In 1704, he was dangerously wounded in the engagement between the English and French fleets in the Mediterranean.

"In 1707, he was cast away upon the Rocks of Scilly with Sir Cloudesley Shovel, and miraculously preserved.

"He was at the burning of the French & Spanish Fleets at Vigo. He was at the taking of Gibraltar, when he boarded and burnt a 28 gun ship. He was likewise at the Sieges of Copenhagen, Mata Guarda Fort, Barcelona, Ostend, and Toulon, in all which actions he acquitted himself with Bravery & Honour.

"Worn out in the service of his Country, and long afflicted with the Gout and Stone, He now resteth in peace, the best reward of all his labours. He died Feby 16, 1742-3, aged 67."

At the bottom of the monument is a shield containing the lion rampant of Percy, impaling, Per bend sinister . . . and Sa. a lion rampant Or.

In the register of St. Margaret's are the following entries referring to his burial and that of his wife:

"1741, Feb. 22. Bur. Captain Francis Piercy.

"1747-8, Feb. 28. Bur. Sarah, widow of Captain Francis Percy."

Tryce Mary, only child of the Rev. Thomas Parratt, by Tryce Percy, was born at Oundle 6 Dec. 1752, and baptised there 10 Jan. following; she was married at Nottingham 19 Jan. 1774 to Jacob Julien Baumgartner, Esq.; died 22 Nov. 1815, and was buried at Hartford, near Huntingdon. Her husband died 17 Dec. 1816, and was buried at Hartford. They had issue four children: 1. Jacob-Julien, born 18 March 1775, died 13 August following; 2. Tryce-Mary-Susanna, born 14 March, 1777, died 19 Mar. 1835; 3. John-Thomas, who has continued the line; and 4. Robert-Jacob, born 6 Oct. 1779, died 6 Dec. 1810.

John Thomas Baumgartner, of Godmanchester, born 20 Mar. 1778, married Philippa, third daughter of Samuel Knight, of Milton, co. Cambridge, and has had issue thirteen children: 1. Philippa-Julia, born 31 July 1811, and married 6 May 1834 to Philip Tillard, Esq.; 2. John-Percy Baumgartner, born 27 June 1812; 3. Robert-Julien, born 17 Mar. 1814; 4. Edward-Joscelyn, born 3 Apr. 1815; 5. George-Jasper, born 7 Aug. 1816, died 5 May 1817; 6. Georgiana-Tryce-Mary, born 6 May 1820; 7. Henry-Algernon, born 25 Oct. 1821;

8. George-Samuel, born 26 Jan. 1823; 9. Thomas-Mowbray, born 21 July 1824; 10. Charles-Astry-Octavius, born 8 Oct. 1825; 11. Emma-Frances, born 19 Mar. 1827, died 26 July following; 12. Emma-Frances-Amelia, born 30 Nov. 1828; and 13. Elizabeth-Charlotte-Olivia, born 1 Sept. 1831.

P. 63. The Rev. Henry Crispe (husband of Anne Percy) was instituted to the Rectory of Catton, co. York, in 1685, upon the presentation of Charles Duke of Somerset, Chancellor of the University of Cambridge, who had married Elizabeth, sole daughter and heir of Josceline Earl of Northumberland. Mr. Crispe appears to have left Catton as a residence in 1698; but survived until 1737, in which year he died. By the Register of Catton it appears that there were four children, the issue of their marriage, baptized there between 1687 and 1695.

P. 320. For "Seville," read Sicile. The arms of the Duke of Burgundy plainly show this Roll of Arms could not have been written earlier than the 37th Edw. III.—T. W.

Burden; 18. Cresacre; and 19. Cradock.

P. 89. Ellesmere Church is dedicated to St. Mary. The mutilated effigy noticed in p. 91 was originally outside the Church, exactly opposite where it now stands, and there was on that spot a very old stone, with the inscription of Hanmer upon it in old English text characters, and there is a tradition of a person being interred there, who on account of his wealth was called the Golden Hanmer.—H. P.

The coats on the tomb of Kynaston, are, 1. Kynaston, alias Kyvin; 2. Kynaston, modern; 3. Frankton; 4. Horde; 5. Kynaston (augmentation); 6. Edward ap Morgan; and 7. Oteley. Visit. of Salop.

P. 332. By an Indenture dated 16 July 1824, Joseph Cradock, of Gumley, Esq. then residing in the liberties of Westminster, conveyed to Edmund Cradock Hartopp, Esq. late second and then eldest surviving son of Sir Edmund Cradock Hartopp, of Four Oaks Hall, co. Warw. Bart. the manor, mansion-house, lands, and other premises at Gumley, (subject to three several mortgages of 2000*l.*, 5000*l.*, and 2700*l.*) with reservation of an annuity of 400*l.* to Mr. Cradock for his life. He died Dec. 15, 1826, æt. 85. (See Gent. Mag. XCVII. i. 17.)

P. 371. Hannah-Frances, wife of the Rev. Lamplugh Hird, M.A. who is Prebendary of York and Vicar of Paull, died at York, Dec. 18, 1835, æt. 56; and their eldest surviving son, Henry Wickham Hird, Esq. of Low Moor House, near Bradford, was married at Roundhay, Jan. 21, 1836, to Mary, dau. of the late Thomas Benyon, Esq. of New Grange, near Leeds.

Vol. I. p. 75. Kent. Aylesford. A Cartulary of this Priory, according to Twysden, was in the hands of Sir John Sedley. See Heber's Catalogue, pt. xi. lot 489.

—— p. 76. Notts. Beauvale, or Gresley. The Cartulary, MS. Add. 6060, was described in the Gentleman's Magazine for Feb. 1814, p. 108, by the Rev. T. L. Cursham, Vicar of Mansfield, Notts. by whom it was given to the British Museum in the same year. He had it from Will. Stretton, Esq. of Lenton Priory, co. Notts.

—— ibid. Suss. Beigham. For Transcript read Abstract.

—— p. 77. Leic. Bredon. The Cartulary of Earl Ferrers was in 1834 in the possession of J. Mee Mathew, Esq. of Gray's Inn.

—— ibid. York. Bretton. In 1704 Peter Le Neve saw the Cartulary which had belonged to Sir W. Armine, in the hands of the heir of Millington, a bookseller of London. See MS. Harl. 4757, f. 98 b.

—— p. 197. Kent. Canterbury, Christ Church. In MS. Add. 6037, is another copy of Sir Edw. Dering's Abstract of a Cartulary.

—— ibid. St. Augustine. A Cartulary is entered in the sale catalogue of Mr. Towneley, 2d part, lot 653; probably the Trauscript subsequently in Heber's possession. See Heber's Catalogue, pt. xi. lot 490. Now (1836) in the hands of Sir Thomas Phillipps, Bart.

—— p. 199. Norf. Cokesford. A fragment of a Register is among the Charters of Lord F. Campbell, Brit. Mus. xxi. 8 —— p. 200. Linc. Croyland. The Cartulary of Maurice Johnson previously belonged to Sir Anth. Oldfield of Spalding,—D. and before him to John Oldfield. See Cole's MSS. vol. xliv. p. 31. and Gough's History of Croyland Abbey.

—— p. 201. Norf. Dereham (West). Mr. Heber's Cartulary was purchased from the Towneley collection, 2d part, lot 147, and formerly belonged to Sir Simeon Stuart, Bart. Sale Cat. pt. xi. lot 493. Bought by Sir Tho. Phillipps, Bart. (1836.)

—— p. 204. Lanc. Furness. A Cartulary compiled by Prior Dalton, in 1412, was in the Duke of Hamilton's library (1819).

—— p. 206. Kent. Horton. See Towneley sale cat. lot 653, 2d part. A copy of Sir Edw. Dering's Abstract of this Cartulary was in the Towneley sale, pt. ii. lot 643, and was purchased by Mr. Heber, in whose Catalogue it appears, pt. xi. lot 491. It now belongs to Sir T. Phillipps, Bart.

—— p. 207. Norf. Langley. MS. Add. 5948, formerly belonged to H. Hobart.

—— ibid. London. Haliwell. In the reign of Elizabeth, the Cartulary belonged to Edm. B. Esq. See MS. Add. 5937, f. 115.

—— p. 400. York. Newburgh. See MS. Add. 5937, f. 117.

Vol. II. p. 107. Lanc. Spalding. Dele the name of W. G. Beaupre Bell. Both these Cartularies of Spalding formerly belonged to John Oldfield. See Cole's MSS. vol. xliv. p. 212.

—— p. 108. Chesh. Stanlaw. See Heber's sale cat. pt. xi. lot 175 and 492.

—— p. 110. Devon. Torre. A cartulary of this abbey is in the library of Trinity Coll. Dublin, E. 5, 15, which formerly belonged to Will. Barry, A.M.

—— p. 113. York. St. Peter's. Mr. Heber's Cartulary is of the Abbey of St. Mary, not of St. Peter's, as stated on erroneous information received from Mr. Heber himself. Sale Catal. pt. xi. lot 494. At the recent sale of Heber's MSS. it was purchased by Sir Tho. Phillipps, Bart.
